Medina Inaction Claimed In Court Martial Opening

FT. MCPHERSON, Ga. (UPI) — The government accused Capt. Ernest L. Medina today of being aware his platoon "committed murder" at My Lai, but said he "calculatingly chose to do nothing."

By declining to interfere, Maj. William G. Eckhardt, the chief prosecutor, said in his opening statement at Medina's murder court-martial, Medina encourged the men "in the perpetuation of murder of noncombatants."

"The government does not contend Medina told his company to kill non-combatants," Eckhardt said. "But he had the duty to guide and control his men, to insure that noncombatants were treated humanely. He knew they committed murder and chose to do nothing. He did nothing when he did not interfere. He calculatingly chose to do nothing."

Medina, commander of C Company which swept through the Vietnamese hamlet of My Lai on March 16, 1968, is charged with the murder of a woman and a child in the hamlet and with the overall responsibility of 100 other deaths.

F. Lee Bailey, civilian attorney for the 34-year-old soldier from Montrose, Colo., countered that Medina issued immediate cease-fire orders when he learned of the killing.

"Those orders will be repeated verbatim in this countroom and they may paint this courtroom blue," Bailey said. "They'll be repeated verbatim so there will be no doubt in your mind that Capt. Medina meant what he said.

"His men were frightened and hyped up. They went to meet a dragon that had left the village.

Bailey said Medina was under orders "to have the houses burned, the livestock shot and the wells closed. Those were Medina's specific orders from Col. (Frank) Barker, the task force commander. Nobody talked about slaughtering noncombatants. They had every reason to believe none would be there," Bailey said.

The charge against Medina was reduced from a capital offense, eliminating the possibility the Mexican-American officer could be sentenced to death on conviction.

Government Denies Registration Guides

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Justice Department believes it would be inappropriate and inadviseable for the federal government to give the states and cities guidelines to help register the new 18-to-21 year-old voters.

Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., issued a statement reporting the decision Sunday. He said he had asked Attorney General John N. Mitchell to provide such guidelines, but instead received an answer from Deputy Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst, who said:

"Under our dual form of federalism ... it would be inappropriate and inadviseable for the Department of Justice to establish guidelines to assist state or local voter registration officials as you suggest."

Brooke said he disagreed since "the federal government can play a helpful role in ensuring that state and local government officials understand and are mindful of applicable federal statues, as well as judicial and administrative rulings."

Brooke said residency requirements are not defined and consequently "the confusion and divergent views on the state and local level are readily understandable."

He said he was preparing legislation to provide uniform national residency requirements, especially to help students and other temporary residents.

Young Held Key In '72 Elections

NEW YORK (UPI)—Time magazine reported Sunday that the three populous states of New Jersey, California and Ohio could swing to the Democratic camp in the 1972 elections because of newly enfranchised 18-through-20-year-olds. All three states were Republican in the 1968 presidential election.

Time said six other states, which it did not name, also could go Democratic if only half the eligible youths vote and if they vote Democratic by a 21-to-1 margin. Of the young voters already registered, 60 per cent have registered as Democrats and 30 per cent as Republicans, Time said.

"Many prognosticators hold that the strength of the youth turnout in 1972 will depend largely on the candidates," the Time article said. "If the major parties offer what the young would see as a Tweedledum-Tweedledee choice between (President) Nixon and a (Hubert) Humphrey, the would be even more turned off than their elders. But if the Democrats put up an inspiring candidate, the young will be more likely to vote."

Ford Foundation Gives To Minorities

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Ford Foundation announced grants totaling $2,225,468 to five community development agencies Sunday to encourage the "move from protest to program" among impoverished minority groups.

Among the recipients of the grants were:

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Church Shouting

COMPTON, Calif. (UPI)—A shouting match at a church resulted Sunday when police were called to remove a controversial Sunday schoolteacher and he refused to go, saying he was a "messenger of God."

Police said Eugene Purnell, 46, described as a minister, had been teaching Sunday school for the past several weeks but his methods apparently aroused the ire of other church members.

He was asked to stop teaching by church leaders but showed up Sunday as usual, authorities said. Police were called and asked the man to leave.

"Not unless you arrest me ... I'm a messenger of God," officers quoted Purnell as saying. He was booked on suspicion of disrupting a religious meetig and failing to comply with orders from an officer.

Jobless Blacks

WATERLOO, Iowa (UPI)—The high unemployment rate among blacks was the cause of an outbreak of violence here during the weekend, a black leader said.

Willie Mosley, chairman of the city's Human Rights Commission, said "the unemployment rate among Waterloo blacks was 16 per cent in June and 14.8 per cent in July." He said "this has definitely caused unrest in the black community which resulted in the disturbances Sunday morning."

Mosley's comments came after a night of sniper fire, firebombing and rock throwing in the city's predominantly black East Side.

China Trip Omen

DALLAS (UPI)—When President Nixon visits Communist China he will be greeted by humiliation, insult, blackmail and extortion, according to an official of the Nationalist Chinese government.

Chao Tsu-yu, chairman of Nationalist China's Vocational Assistance Commission for Retired Servicemen, told the 72nd annual Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW) convention Sunday Nixon's visit will not help to find peace in Southeast Asia.

Maximum Security

BOISE, Idaho (UPI)—Sixteen convicts were locked in the Idaho state prison's maximum security cellblock today as officials sought the killer of an inmate who had helped quell a recent riot.

Ada County Sheriff Paul Bright said questioning of the 16 men yielded some "valuable evidence." But he declined to give details.

William H. Butler, 28, a convicted murderer from Bayonne, N.J., was stabbed to death Saturday night. His body was found wrapped in a mat in the prison's gymnasium.

State correction director Raymond May said as many as four convicts might be involved in the slaying. He said Butler apparently was the target on an attack because of his peacemaking efforts during Tuesday's riot, in which several buildings were firebombed and two other inmates knifed.

Black Caucus

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI)—The newly formed Southern Black Caucus ended its first meeting Sunday with its leaders urging delegates to steer away from commitment to 1972 presidential candidates.

The 328 delegates to the meeting elected Georgia legislator Julian Bond, Mayor Charles Evers of Fayette, Miss., and Dr. John Cashin, chairman of the predominantly black National Democratic Party of Alabama, temporary co-chairman.

The caucus was sharply critical of President Nixon's welfare program, labeling its family assistance proposal a "family destruction plan that would leave welfare recipients worse off than they are now."

Hawaiian Volcano

HILO, Hawaii (UPI)—Geologists reported today increased pressure under Kilauea volcano, which erupted for 10 hours during the weekend spewing 250-foot fountains of glowing lava.

The volcano came to life Saturday and left fiery red lava on the bottom of Kilauea Caldera, a three-mile wide depression where the fountaining occurred.

Internment Without Trial Fans Ulster's Street War

By DONAL O'HIGGINS

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)—The first light of dawn crept across the city skyline when Mrs. Mary Hughes heard the loud knock on the door of her two-story home in the Roman Catholic Ardoyne area.

She nudged her husband, Joseph, into wakefulness, then went downstairs. At the door stood British soldiers in battle dress, rifles in their hands. They had come for her husband, a 47-year-old truck driver.

The scene was being repeated in 299 other homes across the country on last Monday morning.

Internment without trial had come to Northern Ireland again for the first time in 10 years. In the week that followed, some of the worst violence seen in the province in half a century claimed at least 26 lives.

The soldiers took Joseph Hughes, clad in trousers and an undershirt, put him face down in a jeep and drove him to Girdwood military barracks.

Other men were hustled into the barracks every minute, sleepy, ill-clad, frightened, bewildered. They filed past a screening wall through which unseen eyes looked at them through slits in a sacking cover.

"That's him," said a voice. Hughes was taken into another room.

Minutes later he went to Crumlin Road Jail, Belfast's maximum security prison.

News of the dawn swoop spread rapidly through the city. Angry Roman Catholics spilled on to the streets. They threw up barricades around their working class ghettos and prepared to defend them with bombs and guns.

The story was the same in Londonderry, 70 miles to the northwest, In Newry, 10 miles from the border with the Irish Republic, in Armagh, in Coalisland, Enniskillen and Strabane.

Bulldozers were commandeered. Walls were knocked down, trees felled, paving stones ripped up. Bathtubs, bedsteads, armchairs, anything and everything was piled high across the streets.

Troops moved against the barricades and the gunfire started.

Snipers from rooftops fired on the soldiers. Gasoline bombs asiled through the air. Fires began. Soon a thick pall of black smoke hung over the city. Factories, buses, shops were burned.

By nightfall the official death toll had been put at 14. Army and police estimated many more had died. Hundreds had been injured as the outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA) shot it out with British troops across burning barricades.

The dead included a Roman Catholic priest, two women and several teen-agers.

Entire streets went up in flames, house by house. Terrified families in mixed religious areas piled their furniture on the streets. Then they turned and put the torch to their own homes.

"If we cannot live there, no one else will," sobbed a young protestant mother.

They went away leaving pathetic reminders of their family lives behind — a photograph, a cradle, a cowboy outfit. A small tattered army of broken men and women, frightened and hungry kids, clutching their few belongings in brown paper parcels and plastic bags.

Two Sentenced On Driving Count

Two men have been sentenced in Marin Municipal Court for drunken driving.

Sentenced last Tuesday by Judge David Menary Jr. was William Edward Coleman, 36, of 198 Southern Heights Boulevard, San Rafael, arrested July 29 in San Rafael, who was placed on probation for six months and fined $152.

Sentenced Wednesday by Judge Robert A. Smallman was Robert Lee Arnswald, 34, of Santa Rosa, who was arrested Jan. 8 on Highway 101. He was sentenced to the time he has already served, which was one day in Marin County Jail, but he is presently in custody in Sonoma County in connection with another offense.

Kissinger Gets Amvets' Award

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The secret Peking peace mission of Presidential adviser Henry Kissinger earned him the "silver helmet of peace" Sunday in the windup of the annual Amvets convention.

The organization of World War II, Korea and Vietnam veterans passed a resolution "endorsing the new China policy" which President Nixon espoused upon announcing his trip to the Communist nation.

Among the other seven silver awards, the convention voted this year, actor John Wayne won the Americanism helmet, and the defense helmet went to Rep. Edward Hebert, D-L., chairman of the House Armed Services Committee.

NOBEL PRIZE WINNER

Friend Attacked By Secret Police, Soviet Author Says

MOSCOW (UPI)—The way Alexander Solzhenitsyn told it, secret police surveillance and intimidation were bearable. Violence against his friends was not.

Dissident sources said Sunday the 1970 Nobel Prize winner for literature complained in an open letter to the Soviet secret police chief that agents beat up a scientist friend who discovered them inside Solzhenitsyn's country shack.

"For many years I have borne in silence the lawlessness of your employes," the sources quoted Solzhenitsyn's letter to Yuro V. Andropov as saying. "I have been spied upon, had my letters opened, my telephone tapped, my friends intimidated."

Now, the letter alleged, a friend had been physically assaulted.

Andropov is chairman of the Committee for State Security (KGB). The sources said Solzhenitsyn called upon him to identify and discipline the agents who allegedly bloodied the face and tore the clothing of scientist Alexander Gorlov.

According to the sources, Solzhenitsyn's letter, dated Friday, gave this account of the incident:

Gorlov on Thursday evening went to Solzhenitsyn's one-room country shack 60 miles outside Moscow to deliver a spare part for the old Moskvich automobile Solzhenitsyn keeps there. He found the shack door open and heard voices inside.

The 52-year-old Solzhenitsyn was not there but about 10 plainclothes policemen were inside.

Gorlov asked to see their documents. In response, the letter alleged, he was seized with the command:

"Take him into the woods and silence him."

The letter alleged that Gorlov's face was bloodied and his clothing torn by the men. It said neighbors rallying to his aid were dispersed by one of the men who produced a red card and identified himself to them as "Captain Ivanov."

The shack has been a hideaway of the author for many years but recently he has been living and working on the estate of cellist Mstislav Rostropovich.

The letter said Gorlov was taken to a local police station and asked to write down and sign what he was doing at Solzhenitsyn's shack. He did this but refused to promise to keep quiet about the incident, the letter said.

Gorlov was then threatened with arrest and told his studies for advanced scientific degrees might be jeopardized if he told Solzhenitsyn what had happened, the letter said.

Western observers said Solzhenitsyn's letter could embarrass the KGB and, if the alleged attack is true, might lead to a reprimand of the agents involved.

All Alone On BOAC Jumbo Jet

LONDON (UPI)—When airline officials told Harry and Peggy Crang they would be the only passengers on a 358-seat Toronto -to-London jumbo jet, they got that here-we-go-again feeling.

"It was like two lucky people winning a lottery for the second time," said Crang, 69, a Toronto investment broker, after his arrival in London. "The same thing happened to us two years ago on a (Boeing) 707."

Fifteen stewards and stewardesses served them during the six and a half hour flight, for which they each paid only the normal $405.60 first class fare.

The bargain rate for the flight came about because of technical troubles which delayed the British Overseas Airways Corp. (BOAC) 747 at Toronto airport. It was to have taken off Saturday night.

The other 313 passengers decided to take alternate flights arranged by BOAC. But the Crangs decided to wait until the jumbo was repaired.

Brown Attacks Welfare Reform: 'Totally Phony'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Projected savings from the state's new welfare reform act are "totally phony" and the measure actually will cost taxpayers another $100 million, an influential legislator says.

"All that business about 'savings' is phony—absolutely, certified, totally phony," insists Assembly Ways and Means Committee Chairman Willie L. Brown Jr., D-San Francisco.

Backers of the compromise legislation, signed Friday by Gov. Ronald Reagan, predict it will cut welfare spending by $120 million in federal, state and county funds the remainder of this fiscal year and more than $180 million the next year.

"I don't believe it will cut spending," Brown told newsmen Sunday on the KPIX television show Newsmakers.

"He (Reagan) has increased the cost of welfare by about $100 million in this state ... I don't believe he's being totally candid."

The Negro legislator said he voted against the welfare bill—supported by Democrats and Republicans alike — because some black colleagues had made it a "symbol."

But Brown added he regarded the measure as a "fairly decent piece of legislation. I believe it will increase the benefits of welfare recipients and additionally cause people to move off welfare."

The welfare bill and a companion Medi-Cal measure are estimated to save $350 million in federal, state and county money on an annual basis. Brown predicted the Medi-Cal Act will shift some state costs to counties, something Reagan has denied.

Brown's close political allies negotiated the welfare and Medi-Cal compromise with Reagan, but the San Francisco Assemblyman — whose Ways and Means Committee is the screener for all legislation involving money — predicted they will not be as successful on tax reform. That is the big issue facing the legislature when it returns Sept. 7 from a three-week recess.

Brown predicted the legislature will approve a tax increase "in the neighborhood of $500 to $750 million."

Chef found after 104 years.

Dominic's first chef and founder, Dominic Murphy, walked out in a huff in 1856. Following the reasonable theory that a great chef is the heart of a great restaurant, we spent an uncommon amount of time finding a chef as talented as Mr. Murphy before re-opening Dominic's in 1960. We would like to take this opportunity to extend a special invitation to any of the original Dominic's customers who may not yet have noticed that we're back in the fine continental restaurant business again. Strike Hits San Quentin

By MARY LEYDECKER

A "revolutionary ethic" which embodies "the crazy, crazy idea that you can bring about a better world by killing" was blamed today for the violence which has plagued San Quentin Prison for almost a month.

Most recent developments in the strife-ridden prison, according to Associate Warden James W. L. Park, were the stabbing of a guard Saturday night and a strike this morning by approximately 450 inmates.

Correctional officer Robert Laurie, 24, was reported in good condition today with a stomach wound he suffered in "an unprovoked assault" by a convict, Park said.

The stabbing, done with a typical handmade prison knife, occurred at about 8:45 p.m. when men in the east cell block, a "lockup area" where some of the prison's more difficult men are held, were let out in order to get haircuts.

Laurie grappled with his assailant and recovered the knife, but his attacker escaped. Park said three men were being held for questioning today, but none was the prime suspect.

Today "rumbles of a strike" which Park said had been going on for about a week materialized when many men from the east and south blocks returned to their cells rather than go to work at prison jobs.

"You can't have a strike without violence," the associate warden said. In order to protect men who did not want to participate in the strike, additional guards were on duty today and feeding schedules were changed.

Park estimated, however, that perhaps 200 of the strikers only stayed in their cells because of threats from other prisoners.

Park called the stabbings, which have caused the deaths of a guard and a prisoner, "an outburst of nastiness under the guise of a revolution."

He emphasized that the majority of San Quentin's inmates "just want to do their time without any hassles," but that a small but increasing minority are believers in "nihilistic violence."

The revolutionaries who believe that "talking does no good" are whipped up by persons both inside and outside the prison in Park's opinion.

Again emphasizing that most prisoners are not "destructive people," Park explained that California's prisons are getting higher and higher percentages of very difficult persons because of state policies.

What he meant was that the state offers bonuses to counties for keeping convicted felons in the home communities by placing them on probation, either with or without county jail sentences.

Most of the men entering the state prison system now, are either very violent persons or TELLS NEW POLICY — President Nixon's chief economic spokesman, Treasury Secretary John Connally, explained at an hour-long news conference in Washington this morning that the government will rely on 'economic patriotism' backed up by potential $5,000 fines to enforce its freeze on wages, prices and rents.

(UPI Telephoto)

Nixon Orders Wage, Price, Rent Freeze

Temporary Action Also Increases Import Tax

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon swiftly geared up his Cabinet today to carry out his drastic new economic game plan featuring an immediate 90-day wage-price-rent freeze at home and an unofficial devaluation of the dollar that stirred shock waves in money markets abroad.

The Cabinet session at the White House preceded issuance of a formal executive order by Nixon clamping controls on wages, prices and rents until at least Nov. 12 in a momentous move to check the cycle of unemployment and inflation that have plagued his presidency.

(See related stories, page 26.)

Coupled with the decision to let the dollar "float" on the international scene was Nixon's sudden announcement Sunday he was imposing an additional 10 per cent tax on an array of foreign imports, and asking Congress to cut excise taxes on American-made autos and act urgently to give tax cuts to individuals and corporations.

Nixon's new economic course won immediate political points at home, including praise from many Democrats —even potential contenders against him in 1972.

The Democratic-controlled Congress which gave standby authority to impose the wage-price controls against his wishes last year was in recess. But on its return on Sept. 8, Nixon's request for a new battery of weapons to fight the economic battle was expected to dominate the rest of the session.

The cuts in income, business and auto excise taxes would total an estimated $6.3 billion, aimed at stimulating industry and jobs.

He also told the nation he intended to cut spending in his next budget by $5 billion mainly by reductions in the government payroll.

Nixon called his program "the most comprehensive new economic policy to be undertaken by this nation in four decades."

The first immediate visible impact came from abroad.

Britain, Switzerland, Japan, West Germany and other nations stepped in to prevent the value of the dollar from plunging in their money markets, either by suspending trading or by stepping in to support the price of the dollar. More than 300 million dollars were traded on the Japanese exchange during morning trading.

Although Nixon did not use the word "devaluation" in his address, his action in floating the dollar essentially amounted to devaluation.

Tourists were the first Americans to feel the pinch of Nixon's dollar policies. Leading Rome hotels refused to deal in dollars and in Switzerland, the national bank limited to $30 a day the amount of money tourists could exchange.

The announcement was as dramatic a domestic step as his announced trip to China is internationally. His action could touch the life of every American.

"We will break the back of inflation," the President pledged in his hastily arranged radio-television address Sunday night in which he abandoned the frequently-expresseddistaste for controls acquired as a young lawyer working for the Office of Price Administration during the World War II era.

He called upon the "greatness of a great people" to make his program work voluntarily with a few hundred federal overseers but with the threat of injunctions and a $5,000 maximum fine for every transaction which violates the controls.

Treasury Secretary John B. Connally Jr., the practical politician whose advice appears to have overruled the academic doctrine of Nixon's former counsellors, called a news conference today to answer a host of questions arising from the new course of action.

Nixon's chief economic critic in Congress, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., praised Nixon's action but Sen. George S. Mc-

Patriotism, Fines Should Enforce Freeze — Connally

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Treasury Secretary John B. Connally said Monday the administration will rely on the public's economic patriotism —backed up by potential $5,000 fines —to enforce its freeze on wages, prices and rents.

In an hour-long televised news conference, Connally appealed to bankers and other lending institutions to hold the line or reduce interest rates even though the cost of credit was not covered by the President's freeze order.

Connally said there was no similar freeze on business profits because "the profits of American businesses have declined over the years to unacceptable levels."

He said the program President Nixon announced Sunday night had been under discussion at the White House for weeks, even though Connally and other spokesmen had denied such a step was under consideration.

But he said absolute secrecy was necessary to head off price increases that otherwise would have been ordered in advance of the freeze.

Connally was asked if he considered Nixon's program to be an admission of failure of previous economic policy.

"The American people would think they had a dolt for a President if they thought they had one who would take a position and never change it," replied the secretary, whom Nixon has designated as his chief economic spokesman.

He said the freeze would

Ellsberg Expected To Plead Innocent

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Daniel Ellsberg, who takes full responsibility for leaking Pentagon papers to news media, appeared before a U.S. magistrate today preparatory to entering an innocent plea to an indictment charging unauthorized use of the secret documents on U.S.-Vietnam relations.

The pale-looking former government economist stood before U.S. Magistrate Ralph Geffen in a federal courtroom for only a few minutes and was ordered to appear for arraignment later in the day (5 p.m. edt) in the court of U.S. District Judge Matthew Byrne.

Byrne's name was selected by lot from among federal judges here. Geffen asked Ellsberg a series of questions relating to his identity and whether he understood his constitutional rights.

Ellsberg, 40, appeared alert and confident as he answered "yes" to the question about constitutional rights. In answer to another question, Ellsberg said he did not want the indictment read to him in open court.

Ellsberg was greeted outside the courthouse and in the room by numerous persons supporting him. He was accompanied by his wife, Patricia.

Before the proceedings, began, Ellsberg told a UPI reporter he admits "making public the documents involved.

"As I have said I will take full responsibility for this."

One of his attorneys said he will plead innocent on the ground that he feels he did not violate the law by copying the papers made available to him when he worked at the Rand Corporation, a so-called "think tank" in nearby Santa Monica.

When asked whether he felt he had helped lead the United States toward peace in Vietnam, he said:

"Everything I have done for the past several years has been toward that end."

He also said he was "delighted" President Nixon has declassified some World War II documents and hoped he would get around to doing the same thing with Vietnam papers.

Ellsberg "will make an appearance and will enter a plea of innocent, of course," said one of Ellsberg's attorneys, Harvard Law School Professor Leonard B. Boudin.

When he was arrested, and in public appearances since then, Ellsberg admitted that he leaked to newsmen the classified study of the origins of the Vietnam War commissioned by the Pentagon. He had access to it as a researcher for a Rand Corp. "Think tank".

"All these actions were clearly in contradiction to security regulations," Ellsberg said at the time.

"Nevertheless, I felt as an American citizen, a responsible American citizen, I could no longer cooperate in concealing this information from the American public.

"I did this clearly at my own jeopardy. I am prepared to answer to all the consequences of these decisions...wouldn't you

Assessment Rolls Show Big Jump

Four cities and five school districts received news today that their assessment rolls for 1971-72 had grown more than 15 per cent above last year's totals, reported Marin County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell.

Nine special districts in the county also scored assessment roll increases of more than 15 per cent, Mitchell said.

The gains should allow the cities and districts to reduce their tax rates unless their budgets soared above last year's spending, Mitchell commented.

Mitchell will present the final assessment roll figures to the board of supervisors tomorrow. The totals contain valuations of state-assessed public utility properties that were made official today from Sacramento.

Utility rolls declined in most of Marin's taxing jurisdictions, Mitchell noted.)

Countywide, the final property assessment roll including the utilities, is a record $715,905,185, a gain of 12.7 per cent over last year's $635,074,736, Mitchell said.

The city of Tiburon gained 17.6 per cent in valuation. Corte Madera, 17.4 per cent; Novato, 16.4 per cent, and Mill Valley 15.6 per cent.

Among the school districts, Lagunitas showed a property valuation rise of 22.6 per cent; Nicasio, 22.2 per cent; Larkspur 16.5 per cent and Kentfield and Mill Valley each 15.1 per cent, Mitchell reported.

Part of the assessment roll increases resulted from legislation requiring each county to increase its assessment ratio to 25 per cent of market value, in Marin's case from the 23 per cent formerly used. This, Mitchell noted, accounted for about two-thirds of the increase in each jurisdiction in Marin. New building and reappraisals of property accounted for the rest of the increases in the city and district rolls, Mitchell explained.

Discounting the mandated increase in assessment ratio, the remaining 4.1 per cent increase in the assessed valuation countywide is the smallest rise in more than a decade, Mitchell's figures showed.

The final assessment rolls for 1971-72 also showed a continuing shift of tax base weight to the cities. Mitchell reported the valuation inside cities has grown to 68.1 per cent of the Marin total; unincorporated area property holders now own 31.9 per cent of the total. Last year the ratio was 67.6 per cent to 32.4 per cent.

New total assessment rolls and percentage gains for Marin's 11 cities announced today included:

San Rafael, $153,660,614, up 10.8 per cent; Novato, $70,670,080, up 16.4 per cent; Belvedere, $18,789,412, up 11.6 per cent; Corte Madera, $30,663,629, up 17.4 per cent; Fairfax, $16,840,854, up 8.8 per cent (the smallest gain of any of the cities); Larkspur, $36,917,772, up 14.5 per cent; Mill Valley, $45,992,038, up 15.6 per cent; Ross, $12,710,978, up 12.5 per cent; San Anselmo, $34,033,285, up 9.1 per cent; Sausalito, $38,067,689, up 11.7 per cent, and Tiburon, $28,850,830, up 17.6 per cent.

Total assessed valuation of the cities is $487,197,181; for the unincorporated areas it was $228,708,004, Mitchell reported.

How Nixon Plan Will Affect U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—What President Nixon's new economic policies will mean to:

—Tenants: Your landlord may not raise the rent until Nov. 12, even if he had previously scheduled an increase to take effect sometime before then. He could be fined $5,000 if he disregards the directive.

—Shoppers: You will be able to buy most goods, except food and some imports, at the same price until Nov. 12. Since grocery prices change little from week to week shoppers probably will notice little change. But the freeze does permit retailers to charge a price equal to the highest price any item was being sold for during the 30 days before the President stepped in. Thus, if coffee fluctuated between 90 cents and $1.10 per pound, the grocer could charge $1.10, but no more, until Nov. 12. A new 10 per cent duty on some imports will raise their prices by that amount. Violaters would be subject to the same $5,000 fine.

—Workers: Your salary will remain the same, unless you suffer a pay cut, until Nov. 12. Even if you had been scheduled for a pay raise, it will be put off until Nov. 12 and will not have to be paid retroactively.

—Tourists: U.S. travelers going overseas may find their U.S. dollar buys fewer francs, lira, yen or whatever the foreign currency in question may be.

—Car buyers: The price of a new American car purchased from Sunday on will drop by an average of $200, if Congress agrees to repeal the 7 per cent excise tax and if the automakers pass the savings onto the consumer as they say they will. Detroit had planned price hikes this fall but they may not be made until after the freeze is over. Foreign cars will cost more because of the 10 per cent duty and because of the cheaper U.S. dollars overseas; but part of the duty hike would be nullified by the dropping of the 7 per cent excise tax.

—Farmers: Farm prices are not subject to the freeze. For this reason supermarket prices will not remain stable, although the change is expected to be slight during the 90-day period.

—Taxpayers: If Congress agrees to it, less money will be deducted from your paycheck starting Jan. 1. The personal exemption, which rose to $650 this year, would increase to $750 next year, allowing a taxpayer to deduct that much for himself and each dependent when he fills out his tax form. The standard deduction, used by taxpayers who do not itemize their expenses, would

IRA Faction: New Government Formed

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)—The militant "provisional" wing of the outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA) said today it is forming its own "parliament" and "government" for Northern Ireland.

The IRA, which Premier Brian Fulkner blames for the bloodshed which has swept the British province, named some of its "cabinet" members in an announcement from its clandestine headquarters in Belfast.

It did so as Roman Catholic workers across Northern Ireland's six counties held a protest strike against government reinstitution of internment without trial as a measure to curb IRA activities.

The "provisionals" said their government planned to function underground but would meet "the world's press" in about two weeks. They said the "cabinet" will be paid in cash raised from Irish "exiles all over the world."

The announcement also set forth IRA plans for a continuing campaign of force aimed at driving Northern Ireland out of Britain and into reunification with predominantly Catholic Irish Republic.

From now on, it said, the IRA will concentrate on shooting soldiers, police and detectives, and planting bombs in public buildings—basically the same tactics used before last week's eruption of full-scale fighting.

"We are in a position to wage urban guerrilla warfare on a 24-hour-a-day scale indefinitely," a spokesman said.

Today's IRA announcement said the "parliament" will have a membership of 40. The six-man "cabinet" will be headed by a president.

They said they would seek

THE WRONG MR. SMITH

"What's in a name?" the Bard asked.

Plenty, says Chester Smith of 17 Brookside Drive, San Anselmo.

Smith told the Independent-Journal today that he has been plagued by irate phone callers since the I-J on Saturday ran a page one picture of conflicting peace and hammer-and-sickle symbols on a hillside overlooking Highway 101.

The callers have accused him of being the Chester Smith reported in the caption to have told the I-J that the sign was the work of a group of patriots called "Our Boys."

The hammer-and-sickle has since been smeared from the hillside of Fagundes Ranch in San Rafael.

Smith said he is a veteran of World War II and the Korean War and a member in good standing of the American Legion. He said he had no connection with the sign or its subsequent appearance in the I-J.

Market Flooded By Huge Buying

From the opening, buying orders flooded trading posts on the New York Stock Exchange floor, and by the end of the first hour a record 8,560,000 shares had changed hands. The previous first hour high was 7,850,000 shares traded last Feb. 8.

The hectic buying pace was too much for the exchange's high speed tickers, with the result that they were behind floor activity for most of the first hour.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which records movement of 30 top grade issues, soared almost 18 points, one of its biggest hourly gains on record.

Heavy Fighting Near DMZ

SAIGON (UPI)—South Vietnamese troops backed by heavy U.S. air and artillery strikes fought today along the slopes below a hilltop base near the Demilitarized Zone that was overrun Sunday by North Vietnamese infantrymen, field reports said.

Two U.S. Navy destroyers also steamed to positions off the demarcation line to support the the South Vietnamese defenders with salvos from their five-inch guns. Ten U.S. armored personnel carriers (APCS) went to Mai Loc, on the western flank of the defense line, to help defenders there.

An American adviser and 50 South Vietnamese marines were rescued by helicopter from the mountainside and flown to nearby Fire Base Sarge.

South Vietnamese military spokesmen said 31 government marines were killed in the fighting. They reported 200 Communists killed.

Field sources said most of the 650-man South Vietnamese battalion stationed at the base were away on patrol when the Communist assault began Saturday night, and only 150 were there when it was overrun in hand-to-hand fighting.

The U.S. command announced the withdrawal of 1,500 more GIs during last week, the smallest weekly withdrawal in more than six months. It reduced U.S. troop strength in Vietnam to 222,900, the lowest level since the end of February, 1966.

A U.S. Air Force F4 Phantom fired rockets and cannons at an antiaircraft gun 15 miles inside North Vietnam in the 49th "protective reaction" strike this year, the U.S. command said Sunday. Results of the strike were unknown. Spokesmen said the gun had fired on unarmed reconnaissance plane.

A regiment of South Korean troops reported killing 103 Communists during the weekend in a raid on a base 12 miles north of Tuy Hoa air base. Spokesmen said it was the heaviest fighting of the year for the Korean toops, who lost only three wounded in 13 battles during the two-day encounter.

UPI correspondent Stewart Kellerman reported from Quang Tri combat base near the DMZ that the South Vietnamese suffered at least 100 casualties, including wounded, in the fightin on Nui Ba Ho Sunday and today.

"We're moving out of here," a U.S. Marine captain, the only American adviser with the battalion, said in his last radio message to the Quand Tri headquarters before the base fell Sunday in fierce hand-to-hand fighting. "Wed'd better get going. God, we're surrounded. This is Hell. This is Hell."

Fire Base Sarge, to the southeast, and Fire Base Fuller, to the north were also under heavy attack Sunday night in the heaviest fighting of a five-day-old Communist offensive along the DMZ defense line.

The Cambodian high command in Phnon Penh demanded that the South Vietnamese withdraw most of its task force in Cambodia and close a military base because of complaints of atrocities against Cambodian citizens.

Cambodian military spokesman said the demand was made personally to the South Vietnamese high command in Saigon by Cambodian Col. Srey Meas, government commander of the Neak Luong region southeast of Phnom Penh where the South Vietnamese base is located.

South Vietnamese government and military spokesmen denied receiving such a request.

U.S. spokesmen in Saigon said B52s dropped at least 90 tons of bombs a half mile from the summit of Nui Ba Ho mountain today in support of the embattled 650-man South Vietnamese marine battalion.

Earlier the government marines had laid down a screen of smoke grenades to mark the line between them and the Communists for the benefit of supporting air strikes.

U.S. sources in Saigon said Sunday that American B52s have been making unannounced strikes against Communist supply lines in the southern half of the DMZ since early August in the wake of a massive North Vietnamese buildup in South Vietnam's northernmost provinces. They are the first such raids since the 1968 halt in the bombing of North Vietnam.

Park Vandalized

Vandals damaged barbecue pits, screens and pine trees at McNear park on Saturday, Petaluma police reported. Damage was estimated at $400.

Car Hurts Child In Driveway

A 2-year-old boy was knocked down and injured at 3 p.m. Friday by a car backing out of a Santa Venetia driveway, the California Highway Patrol reported.

Ronald Lee Whitmore of 257 North San Pedro Road apparently was not seen as he ran behind the car driven by Ruth D. Thurston, 48, of 25 Bayo Vista Way, San Rafael.

Mrs. Thurston and the child's mother took the child to Marin Medical Center and then to Marin General Hospital for treatment of head bruises, the patrol reported. The hospital said today the youngster was not admitted and it had no record of him.

U.S. Appeals To Writers On DMZ

SAIGON (UPI)—The U.S. command today asked correspondents to refrain from reporting the exact locations of American units stationed along the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) defense line for the duration of the Communist offensive there.

Military spokesmen said reporting movements after they were completed was within the rules for coverage of military operations and said they contemplated no changes in those rules. But they added "we would ask your cooperation in not pinpointing the locations of U.S. troops along the DMZ without our having to change the rules."

The spokesmen declined to associate the request with the Communist offensive that opened along the DMZ six days ago, but conceded that the new request created "a different situation than the one we had a few days ago" before the offensive began.

DEPENDENTS' BENEFITS

Pentagon Goes Ahead On Pay

WASHINGTON (UPI) —When the draft law expired June 30, so did the government's authority to pay benefits to some dependents of servicemen; but the Pentagon has gone on paying anyway, at the rate of $18 million a month.

Defense officials said they do not plan to stop the payments because they feel it was not the intent of Congress to cut off some 300,000 dependents from their monthly allotments.

The dependents involved are from the families of the lowest-paid servicemen. The authority for the payments died when the draft law expired in a congressional battle over an antiwar provision and a filibuster against the draft question in general.

It does not appear likely that a two-year extension of the draft will clear Congress now much before late September, with an actual start-up of induction machinery a month or more after that.

Pentagon officials said they felt the dependents' pay provision was not an issue in the draft debate, and thus it was the intent of Congress that payments should continue. The officials said they talked with congressional leaders before making their decision.

Technically the Defense Department may be violating the law in another area as well. The expiration of the old law meant that the size of the armed services is now governed by a 1950 law. By that yardstock there are 504,000 men too many in uniform.

Lawyers, however, have said the law refers to "average strengths" rather than ceilings, and covers the whole fiscal year.

In another development Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird said during the weekend that an $80 billion defense budget may be necessary for the business year beginning next July 1.

Defense outlays for the current fiscal year are expected to reach $77.6 billion.

"We need a budget level that is higher than last year because of the pay increases that have come about, the initiatives we are taking on volunteer forces, all of these things," Laird said during a Navy ceremony at Norfolk, Va.

"I feel that this is not the time to make any further reduction in the overall defense budget," he said.

Unofficial Deadline Expires In Mideast

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

An unofficial Egyptian deadline for American efforts to find peace in the Middle East expired at midnight. Political sources in Cairo said it marked a "new phase" in the conflict with Israel.

The deadline was reported by Mohammed Hassanein Heikal, the influential editor of the semi-official Cairo newspaper Al Ahram. It was never officially confirmed by the Egyptian government and Washington denied such a deadline existed.

With the expiration of the deadline, Heikal said Egyptian President Anwar Sadat will feel free to act in his nation's "best interests." Political sources in Cairo said this means a "new phase" in the fight against Israel and added it was likely Egypt would try to raise the issue before U.N. Security Council.

Israel has taken seriously the "deadline" and in Jerusalem Premier Golda Meir and her cabinet met for seven hours to discuss the hard-line statements made recently by Sadat and other government officials.

In other developments, Al Ahram said Egypt was trying to head off the crisis between Jordan and Syria so that the Arab world can concentrate on the fight against Israel. It said Egyptian leaders contacted a number of Arab capitals over the past 24 hours to try to stop the clashes.

"The military buildup along both sides of the border continues and carries the threat of an explosion," Al Ahram said.

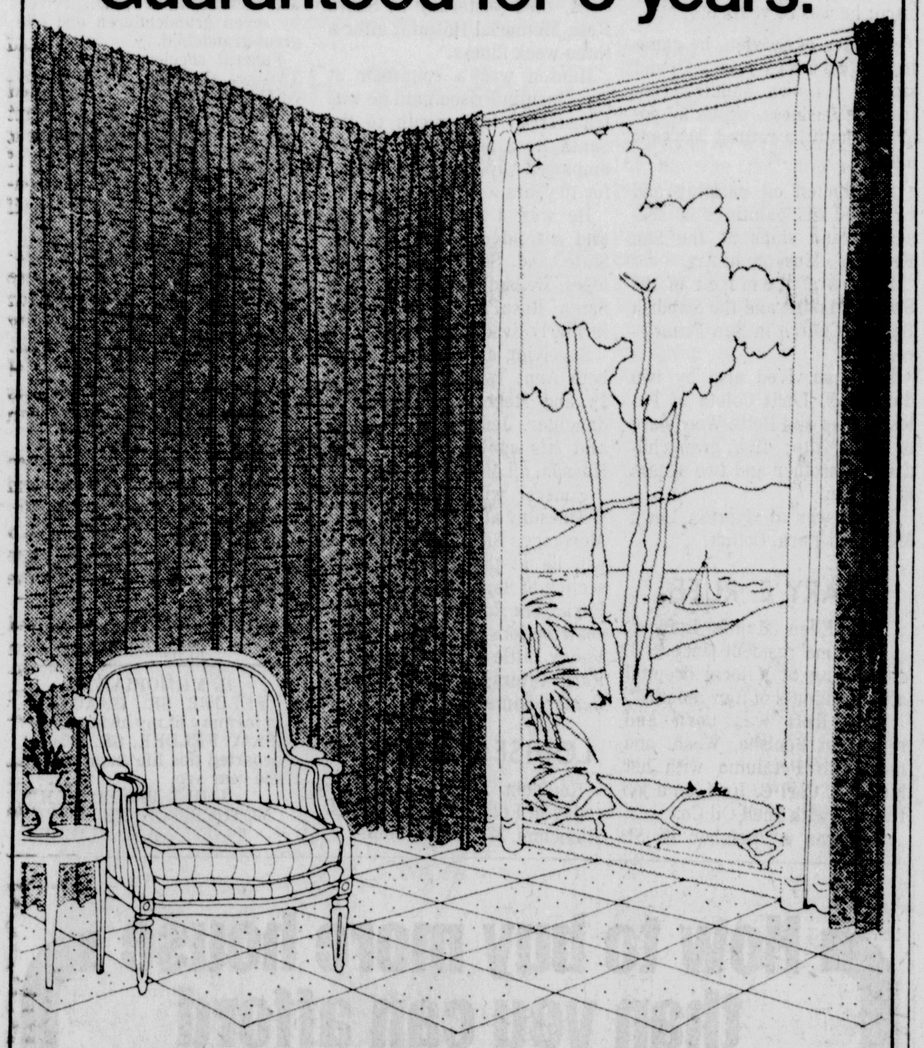

The Jordan-Syria border has been quiet since Friday, when the neighboring nations fought a tank battle and Jordanian officiers said Syrian jets strafed Jordanian positions. The trouble started Wednesday with border skirmishes.

UPI correspondent John Bonar, reporting from Ramtha in northern Jordan, said a European traveler from Syria saw a heavy buildup of Syrian armor just inside the border. The traveler saw some 30 Soviet-built tanks along the three-mile road from the border to Deraa.

He also reported infantry concentrations.

Cairo's Middle East News Agency said Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad has appealed to U.N. Secretary General Thant to intervene in the Israeli-occupied Gaza Strip to protect Palestinians.

ON WAY TO COURT — Daniel Ellsberg, arriving at the federal courthouse in Los Angeles today for his arraignment on charges he violated the law by leaking secret Pentagon papers to news media, told newsmen he would plead innocent.

go to prison to help end the war?"

If convicted, Ellsberg could be sentenced to up to 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine. He is specifically charged with two offenses—"unauthorized possession" and "converting to his own use" what the indictment described as "executive branch documents classified top secret."

The publication of portions of the 47-volume study in The New York Times, Washington Post, Los Angeles Times and other newspapers caused a nationwide uproar and led to an historic confrontation between the government and the press.

The study was seized on by some commentators as proof the government consistently and deliberately lied to the American public as the United States became more and more enmeshed in the war in Indochina, made crucial decisions without realizing their consequences and ignored warnings from within the government.

The government's efforts to forbid newspapers to publish the documents wound up in a battle before the Supreme Court. The justices ruled 6-3 in favor of the press.

Ellsberg has been free on $50,000 bond since he surrendered to the U.S. attorney's office in Boston June 28, three days after a warrant was issued in Los Angeles for his arrest after indictment by a grand jury.

Only last week Ellsberg told the Southern Christian Leadership Conference in New Orleans "I hope that the court and jury will find that I haven't violated any law and that I won't have to go to prison. But if they don't find that way, I'll go to prison.

" ... I'll be in good company and I'll be proud to go. Greater men than I, including Martin Luther King and the Berrigan brothers have gone to prison over the same things."

Ellsberg's lawyers tried earlier to block his arraignment in Los Angeles by having the warrant for his arrest declared illegal on the grounds the government may have used evidence obtained by wiretapping to get it.

A federal judge in Boston turned down the attempt Aug. 5, ordering Ellsberg to appear for Monday's session, and telling his lawyers they could raise the wiretap issue in Los Angeles.

Ellsberg is represented by Boudin and Charles R. Nesson, also of the Harvard Law School. Boudin was one of Dr. Benjamin Spock's lawyers at his 1968 trial for conspiracy against the draft laws, and is the father of Kathy Boudin, sought since an explosion destroyed a town house in New York's Greenwich Village connected with the violent Weatherman SDS faction.

Heading the prosecution team is assistant attorney general Paul J. Vincent.

It was expected there would be a delay of weeks or months before Ellsberg's case goes to trial. There could be lengthy pre-trial hearings.

those with long, long crime records.

"You can't call this a crime school," Park said about San Quentin. "Most of our people are thoroughly schooled in crime by the time they get here."

As to what prison officials intend to do about the violence in which three guards have been stabbed within the last week, Park said, "We are simply not going to just sit here and have our staff assassinated.

"If the knifings continue, we're going to be forced to go back and run the place like an old-fashioned prison.

"If we have to move everybody in groups of 10, we'll do that."

This morning, he said, officials found a torn-up piece of paper containing 14 "demands" by prisoners. "We glued it together and read it, but we don't know if it's the official position or not," Park said.

The demands started with a request that indeterminate sentences be abolished and ranged through complaints about food, haircuts and recreational privileges.

Park commented that "the legislature instituted the indeterminate sentence because of abuses by some courts of the determinate sentence."

He also said that prison officials believe that privileges such as television should be reserved for "responsible people."

One demand that Park wholeheartedly agreed with was "that all prisoners be treated as human beings."

"I think that everyone in the whole world ought to be treated as a human being," he concluded. "We're trying to do that here."

also rise from its current 13 per cent on $1,500, whichever is larger, to 15 per cent or $2,000, again whichever is larger.

—Bankers: Interest rates including mortgage rates, would not be affected.

—Businessmen: If Congress approves, you may subtract from your corporate income taxes this year whatever you spent on new equipment or machinery, up to a total of 10 per cent of your tax bill. The figure would fall to 5 per cent next year and in following years. And the President is urging you to freeze your stock dividends at previous levels until Nov. 12.

— Government workers: There will be a 5 per cent reduction in the federal work force, and some employes could lose their jobs. Nixon did not specify how or where the cutback would be made.

—Violators: The new policies would be overseen by a small government office with most of the emphasis on voluntary compliance and public watchdogging. There are no criminal penalties for violators but a 1970 law permits a fine up to $5,000.

apply to all wages, prices and rents, and would forbid wage and price increases previously contracted for but not yet in effect. Although he declined to discuss specifics, he said the freeze would prohibit the auto industry from charging higher prices on the early 1972 models than it was charging for 1971 cars.

Connally said some adjustments of the freeze might be made in cases of extreme hardship, but that these would be reserved for "dire" circumstances.

He said he was convinced the public would go along with the freeze. But he noted that a $5,000 fine is provided for each violation of it.

Asked if the fine would amount to a mere slap on the wrist for big business, Connally replied, "It is inconceivable to me that a major American company would violate this wage-price freeze. No reasonable American business enterprise would want to incur the wrath of the American people."

Connally said Nixon plans to meet Tuesday with congressional leaders to discuss the steps, but that there was no need to summon the full House and Senate back from vacation to deal with the President's proposals.

Congress returns to work after Labor Day.

As for the dollar, Connally refused to describe the President's action as devaluation, although he conceded that its value probably would decline in relation to strong European currencies.

Asked to assess the reaction of foreign governments to the steps, Connally said he assumed they were "delighted that the U. S. has faced up to the facts and faced up to reality."

School Goals To Be Eyed In Fairfax

The Fairfax School District board will find out tomorrow night how well the goals it adopted in March have been met.

At its meeting at 7:45 p.m. in the district office, 58 Park Road, the board will hear how well the goals are being achieved from a committee of six teachers, a principal and a psychologist, according to Gwyneth McGee, board secretary.

The board will also consider the city of Fairfax's plan to dump debris and cover with dirt fill on the White Hill School property.

A boundary dispute, arising from the construction of a private fence near White Hill School, will be aired, Mrs. McGee said.

Govern, D-S.D., called it "madness."

Organized labor's initial reaction was hostile, too, chiefly because the wage-price freeze did not control interest rates or profits. Many businessmen cautiously welcomed Nixon's action. A. W. Clausen, president of California Bank of America, the world's largest, said the President had bought time with his wage-price freeze, tax cut, increased import duties and de facto devaluation of the dollar to find long-term solutions to the nation's lingering economic problems.

Detroit's auto makers were delighted with the prospect of an end to the 7 per cent auto excise tax and higher prices ofr competing foreign cars.

To the average American, Nixon's program meant that scheduled pay increases, even if previously negotiate, would have to be foregone until Nov. 12; that most prices and all rents would not climb for 90 days; that the prices of foreign goods would climb, reflecting the 10 per cent surcharge Nixon imposed on half the $45 billion worth of goods America imports each year; and — if Congress goes along — income taxes would fall and withholding shrink in 1972 and the price of domestic cars would drop 7 per cent effective retroactive to Sunday.

Nixon said his program would bring "a new prosperity without war."

His advisers have often blamed the Vietnam War for inflation and pointed to Nixon's withdrawals from Vietnam in explaining climbing unemployment.

Inflation has averaged about 66 per cent this year. The unemployment rate, with 5.5 million workers idle and some states suffering 10 per cent depression-levelunemployment, has been hovering about 6 per cent all year. These rates are 50 per cent higher than the administration's goals. Politicians of both parties have contended they were the chief roadblock to Nixon's re-election.

Outlining his program for the "new prosperity," the President:

—Employed authority given him by Congress to freeze salaries and wages of all people employed in this country and to freeze most prices at no more than their highest level over the past 30 days. Rents were also frozen and workers scheduled for a raise within the next 90 days must take a loss. Corporations were urged to freeze their stock dividends.

—Imposed a 10 per cent surcharge on the duties on about one half of all imports, exempting those which enter duty-free, chiefly coffee, fish, raw materials, and those which enter under a quota —oil, meat, sugar, dairy products and cotton textiles. The surcharge will add $2.1 billion a year to the wholesale prices of imported goods, It will keep out some imports, making them uncompetitive in price, thus helping stem the flow of dollars abroad but also raising domestic prices when the wage-price freeze ends.

—Announced that the United States will no longer buy gold at the $35 per ounce price fixed in the early 1930s and in effect said he would allow the dollar to "float," finding its own value in relation to foreign currencies. This was expected to drive down the value of the dollar, lowering the price of American exports but having no substantial effects at home.

Nearly every step Nixon outlined had been ruled out by him at a news conference Aug. 4. He said then he was "unalterably opposed" to permanent wage-price controls, "a mortal blow to the United States as a first class economic power." He had also ruled out tax cuts.

Accidental Gunshot Victim Recovering

A 55-year-old Tiburon man who accidentally shot himself in the chest while cleaning a gun was reported in fair condition today in the intensive care unit of Marin General Hospital.

diplomatic recognition from London and abroad.

Gunmen wounded a member of an army patrol near the Irish Republic border today and three men kidnaped and beat a Londonderry policeman. They later released him and he was taken to a hospital over the border in the Irish Republic town of Letterkenny, where armed detectives were placed at his door.

The strikes were in response to a call by 13 opposition members of the Northern Ireland Parliament for a civil disobedience campaign to protest the internment without trial policy that was imposed a week ago in an attempt to break the strength of the outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA).

Government officials in Londonderry said only about 20 per cent of the 90 postmen had reported for work, forcing closing of several of the city's post offices. Port officials said most of the 100 Catholic employes, who compose most of the work force at the city docks, stayed home.

In Dublin, the more moderate wing of the IRA reiterated its condemnation of a plan announced last week by the organization's militant "provisionals" to wage a bombing campaign in England.

"Such a move would merely inflame the sectarian differences and alienate the English working class movement from the struggle of their Irish comrades," an IRA statement said.

A British army spokesman said a soldier was shot today while on patrol at Cullaville, County Armagh, near the border. He was hospitalized with a wound in his jaw. The spokesman said it was not clear whether the shots were fired from the Irish Republic across the border.

In Londonderry, three masked men kidnaped Constable Daniel Barr Sunday night while he was visiting his grandparents in the city's Roman Catholic Bogside area, withnesses said. They said the men were members of the outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA).

An IRA organizer said the policeman would not be released until "at least two or three detainees were allowed out of their internment camps as a trade." However, Barr later was taken to a hospital at Letterkenny across the border in the Irish Republic.

Army intelligence officers today interviewed a teen-age British soldier who said IRA men kidnaped and sentenced him to death, then released him with a warning troops captured in the future would be executed.

Pvt. Thomas Moore, 17, a Roman Catholic, said the IRA men seized him Friday night soon after he went absent without leave (AWOL) from his regiment, the Royal Irish Rangers, a battalion not participating in the security operation.

He gave himself up to police Saturday after appearing at a clandestine news conference surrounded by six men with stocking masks over their heads and pistols in their belts. His face was bruised and caked with blood.

Moore said he want AWOL because he found army life too restrictive. He said he was picked up by the IRA in Belfast's Catholic Lower Falls area and they found Army papers in his civilian clothing.

"I was told I had been sentenced to death," he said. "Later they told me I would be reprieved if I made a deal with them and I agreed."

He said the deal included a promise he would appeal to other Irishmen in the army not to serve in Northern Ireland. He said he also carried a warning for Lt. Gen. Harry Tuzo, commander of British forces in Northern Ireland, that all soldiers captured by the IRA in the future would be executed.

Leaders of the IRA, which seeks to forcibly unite predominantly protestant Northern Ireland with the mainly Catholic Irish Republic, have hinted they might change their tactics following last week's violence to include bombings in Gritish cities and kidnapings.

DOWN AND OUT

When Dale Brainard, 12, of Salem, Ore., collided with Mark Snyder of Mt. Holly, N.J., at Saturday's Soap Box Derby action in Akron, Ohio, the dejected youngster thought it was all over and his attitude showed it. It wasn't though, as pit crews were able to repair his car and the race was re-run, leaving Brainard dejected again — he lost to a girl, Karen Sue Coleman of Portsmouth, Ohio.

Bill To Simplify Tax For Small Business In Hopper

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — A bill to simplify tax laws and regulations governing small businesses has been introduced by Rep. Don H. Clausen, R-Frist District.

Labeled the "Small Business Tax Simplification and Reform Act of 1971, it would authorize a graduated corporate income tax base on an "ability-to-pay" principle, according to a press statement by Clausen. It also would provide a three-year federal tax exemption for new industrial and commercial small businesses, and reinstate a limited investment tax credit.

Clausen said his measure would shift 1 per cent of the income paid by corporations from new and growing companies to the "well-established, large and wealthy corporations which can afford such a miniscule increase."

Southern Support For Wallace Told

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Alabama Gov. George Wallace's vow to continue defiance of federal desegregation orders unless President Nixon issues a nationwide ban on forced busing has drawn the support of two Southern governors.

"George Wallace has drawn a line in the dust and I stand fully with him," said Gov. John Bell Williams of Mississippi.

Louisiana Gov. John McKeithen said he would use "police power or whatever other power I have" to prevent the busing of children to achieve a racial balance in classrooms.

Wallace said if no action is taken by Nixon by Wednesday he will order an end to a federal integration program requiring the busing of white children from Oxford, Ala., to Hobson City, Ala., one of the nation's oldest black communities.

Wallace last week reassigned a white girl, who was being bused 20 miles away, to a school nearer her home and reopened a formerly all-black school. He said he was merely testing the sincerity of Nixon's recent statement that forced busing be held to a minimum.

Gov. Bob Scott of North Carolina has called upon the President to clarify his administration's position on busing.

Scott urged Nixon to hold a meeting of key state and local school officials to "discuss personally and thoroughly with them what he has in mind.

"We have heard a lot about involuntary busing of students during the past week and as a result much confusion exists in the minds of parents, school officials and administrators as to what should be done and can be done under the law," Scott said in a telegram to the President.

Tennessee Gov. Winfield Dunn said he feels a constitutional amendment outlawing busing to achieve racial balance is the best way to meet the issue.

"I am opposed to the concept (of busing)," said Dunn, but added he would "follow the law as it is interpreted."

At Nashville, Tenn., Mayor Beverly Briley said he will ask for a delay in the Sept. 7 opening of schools if he can't stop a federal court order requiring the busing of around 49,000 children.

Vietnamese Set Afire In Protest

SAIGON (UPI)—A South Vietnamese man with an anti-American poster set himself afire in front of the U.S. Public Affairs Office in downtown Saigon today but American military policemen doused the flames and he was taken to a hospital.

The man was tentatively identified as Tran Viet Nghia, 36, a disabled veteran from suburban Bien Hoa. U.S. military police said he was thought to be a Buddhist monk but he was not dressed in monk's robes.

The man was carrying a sign used by a National Assembly candidate that bears a photograph of President Nixon with an Adolf Hitler mustache. It carries the words "Fight the Americans to Save the Country."

don't throw money away

Empty all-aluminum cans are worth money. 10¢ a pound-or about ½¢ each.

Now it really pays to fight litter. Reynolds Aluminum will pay you 10¢ a pound—or about ½¢ each—for every empty all-aluminum beverage can you collect. In fact, we'll go even further. In addition to paying you for empty all-aluminum cans, we'll also pay for frozen aluminum dinner trays and containers, aluminum margarine tubs, aluminum cans for dips, meat products, puddings, custards and other snacks. We'll pay you 10¢ a pound for all the clean household scrap aluminum you bring in.

So stop throwing money away. Start collecting today. You'll be making money for yourself, your club or organization—and at the same time, you'll be helping to keep our city clean.

All-aluminum cans are easy to spot. Many of them say "all-aluminum" right on the can. They have rounded bottoms and they are non-magnetic. A magnet will not stick to the sides. Don't be fooled though, by some easy-open cans that say "aluminum" on top. This does not mean they are all-aluminum.

To help you collect, Reynolds aluminum—and the other companies listed here—have established collection centers throughout the metropolitan area. Bring your empty all-aluminum cans and other clean household scrap aluminum to the one most convenient to you. And start collecting, today.

GAO Hits Pentagon For Funding Civilian Papers

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The General Accounting Office (GAO) has learned that some military installations let local businessmen run profit-making newspapers on the bases with G. I. writers and editors, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., says.

"Not only are local publishers profiting at the expense of the taxpayer," Proxmire said, "the military readers are getting controlled news in contradiction of Defense Department and service regulations concerning civilian enterprise publications."

Proxmire said in a statement that at his request the GAO examined the arrangements under which unofficial newspapers on military bases are published. The study covered 6 bases and 185 civilian enterprise papers. About 750 armed forces papers were not included.

Under these "civilian enterprise publications," the contractor often pays the printing costs and sells advertising and often an all-military staff gathers and writes the news and puts the paper together.

Proxmire asked for the GAO investigation last year after learning that airmen at Lackland Air Force Base, Tex., were ordered to clip a picture of a general from 10,000 copies of the base newspaper, because of complaints over the cropping of the picture.

Military regulation says military or defense civilian workers "may not serve on the editorial staff nor may their names be placed in the masthead" of the publications. Yet, the GAO said, "at one base the civilian enterprise newspaper's entire content, with the exception of the advertisements, was compiled by military personnel."

"Although the civilian enterprise publishers theoretically control the content of their publications, in actual practice the military bases have virtually total control," the GAO report said.

The GAO recommended that the Pentagon check its contracts with the civilian publishers and get as much money out of them as "practicable for its services." The GAO also questioned the extent to which GI's are working on the papers' staffs.

Laird Sees Defense Cost Rising Again Next Year

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI)—Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird says that despite U.S. withdrawals from Vietnam, the nation's military budget probably will rise again next year.

Standing on the hanger deck of the USS Independence during a ceremony marking the change in command of the 2nd Fleet Saturday, he said the military cutback was a major contributor in the nation's unemployment rate.

The administration has reduced the number of men in the uniform services as well as civilian employees in the Defense Department and civilians employed by private defense contractors.

Altogether 2.3 million jobs have been eliminated. At the same time unemployment has risen by 2 million.

"The actions, taken to make the transitions from war to peace, unquestionably account for an important part of the increase in unemployment," Laird said.

During his flight to Norfolk, Laird discussed with newsmen the budget for fiscal 1973, which begins next July 1.

"I feel that this is not the time to make any further reduction in the overall defense budget," he said. Asked if an $80 billion defense budget was likely, Laird said "I certainly think in order to maintain our military strength a figure in that area is correct."

During Laird's first full year at the Pentagon, he cut the Johnson administration's proposals for fiscal 1970 to $77.9 billion. Fiscal 1971, spending was reduced to $75.5 billion, but this year outlays are expected to rise to $77.6 billion.

Nixon has cut U. S. forces in Vietnam from the Johnson administration high of 543,400 men to 224,400 as of last week. By Dec. 1 the U. S. forces in Vietnam will be down to 184,000.

"We need a (budget) level that is higher than last year because of the pay increases that have come about, the initiatives we are taking on volunteer forces, all of these things," Laird said.

The cost of the 2.7 million servicemen and 1.1 million civilian employees account for 52 per cent of the defense budget.

Novato's Old Cemetery To Get New Facelifting

By THERON A. NEWELL

Novato's Pioneer Memorial Cemetery, long an eyesore of broken and scattered tombstones, will at last get a facelifticg.

The city council this year for the first time, has budgeted $26,000 for the cemetery, half to be city funds and half to come from the department of Housing and Urban Development, according to Edward W. Adams, parks and recreation director.

"If the city does not get the federal funds, then it will do $13,000 worth of work on the cemetery this year," Adams said.

Present plans are to restore many of the graves in such a manner that they will not be vulnerable to vandals, Adams said.

The top of the small hill will be restored with concrete outliners for the graves. Tombstones will be laid flush in the ground wherever possible. There will be concrete paths so that visitors may walk around the main portion of the hill.

A stone wall will be constructed around the path which circles the hillside.

Tombstones in the lower slopes will also be laid flush in the ground so that grass can be planted over the graves and mowed, Adams said. He hopes that this plan will stop the vandalism in the cemetery without erecting the chain link fence many have advocated.

The original cemetery was established in the 1890s by Fred Sweetser on a small knoll at Simmons Lane just north of Novato Boulevard. The first graves were placed in a circle on top of the knoll and in the course of time covered the slopes of the knoll.

Well before 1957 when Gerald T. Gooch of Russell and Gooch Funeral Chapel in Mill Valley purchased the cemetery from Sweetser and Burdell heirs, the cemetery had fallen into disrepair and was overgrown with brush.

It was to remain an eyesore, however, and a target of vandals until Sept. 29, 1963 when a group of young people from the Seventh Day Adventist Church cleaned the knoll, restored and labeled 44 gravestones.

But within a few days, vandals had tipped over most of the restored gravestones.

The Novato City Council, disgusted with the situation, decided to take the cemetery under its official wing. It gave notice of abandonment on June 29, 1964 that the cemetery could no longer be used for burial and in due course took possession of it.

The city council, however, soon proved as reluctant as previous owners to spend money on the cemetery.

With the aid of federal funds from HUD, the city bought the adjoining six acres a few months later, making the nine acre Pioneer Memorial Park.

City crews did clean the brush in the cemetery, but vandalism continued and the council each year failed to budget funds to repair the depredations.

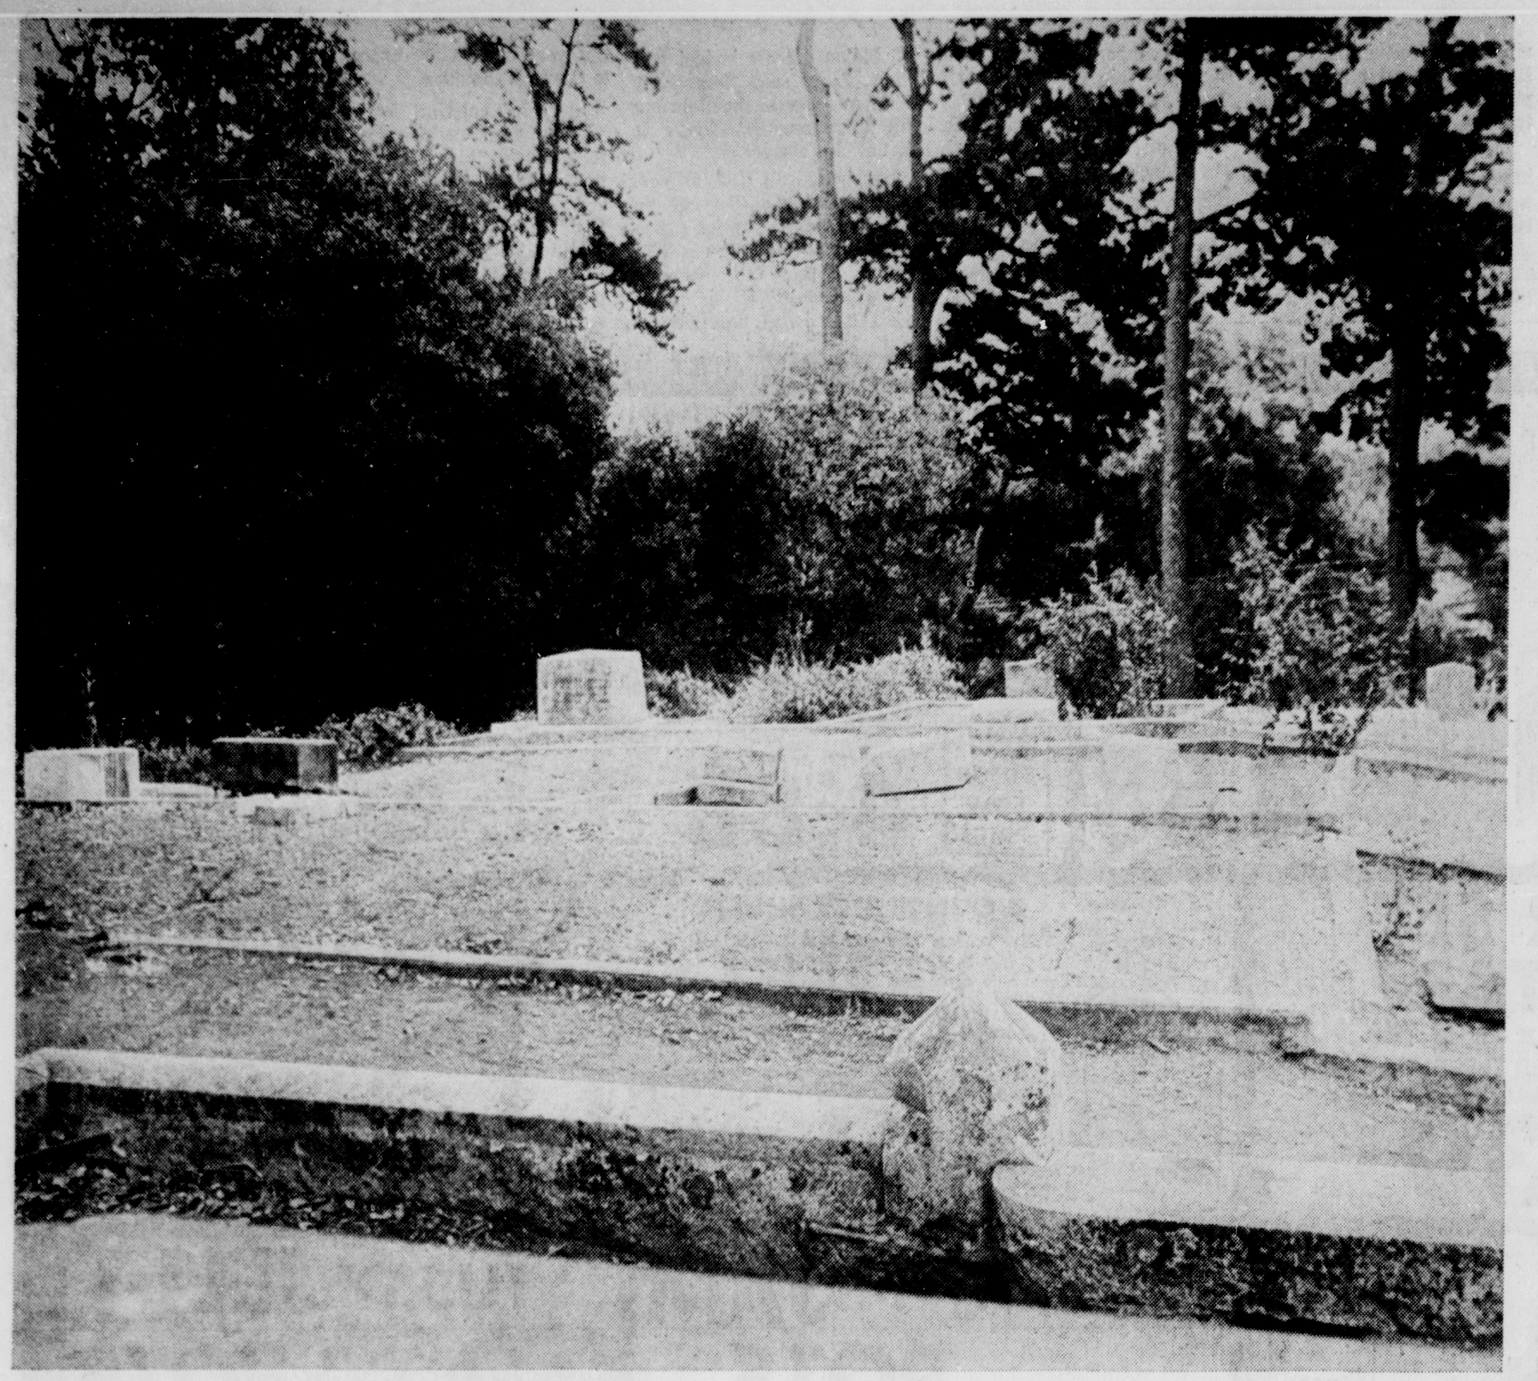

Through the years, vandals continued rolling tombstones down the hill to the park area and city crews restored them.

"Now all we do is haul them back up the hill," Adams said.

Meanwhile a 3-year-old Citizens to Preserve Novato's Historical Landmarks seeks to pinpoint gravesites and the history of their occupants, according to its founder Mrs. Philip Coady of 747 Bradley Avenue. The committee has dug into old records and corresponded with descendants of those buried in the cemetery. It now has plotted the location of 245 graves. However, only a fraction of that number of tombstones is left in the cemetery.

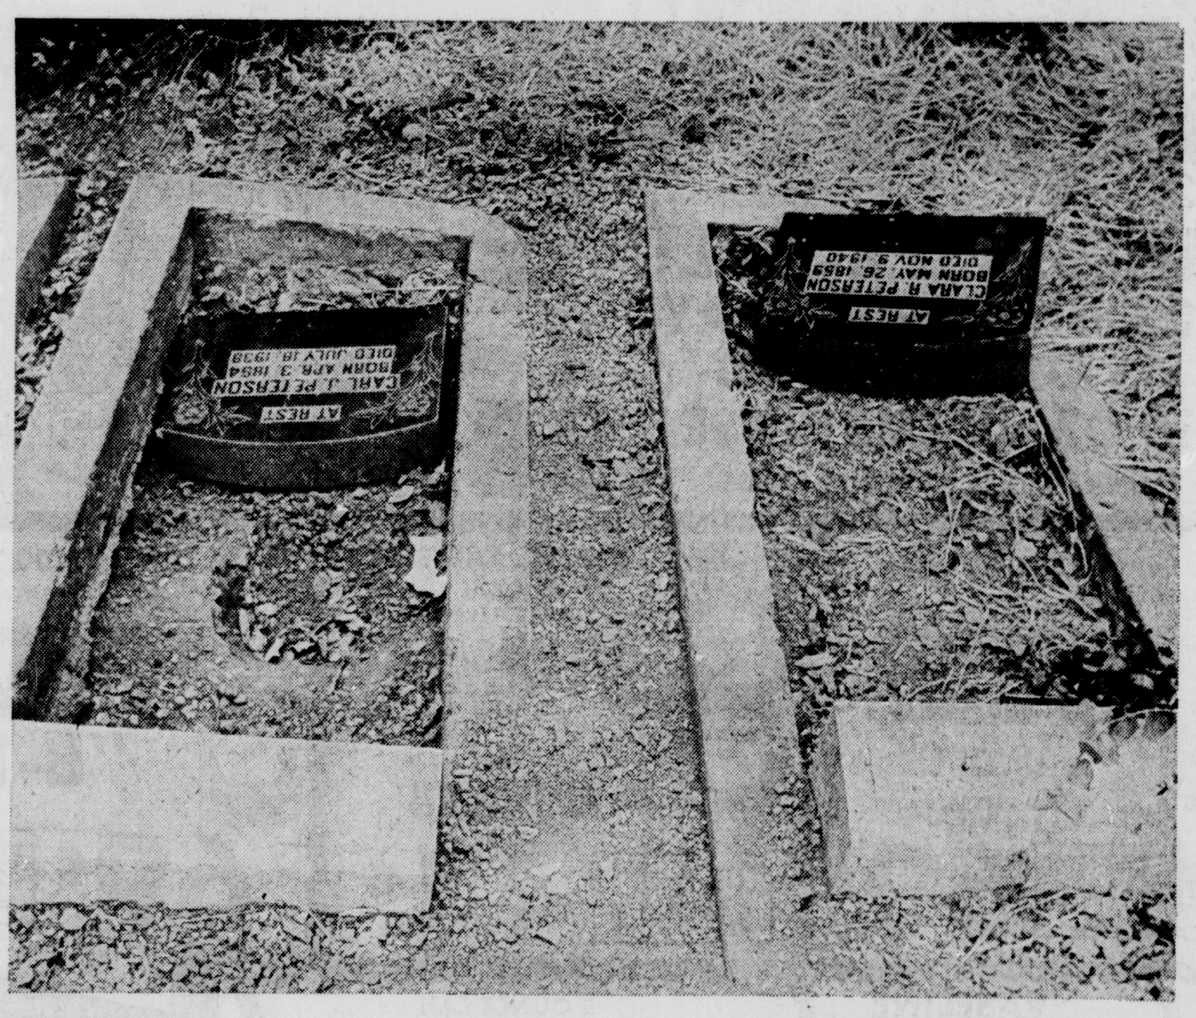

"We know that some people have taken the tombstones of their ancestors, but other people have taken them as souvenirs. Anyone knowing the whereabouts of any of the tombstones should contact me, so we can help restore the cemetery accurately," she said.

And now it appears that with city help, restoration of the vandalized cemetery is in the offing and the committee can pursue its research in a stabilized situation.

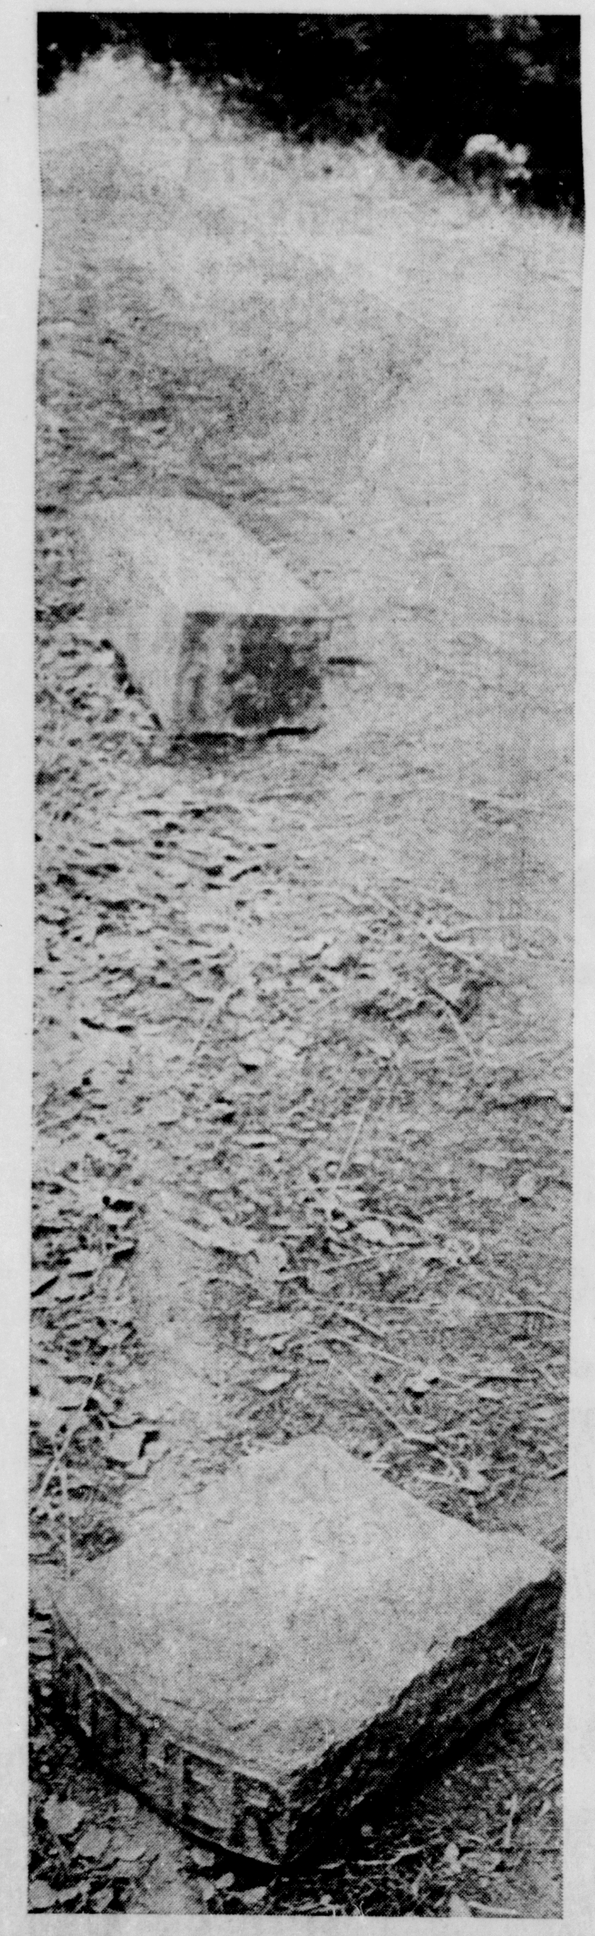

IF STONES COULD SPEAK — The summit of Pioneer Memorial Cemetery in Novato offers its broken walls and displaced monuments as mute evidence of the work of vandalism. Many of the important stones have been the playthings of ghoulish hooligans who roll them downhill.

ALL ASKEW — The headstones read "At rest" but there seems to be no rest for these headstones. Though too heavy for vandals to carry away and too tough to break, they could be, and were, torn from their foundations in the cemetery.

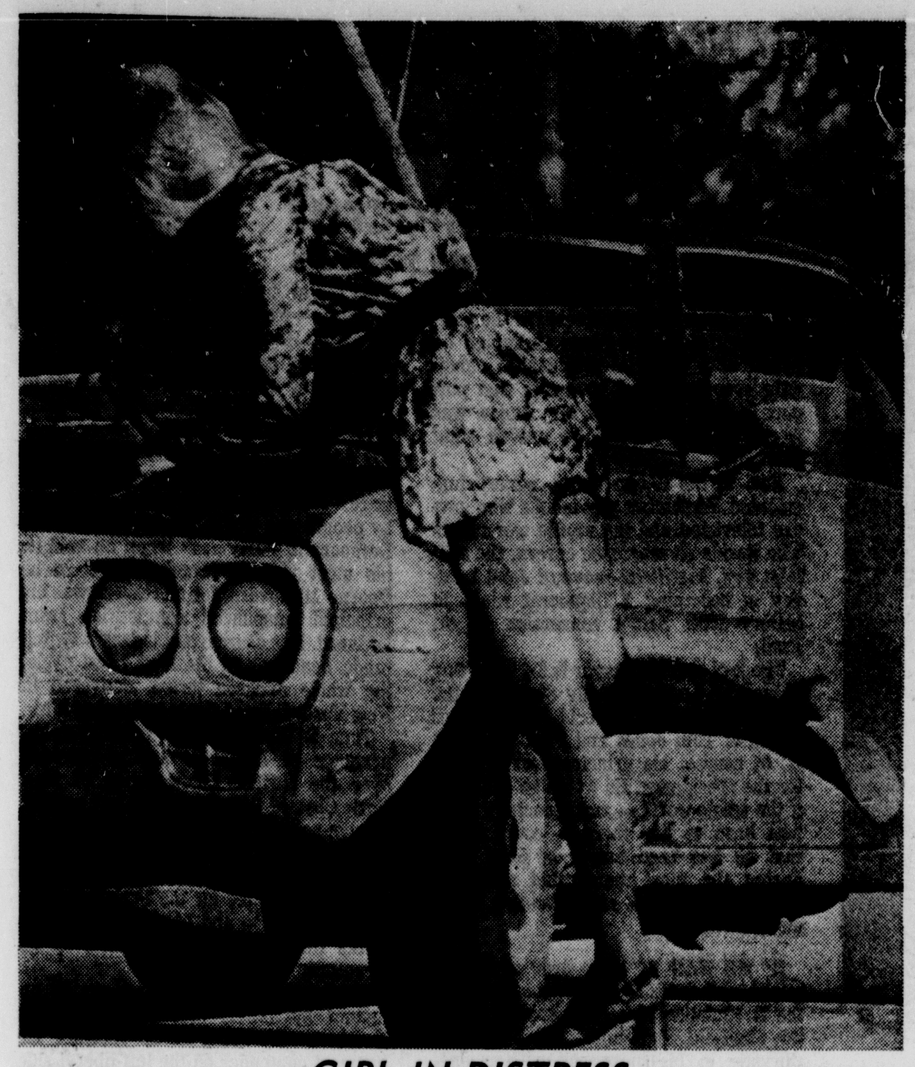

DOWNHILL GAME — This pathway around the top of the knoll at Pioneer Memorial Cemetery is the first stop for many tombstones as vandals roll them downhill. Some stones like these, may be left here or pushed across the pathway and down the hill into the lower cemetery level.

GRAVEYARD JIGSAW PUZZLE — Bits and pieces of grave markers lie about to form a gigantic jigsaw puzzle with many pieces missing and broken, perhaps to leave their message forever indecipherable.

A SOLUTION? — Sunken grave markers will be safe from the vandals who have wrecked Pioneer Memorial Cemetery for years. These two stones at the edge of the cemetery and beginning of the park illustrate the plans of the park and recreation department for safeguarding the markers.

Trio Commandeers A Sailboat Belonging To Varda's Daughter

One of the men arrested had been living on the boat against her wishes, the artist's daughter, Vagadu Aurelius of Sacramento, told Marin sheriff's deputies.

Mrs. Aurelius said that she and her husband, Robin, and three friends took the boat out for a pleasure sail Saturday on San Francisco Bay. When they were about 100 yards from the drydocks near Sausalito, a tugboat approached and three men boarded the sailboat, deputies reported.

One of the men, Roger Cowan, 27, of Gate 5, Waldo Point, brandished a .32-caliber rifle and forced Mrs. Aurelius and her party off the sailboat and onto the tug which returned them to Sausalito, she said.

Cowan allegedly grabbed Mrs. Aurelius by the neck and threatened to throw her overboard, according to deputies.

Cowan, who had been living on the sailboat, according to Mrs. Aurelius, and his two companions were later brought to Clipper Yacht Harbor by the Coast Guard, deputies said.

Cowan was booked on suspicion of brandishing and assault with a deadly weapon, conspiracy, battery and possession of marijuana and narcotics paraphernalia. The drug counts stem from marijuana seeds found on the sailboat.

He was held at the jail in lieu of $6,250 bail to appear in Marin Municipal Court today.

His companions — Michael C. Scott, 25, of Gate 5, and Anthony C. Stanford, 22, of 787 Waldo Point, Sausalito — were held at the jail in lieu of $2,500 bail each on suspicion of conspiracy to commit a crime.

Varda, 77, died of a heart attack while vacationing in Mexico in January.

Bus Company Abandons Stinson Shuttle Plan

Marin Transit Systems announced it has abandoned plans to extend its routes to Stinson Beach.

Permission to shuttle between Tiburon, Muir Beach and Stinson Beach was granted too late in the summer tourist season to make the service profitable, according to Judy Ainsworth of San Anselmo, publicist for the Marin City-based company.

She said that the company had applied in late May to the Public Utilities Commission for a permit to extend its route to West Marin. A temporary permit, valid only this year, was granted by the PUC on July 13, and the company had until today to act on the permit.

The company had expected faster PUC approval of its permit, she said, but it was delayed by objections from the Marin County Transit District that the permit could give the company vested rights that then would have to be bought by the Golden Gate Bridge District. The bridge district will start operating a fleet of 152 buses late this year, and plans to provide the West Marin service.

Cambodia Closes Vietnamese Base

PHNOM PENH (UPI)—The Cambodian high command said today it has told South Vietnam to close its military base southeast of Phnom Penh and withdraw its task force from the area because of reported atrocities against Cambodian civilians.

Military spokesmen said Cambodian Col. Srey Meas, government commander of the Neak Luong region where the base is located, made the demand personally Sunday to the South Vietnamese high command in Saigon.

The action followed "daily protests" to the South Vietnamese government about the alleged atrocities, the spokesmen said.

There was no immediate response from the South Vietnamese, who have had more than 5,000 troops conducting operations in the Neak Luong area for the past month to clear a former Communist sanctuary.

Cambodian field officers estimate 50,000 villagers have been driven from their homes by the drive. The refugees have reported rapes, beatings and robberies. Senior South Vietnamese officers disciplined field officers for incidents last month by publicly slapping their faces in a Cambodian town.

Cambodian troops launched a 3,000-man operation Sunday into sanctuary areas between the Neak Luong base, 35 miles southeast of Phnom Penh, and the South Vietnamese border. A military spokesman said Soth Vietnamese troops have already "retreated" from that area.

Lt. Col. Am Rong, spokesman for the high command, said "The operation is designed to insure the protection and security of the population. A great number of villagers came to see our troops and showed their satisfaction at welcoming our soldiers."

Spokesmen said the demand for South Vietnamese withdrawal from the populated border areas was made "in the spirit of good feeling between Cambodia and South Vietnam."

An official statement released in Phnom Penh said the demand did not refer to the 10,000-man South Vietnamese task force operating in border areas northeast of the capital. Those areas are lightly populated and contain a much higher number of Viet Cong and North Vietnamese forces.

The Neak Luong base is the only permanent South Vietnamese outpost in Cambodia and if it were closed the troop and gunship helicopters there would have to be moved to bases in South Vietnam.

Three Hurt In Bicycle Crash On Angel Island

A weekend outing on Angel Island ended painfully for two San Francisco sisters and a teenage cyclist who collided in a freak accident.

Ranger Alexander Weiss said that the accident occurred about 2:40 p.m. Saturday when the sisters, Nina Louie, 19, and Susie Louie, 22, were walking along the road from the harbor and an out-of-control bicyclist crashed into them.

The most seriously injured was Nina Louie, who was reported in satisfactory condition today at Brookside Hospital in San Pablo where she was being treated for a head injury.

Susie Louie was treated at St. Francis Hospital in San Francisco for a broken left ankle.

The bicyclist, Allen Fong, 14, was treated at Brookside Hospital for facial cuts and bruises.

Cyclist Injured In Stinson Beach

A motorcyclist suffered a broken leg in a collision at Stinson Beach with an auto at 9 p.m. Friday, the California Highway Patrol reported.

12 Die From Horse Sickness

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Twelve persons died and between 500 and 1,000 became ill from the horse encephalitis epidemic now being brought under control along the Gulf of Mexico, the government said Sunday.

The release of the official figures was the first time the government had acknowledged the death of humans in the epidemic. The figures showed between 15,000 and 20,000 horses died.

West Marin Plan Exercise In Futility

There are plans, and there are plans. And then there is the West. Marin Master Plan.

This bulky affair, designed to guide the development of most of what remains of rural Marin, belongs in a class by itself — perhaps as the Master Plan That Was Never Meant To Be. It has a 10-year history of confusion, and now is back about where it started.

LET'S TAKE a quick look at that history.

In 1961, Marin County planning commissioners and supervisors felt it was urgent to prepare a master plan for West Marin, because the federal government was moving to create Point Reyes National Seashore, which would alter the future of the area.

The county planning department, however, claimed it was too busy to do the job promptly. So on April 24, 1962, the supervisors hired consultants Daniel P. Coleman and Harold and Mary Summers (the last until a few months previously the county planning director) to do the job.

It didn't prove to be much of a hurry-up. On Sept. 6, 1963, Mrs. Summers unveiled at a "progress report" to the Inverness Improvement Club a plan providing for ultimate population in the area of 44,000, with "an average of one-half family per acre." It was, she said, a recreation-oriented plan. It called for hotels, golf course and restaurants near Olema.

THE NEXT YEAR — on May 1, 1964 — the plan was delivered to the county. It had been changed somewhat. Eventual population was shown at 66,330, over-all density .66 of a dwelling unit per acre, smallest lot size one-half acre.

Nearly a year after that — in April, 1965 — public hearings began. Rows developed over highway routings, land use, Bolinas Lagoon, etc. But the most persistent ones proved to be over lot sizes and population density.

On Jan. 17, 1966, the planning commission approved a revised version with lots ranging from 10,000 square feet in flatlands to two-acre minimum on steep slopes, showing utlimate population of 87,500 with density at .86 of a unit per acre.

SIX MONTHS LATER, the supervisors sent that back for further study of slope density and a check into earthquake hazards—which had been brought up at the last minute by County Administrator Alan Bruce.

On March 20, 1967, the planning commission approved a revision with density unchanged. The supervisors refused it, asking for greater density. There was back-and-forth battling between planners and supervisors until Oct. 24, when the latter adopted "in principle" a plan calling for over-all density of 1.15 units per acre with details to be worked out.

The way they were worked out — after another 11-month delay — displeased the supervisors. Not until Feb. 2, 1969, was the West Marin Master Plan finally accepted, with lot sizes revised and the 1.15-per-acre over-all density.

BUT ON MAY 11 of this year, Planning Director Werner Von Gundell (the fourth county planning director since the West Marin Master Plan was ordered) announced the whole plan would be reconsidered. And last week, the supervisors threw it in the ash can and ordered that most of the area be rezoned to require larger lot sizes while a new master plan is prepared.

This is ironic. It required two years—from early 1967 to early 1969—to iron out a row between supervisors and planners over density, with the board demanding greater density and smaller lots. Yet the effect of the latest action is to require two-acre lots where 7,500 square feet—about a sixth of an acre—had been permitted.

Based on past history, it will require several years to re-do the plan. And it is unlikely to last as long as it takes to draw it.

"Yes, I expect to be more comfortable over here, thank you."

BY NO MEANS NEUTRAL

Lindsay: Beautiful, Instant Democrat

By ERNEST B. FURGURSON

WASHINGTON — Beginning already, you are going to be subjected to the most adulatory public relations campaign on behalf of a potential presidential candidate ever conducted by media that purport to deal in news. If Mr. Agnew was wrong before, he will be proved right promptly.

For, to the image-happy, advertising-oriented Manhattan provincials who govern television and the profile worshipers who decide on magazine covers, the selfless, yea, sacrificial move of John Lindsay in becoming a Democrat ranks in history with Saul's conversion to St. Paul.

The fact that the mayor is 6'4" and was chosen by London's Daily Sketch as the sexiest man in the world (ranking just ahead of Tom Jones and Paul Newman) is, of course, his principal qualification for the presidency. He would be delighted if the whole world — and especially those who have to live there — could forget that he has been mayor of New York during the most memorable string of municipal disasters since the San Francisco earthquake.

IF HE HAD IT to do over again, he might replace St. Paul's School, Yale and the Rockefeller Plaza law firm of Webster, Sheffield, Fleischman, Hitchcock and Chrystie in his biography with a one-room schoolhouse and studying law by candlelight. (Although a patrician background has proved not to be an inevitable liability — witness Franklin Roosevelt and John Kennedy — what is unproved is whether so recent a convert can pass himself off as genuine among the rank-and-file of the Democratic coalition.

The sure part is that he will appeal to the girls, for even otherwise committed female voters melt on daydreaming that someday he might be involved in their affairs. The likelihood also is that he will draw strong support from the blacks and Spanish-speakers who were so responsive to Robert Kennedy. And the probability is that the strenuous party reform efforts made by professional Democrats since their last national convention will redound ironically to his benefit, for they give a larger role in nomination than ever before to the young and the amateur.

Automatically, that causes most professional Democrats to restrain the enthusiasm of their welcome to the mayor. This applies most emphatically to the lifelong Democrats who themselves have designs on the presidential nomination. They know better than anyone else in politics — except the advertising men in the White House, who have long despised Lindsay for more than his apostate politics — how magnetic Lindsay will be to the television cameras.

LESS THAN 24 HOURS before Lindsay's announcement, Henry Jackson was warning blue-collar Democrats that they were "under attack from the left fringes by people who would like to take over the Democratic Party . . ." When he said it, his most obvious target seemed to be George McGovern, for McGovern was his principal announced competition from leftward. But as soon as Lindsay's switch made headlines in the next news cycle, the whole Jackson thrust, delivered in New York, seemed finely pointed at him.

Thus is illustrated the relative unimportance of Lindsay's having presided over the further deterioration of New York City, of the absence of any serious foreign-policy experience from his record, of the unblushing opportunism of his change of parties — just in time to make him eligible for the Oregon primary next year — and of all the negative points discerned by the Democrats he threatens.

He becomes a threat to them in an instant by merely saying he is now a Democrat. By doing so, he becomes the heaviest contender on the left-liberal side of the Democratic spectrum, replacing the patient and decent but less telegenic McGoverno, who announced his candidacy before anybody else, but has done nothing in these months besides run in place.

EVENTUALLY, LINDSAY'S presence on the left, splitting up the competition there, may turn out an asset to Jackson, and to Edmund Muskie, too, in his effort to straddle the middle. But that cannot relieve them yet of their fear of him, for the reason offered in New York Magazine, the weekly herald of the beautiful liberals.

"Let Senator Muskie give a speech on air pollution," it said. "The mayor will ban traffic on Fifth Avenue and (his aide) will have him on national television — coatless, hair flapping — striding down the pollution-free boulevard. It's beautiful, it really is."

Right. It's beautiful. He's beautiful. And the beautiful people love him, and they are going to try to peddle him to the ugly rest of us. If you had told Thomas Jefferson or Andrew Jackson all this, they would have laughed about it. But they came before television.

Who Would Head Peace Keeping Force?

In tonight's paper (Aug. 12), Mr. Norman E. Leach, executive director, World Federalist Youth U.S.A., suggests that Senator Tunney pursue the repeal of the Selective Service Act and form a world government under a United Nations "peace keeping force."

Does Mr. Leach propose that said "peace keeping force" be headed by Mao, Fidel, or Ivan?

May I call to Mr. Leach's attention that the armed forces of the United States are the only deterring factor to a world communist takeover. I thank God that Mr. Leach and I have been spared the communist "firing wall" because of our sons in service.

Surprised At Tunney For His 'Reversal'

My thanks to Norman Leach for his letter calling attention to Senator Tunney's unexpected support for the draft law — and an added thanks to the I-J for printing it so promptly.

I only hope that enough of his dismayed supporters will write to him before Congress reconvenes. Who could have imagined that this avowed champion of peace could come to the perfectly absurd conclusion that it is now politically fashionable to abet the continued slaughter in Vietnam, as long as there is a fair socio-economic balance among those killed, wounded or addicted?

Of course, the sort of mind that could invent such a rationale for doing exactly the opposite of what he led people to believe in November, could also change again and again, and in wondrous and mysterious ways.

Let us pray that it is a sensible person who gets to talk to him last.

Reader Takes Issue With Review Approach

I would like to challenge the review you recently published of a production of "Wind in the Willows."

It would seem to me that criticism must apply standards relevant to that which is being reviewed.

Mr. Wilson, although I am not competent to judge, may well have the capacity to apply professional standards to a professional production, but to apply those same standards without modification to a production which is cast almost exclusively with juveniles, is not only improper but silly.

I have no connection with the production or any member of the cast. My protest is triggered only by knowledge of the enormous amounts of time devoted by these children to rehearsal for no reward other than that of doing a job well and having it acknowledged. Inappropriate criticism such as you published can only contribute further to the alienation between the generations, which most of us spend so much time deploring.

GOLDEN GATE VIEW

Squeeze Is On Polluters With 'Feds' Now In Action

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

California has been targeted by the federal Environmental Protection Agency for direct court action against water polluters, according to state officials.

These officials, predictably defending their claim to be doing the best job of any state in the nation, privately see "politics" in the EPA directive to is administrators to dig up cases where the state has failed to move fast enough against polluters.

Politics and pollution sometime smell so bad it's hard to tell them apart, and even California officials occasionally have mixed them up.

THE EPA, HOWEVER, may have more than politics on its mind. How about retribution for California's opposition to the pending federal requirement for industrial waste discharge permits? California officials argue that this would duplicate state water pollution enforcement.

Their opposition hit the EPA right in its empire-building solar plexis. The Army Corps of Engineers now has the job of issuing the tens of thousands of discharge permits, but this power is about to be turned over to the EPA, we are told.

The first targets in the Bay Area reportedly will be major industries in Contra Costa County. (They might also take a look at air pollution enforcement by the state while they are in the neighborhood.)

This kind of heat on the state, of course, has been reflected in the temper of enforcement reaching all the way down to Marin County communities. By the time the pressure builds up at the bottom of the heap, with federal, state and regional pollution officials sitting on top of one another, there is little room for the local polluter to squirm. He's stuck fast.

As put by Ronald B. Robie, a member of the State Water Resources Control Board, "the name of the game is hardship."

Dischargers hit by construction bans, he said, were "habitual problems." Bans already have been imposed on Mill Valley and the Richardson Bay and Ross Valley sanitary districts.

Opposition to the bans, he added, was "in large measure stirred up by organized opposition that is seldom constructive." In Marin, the opposition has been by developers and real estate interests.

"Everybody's very repentant by the time you catch up with them," Robie observed.

THE SPIRIT OF LBJ stalks the halls of the Federal Building in San Francisco. The Long bare corridors, formerly lit so brightly it made us wince, now are gloomy — with every other light fixture left extinguished to save some pennies.

The General Services Administration, which runs the building, apparently hasn't gotten the new model face issued by the Nixon administration. You may have seen it on television. It's the one with the bright smile showing confidence in the economy.

Congress Should Share Power To Commit Nation To War

(Reprinted from St. Louis Post-Dispatch)

The defection of Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania from the ranks of those opposing legislative restrictions on the war-making powers of the presidency may serve to bring about a wide public discussion of the issue and eventual enactment of legislation, developments to be welcomed. Mr. Scott is the Republican leader of the Senate, and in breaking with the White House, which opposes the legislation, he took a decisive step.

Mr. Scott is also a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which has been holding hearings on proposals by Senators Eagleton of Missouri, Javits of New York, Bentsen of Texas, Taft of Ohio and Stennis of Mississippi. He represented a focal point within the committee for the opposition; now, with his support, it seems likely that a bill can be approved, studied and offered as legislation next year.

What caused Mr. Scott to determine his course he did not say, but we would suspect that the publication of the secret Pentagon papers figured in his thinking. He said he had "come down a long road to the conslusion" that Congress must reassert its war powers. Without this, he saw no hope of stopping the "merry-go-round" situation in which the executive branch "maintains as much secrecy as possible to the point of suffocation and isolation."

The minority leader appeared to be criticizing the executive branch generally, not only the Nixon administration which sent Secretary of State Rogers to Capitol Hill to oppose the proposals some weeks back. Mr. Rogers's principal argument was that the legislation could weaken a president's ability to act in an emergency, which in turn would pose "the grave risk of miscalculation by a potential enemy regarding the ability of the United States to act in a crisis."

Actually, none of the proposals would seriously hamper the president in an emergency. In general, the chief executive would be authorized to take prompt military action in a crisis, a freedom the president must obviously have. But he would be restricted in continuing hostilities beyond a certain period without congressional approval.

Chairman Fulbright of the Foreign Relations Committee told Mr. Rogers at the time of the secretary's testimony that, "The pendulum has begun to swing away from the dangerous practice of presidentially initiated warfare." He warned Mr. Rogers that if the administration did not co-operate in "the effort to restore constitutional balance" the pendulum might swing too far. Mr. Scott's stand, and an earlier somewhat similar position taken by the House Republican leader, Gerald Ford, may help stop the pendulum in the right place.

Senator Eagleton should be commended for undertaking leadership in this important field. In testifying before the committee he argued that the Pentagon papers "portray an ever-broadening, almost boundless unilateral decision-making role by the post-World War II executive branch," with decisions made without the knowledge or consent of Congress or the people.

The publication of the papers will have served a noble purpose if it has no other effect than to spur Congress to reassert its constitutional war-making prerogatives. War powers must be a shared responsibility — the President is commander in chief of the armed forces; Congress has the right to declare war.

Democrats Seek To Hamstring OEO To Embarrass President

WASHINGTON— It has been a long time since divided government has worked as badly as now.

Nothing matches it excep the tail end of the 80th Congress when the Republican Senate under the leadership of Robert Taft was acting to block President Truman's legislative requests at every turn.

In foreign affairs, President Nixon is leading the United States out of an era of confrontation and into an era of negotiation.

In domestic affairs, the Democrats are leading Congress into nearly constant confrontation — instead of negotiation — with the President.

The result is nearly total stalemate. Little is being accomplished at a time when so much needs to be accomplished.

A SAD EXAMPLE of the way the Democratic leaders in the Senate are playing confrontation politics is what they are presently doing to the Office of Economic Opportunity authorization bill.

Here is how the OEO legislation emerged from the Senate Committee on Labor and Public Welfare:

1 — By subterfuge Democratic members have nearly suffocated one of the prime functions of OEO — research and development of new social-welfare programs to see if there are better ways of coping with poverty. They are doing this by making the funding of OEO programs so inflexible that little, if anything, can be devoted to research.

2 — The Democrats are seeking the same end by making the OEO top heavy with operating responsibility.

3 — They are writing into the law a total prohibition against transferring any OEO programs, after adequate experimentation, to other agencies. Such a ban on delegating the operation of OEO programs was never imposed on any Democratic President or any Democratic administrator.

The fact is that Nixon has transferred fewer OEO programs than any of his Democratic predecessors. A flexibility that was good for Democratic Presidents is suddenly found bad for a Republican President.

4 — Finally, the Democrats on the Senate Welfare Committee are adding massive Christmas-tree projects to the OEO appropriation in an obvious attempt to pile so much onto it that the President might feel he had to veto it. That's what the Democrats might relish so they could argue that Nixon was against doing anything about poverty.

THIS SEEMS TO ME to be deliberate, partisan-laden confrontation politics. There is evidence to support this criticism.

President Nixon has asked only for a simple two-year extension of the OEO legislation in order that the agency may be developed into what he sees as its most valuable function — research and development, the cutting edge of social reform.

He has told Congress explicitly he plans to shift no OEO program authority and invited Congress to use that period to decide what it believes would be desirable.

This is a constructive offer of negotiation with Congress on future OEO legislation. But instead of negotiating with the President and with the Republicans on the committee, the Democratic majority is at present producing a bill unreasonably offensive to the White House and seeking to deprive OEO of its inventive role in research and experimentation.

The Democrats like to claim they are the party of change. In what they are now doing to the OEO they show themselves the enemy of change.

Maybe Hub City Election Chalked Up Another First

At the recent San Anselmo election, in which 18-year-olds could vote for the first time, another first may have been chalked up unnoticed.

James Nichols, an 18-year-old, served on the election board. This may be the first time that someone of that age has served on an election board in Marin County, perhaps in California, or even in the nation.

AS THE YEARS pass, the old gives way to the new. The same holds true of government officials.

J. Wayne Womack received the highest number of votes for Novato City Council when the city was incorporated 11 years ago. He became Novato's first mayor and has served on the council either as mayor or councilman all but two years since then. He also ran for County Supervisor twice, being defeated the first time by William Gnoss and the second time by Arnold Baptiste.

Now he often finds himself on the short end of a 4-1 vote, being the only one of the "old order" left on the council.

Womack has not officially announced it, but he has dropped hints that he will not be a candidate for reelection next April.

"The fun has gone out of it now," he said.

The present mayor, Joseph Gargiulo, has also hinted that there will be two new councilmen. His term also expires next April.

WITH THE WIDENING of Novato Boulevard at Seventh Street, the painted crosswalk looks incongruous.

The new restaurant, Novato branch of the Marin County Library, and adjacent medical center have all had to widen the street to future standards.

However, the yellow painted crosswalk still follows the old line of the street. Now, if a pedestrian follows the crosswalk so he will be safe, he must go 30 feet out into the street. Cars still use it as a stopping line, but it looks peculiar to see cars and pedestrians out in a widened street, using an old marker painted 30 feet from the actual edge of the street.

THE OTHER DAY in San Rafael I saw a boy in a parking lot bouncing a ball off a concrete wall. The ball would hit the wall, bounce off the pavement, and he would catch it.

I began to wonder how long it had been since I had seen children invent their own games to play. It seems that with planned recreation, they have lost the art of inventing things to entertain themselves.

How long has it been since you saw boys playing marbles in a vacant lot? Or a game of mumblety-peg played by boys? I don't believe I've seen little girls make mud pies and try to sell them from an apple box in front of their house for years.

Has it come to the point where children have lost the ability to play their own games?

Nader Asks Health Alert On Egg Issue

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ralph Nader has urged the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) to declare a "public health alert" until the government determines the full scope and danger of chemically contaminated eggs and poultry.

The consumer advocate asked for the alert in a letter to FDA Commissioner Charles C. Edwards after the FDA confiscated 75,600 eggs found to contain an excessive amount of polychlorinated biphenyls. PCB is the same chemical detected last month in 88,000 chickens which then were slaughtered.

Deputy FDA Commissioner James D. Grant said Friday that "on the basis of available scientific information, any possible health hazard would come from continued consumption over a long period."

But Nader charged that the FDA "has not adequately informed the public about this dangerous situation." He said the agency did not disclose any of its "alarming findings" until it was "obliged to do so by persistent outside questioning" from his associates.

Nader also was critical of the Agriculture Department. In a separate letter to Secretary Clifford M. Hardin, he said the USDA failed to give the public adequate protection against possible use of PCB-contaminated dried and frozen eggs in many packaged products, such as mayonnaise and cake mix.

The USDA announced Friday that it was undertaking a crash inspection program, but Nader said the department had known about the problem in mid-July but waited until last week to begin special tests.

FDA officials said the eggs were contaminated by PCB, a heat-absorbing chemical, that leaked from a pipe in the East Coast Terminal, a Wilmington, N.C., processor of fish meal used in making chicken and catfish feed. They said the leak began in April and spoiled 16,000 tons of fish meal by the time it was discovered in July.

The fishmeal was sold to at least 65 producers, according to the FDA, but all of the eggs seized Friday came from two wholesale firms in Norfolk, Va. The agency is continuing its investigation of other companies.

Nader said the FDA's "emergency" egg-sampling program was proceeding "at a snail's pace" despite "the gravity of the situation." The FDA said that 20 of 56 lots checked so far contained PCB levels ranging from 0.5 to 1.9 parts per million. The allowable amount under FDA guidelines is 0.5 parts per million.

"In view of the seriousness of the danger presented by this contamination, I urge you to declare an immediate, official public health alert, to fully and immediately inform the public of the nature and extent of this danger and to take other steps ...," Nader told Edwards.

The 88,000 tainted broiler chickens belonged to Holly Farms and the North Carolina grower, one of the nation's biggest, destroyed them voluntarily. FDA officials said they were the only chickens known to be contaminated.

In his letter to Hardin, Nader said "the widespread contamination of shell eggs implies the need for immediate destruction of the hens which laid those eggs in order to prevent further laying of tainted eggs."

So far, he said, that has not been done because "USDA apparently takes the position that even in a public health menace of these proportions, it has no authority to destroy these hens or do anything except prevent the hens, when slaughtered, from going to market."

Nader said, the PCB contamination problem suggested "an incredibly gross failure of communications" between the FDA and the USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service. He said that as late as Friday afternoon, the head of the service "stated that he knew nothing about any PCB contamination of eggs."

U.S. Advisers Losing Credibility

QUANG TRI CITY, Vietnam (UPI)—At night, lying on a bumpy mattress and sipping a lukewarm beer, Harry Barnes sometimes feels like a 20th century Don Quixote back from a day of doing battle with windmills.

He asks himself what it's all about, wonders whether it's worth it and finally falls asleep to wake up the next morning and take on the windmills once again.

1st Lt. Barnes, 24, of Lexington, Ky., is one of America's Vietnam advisers, the first U.S. soldiers to arrive in Indochina back in 1954 and likely the last to leave.

"You don't know how frustrating this job is," Harry said. "I'd like to believe I'm accomplishing something and maybe I am. Sometimes I feel I'm doing some good, but other times I wonder whether I'm risking my neck for nothing."

Most U.S. advisers, especially the younger ones, have similar doubts about their work. They've got one of the most trying jobs in Vietnam and it's getting increasingly tougher as more American combat troops pull out of the war zone.

They're supposed to train the South Vietnamese to be able to fight by themselves when the Americans are gone. But the advisers can only suggest, not order, and the more the United States withdraws troops the less the Vietnamese listen.

"Why should we listen to you?" South Vietnamese officers can be heard saying now. "You can't boss us around. You and all your soldiers didn't do so well while you were here. Why should we take your advice now that you're going?"

U.S. advisers work out of one of two American agencies—MACV (Military Assistance Command Vietnam) and CORDS (Civil Operations Rural Development Support).

MACV advisers, almost all military men, are attached to South Vietnamese Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine units. CORDS advisers, about 85 per cent military, are assigned to the national police, militia units, paramilitary forces and "pacification" teams.

Both agencies have been forced to cut back their operations as the total number of U.S. advisers has dropped from 23,500 in 1969 to 15,000 last month.

MACV, which used to have advisers down to the company level with South Vietnamese military units, now has field advisers with only regimental and division staffs.

Harry Barnes is an especially outspoken U.S. adviser, but the concerns he voices publicly are the same as worries hundreds of other advisers have expressed confidentially.

Harry was at the Quang Tri military advisers' compound for a few days between assignments. He'd been in Vietnam for nine months, mostly as an adviser to ragamuffin members of the paramilitary Peoples Self Defense Forces (PSDF) in norther Quang Tri Province.

"Our job is almost impossible at times," he said. "You try to sit down and explain to them the flaws and what they could do to solve their problems. But they just tell you they don't have to take orders from us. What can you do? Well, it's their war. If they don't want our advice and suggestions, soarry about that."

Male Nurse Gets Relief For Hours From Pain, Itching Of Hemorrhoidal Tissues

In Many Cases Medication Gives Prompt, Temporary Relief from Pain, Itching in Such Tissues.

El Monte, Cal.—Mr. D. Wastwood, Sr. writes: "I heard about Preparation H and tried it. I am familiar with it as I'm a male nurse and look at a product from a medical standpoint. Preparation H sure does what it says."

(Note: Doctors have proved Preparation H® gives relief for hours in many cases from pain and burning itch in hemorrhoidal tissues. It also actually helps shrink painful swelling of such tissues caused by inflammation and infection. There's no other formula like Preparation H.)

Time Is Running Out For Suez Canal Talks

By NICHOLAS DANILOFF

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The United States doggedly continues to hope that an agreement on reopening the Suez Canal can be reached despite the fact that Middle East envoy Joseph J. Sisco brought back no significant breakthrough from his recent mission to Israel.

The realism for this hope, however, seems to be growing increasingly thin. And as the fall session of the U.N. General Assembly approaches, it should become publicly clearer just how far apart Egypt and Israel remain in negotiating the Canal reopening and thereby achieving a first important step towards a permanent peace.

SISCO, THE ASSISTANT secretary of state for Near East affairs, returned Friday night from the nine-day visit with top Israeli leaders including prime minister Golda Meir.

Sisco declined to make any public statement on his return. But before departing Tel Aviv he issued a press statement asserting that there was still a basis for progress although he acknowledged he had achieved no breakthroughs.

In private conversations, State Department officials acknowledge that they are coming down to the wire in the administration's effort to act as a middle man between Egypt and Israel on the matter of reopening the Suez Canal.

But as the clock ticks on the danger of a breakdown of the negotiations and the American mediating role becomes greater and greater.

FOR ONE THING, U.S. officials acknowledge, the patience of the Cairo government may run out. Officials recall that President Sadat of Egypt has insisted that negotiations for reopening the Suez Canal must be completed in 1971.

For another, the approaching United Nations General Assembly session could prove to be a disruptive event rather than a convenient opportunity for further high-level talks between Sec. of State William P. Rogers and the foreign ministers of Egypt and Israel. If Egyptian patience gives way, Cairo might seek the support of world opinion by debating the Middle East issue in the general assembly, and thus make Israel even more defensive and less likely to make any concessions.

Finally, as politics in the United States come into an election year there will be growing pressure on the administration not to twist the arms of the Israelis who apparently feel that their national security is better served by continuing to occupy Arab territory rather than to give it back through a negotiated peace settlement.

THE OUTSTANDING isses between Egypt and Israel on reopening the Suez Canal are as follows:

—Egypt insists that an accord should be clearly labeled a first step toward total withdrawal from all occupied Arab territory. Israel says that it has no intention of pulling out entirely from all occupied territory and wants an agreement on reopening the Suez Canal to be clearly recognized as an interim measure.

—Both sides agree that Israel will withdraw partially across the Sinai Peninsula if the canal is reopened. Egypt has talked in terms of a withdrawal of about 100 miles; Israel has held out for a distance closer to 10 miles.

—If Israel did withdraw an Egyptian presence presumably would take up positions in the liberated territory. But there still seems to be no agreement on whether these would be military troops, policemen, or civilian administrators.

—AN AGREEMENT on reopening the canal presupposes an extension to the current, undeclared cease fire. Egypt would prefer a short extension to keep pressure on Israel for further indirect negotiations; Israel would like an indefinite extension.

If the Suez Canal were reopened Israel would want her ships to be able to use it. Egyptian diplomats have said that Israeli ships could transit the waterway only after a complete Middle East peace settlement.

—Both sides resist the word "agreement" in describing an arrangement for reopening the canal. No linguistic formula has yet been found but this difficulty is considered to be one of the least of the current obstacles.

Transit Panel To Set Tax Rate

Marin Transit District directors will set the district's 1971-72 tax rate and receive a progress report on public acquisition of Northwestern Pacific Railroad right-of-way at 8:30 a.m. tomorrow in the supervisors' chamber at the Civic Center.

The budget adopted July 13 called for continuation of the district's tax rate of 5 cents per $100 assessed valuation, according to James B. Robertson, acting district manager.

Southern Pacific Railroad, parent to the NWP, has applied for abandonment of the Southern Marin line from Mill Valley to Sausalito. Transit District directors have supported proposals that the property be acquired by the Golden Gate Bridge District for transit use.

Santa Rosan Is Bound Over On Robbery Charge

Ronald Lee Evans, 22, of Santa Rosa, has been bound over to Marin Superior Court on charges of robbery and grand theft.

He is to be arraigned in Superior Court Wednesday.

Evans was arrested Aug. 2 on Bridgeway in Sausalito minutes after an 82-year-old Mill Valley woman told police a man fitting Evans's description had grabbed her purse containing $11 and credit cards.

The money and credit cards were found in Evans's possession, police said.

INMATE PROGRAM

Do-It-Yourself Prison Reform

CONCORD, Mass. (UPI)— They call themselves "forgotten men."

They have no votes and little money. Yet they want to improve their lives behind the walls of the Massachusetts Correctional Institution here and eventually re-enter the "outside world" as responsible members of society.

Besides their lack of political power, the prison inmates have little knowledge of how to go about cutting through the bureaucratic web that runs the state correction system from Beacon Hill.

Then, a few months ago, the state representative from Concord and Acton, Chester G. Atkins, remembered he represents the 673 inmates at the institution.

Atkins began holding weekly meetings with a group of prisoners at the institution— men convicted of such crimes as murder, armed robbery and drug related crimes. Some of the prisoners have spent more than half their lives behind bars.

The purpose of the meetings, Atkins said, is to hear the prisoners' problems and to let them participate in the process of drafting legislation that would rehabilitate an "outmoded" correctional system.

"I saw at the State House that people were talking about prison reform, but nobody was bothering to ask the inmates what they wanted," he said. "They're at the bottom of the heap when it comes to spending state money.

"It just doesn't make sense to make decisions without asking the people most affected by them."

Atkins also brings other state officials to Concord to talk with the prisoners. Recently, Jack Delaney, Gov. Francis W. Sargent's top legislative aide, attended one of the sessions.

"He drafts most of the governor's prison legislation so I thought it would be a good idea if he met with some of the inmates," said Atkins.

To last week's meeting, Atkins brought an official of the state Department of Corrections, a member of a private prison reform group and an engineer who has obtained a federal grant to develop new prison industries.

To get to the meeting room, you have to walk through a series of sliding, barred doors that look like something out of an old Jimmy Cagney movie.

The topic of the meeting was scheduled to be prison industries and vocational training programs, but the talk often strayed to other things bothering the inmates.

The inmates said no one had told them what new industry they would be working at in a few months. The institution presently operates with prison labor, a furniture shop and a cement factory.

The inmates blasted the vocational programs as not providing training for jobs prisoners could get upon leaving prison.

"The instructors have no concept they're supposed to be helping," said one inmate. "They think of themselves as bosses trying to get as much production out of the men as possible."

Another inmate said the Correction Department's committee for deciding what prisoners will work in which industries "is a total failure."

"I told them I was interested in journalism so they put me in the cement factory," he said.

Another inmate attending the meeting suggested that persons be paid "about $60 a week" for working eight hours a day in prison industries with the money to be set aside and given them upon release.

"Now, when a guy is paroled they give him a suit and $50," he said, "and the suit is always at least 10 years out of style.

"Instead of a suit," he said, "why don't they give us a couple of sets of work clothes and a set of tools to get started with? As for the $50, most landlords require one month's rent deposit and a parolee has to buy food and transportation and hundreds of incidentals. He doesn't have anything when he gets out of here.

"So what's going to happen to a guy out on parole who was sent to prison for, say, dealing in drugs when he's outside and he gets hungry? You just know what he's going to do so he can live."

Atkins is taking other paths, besides the legislative one, to aid the prisoners.

He, and a group of student volunteers that work with him, have organized a raffle in Concord and Acton to buy recreation equipment for the institution.

"The state doesn't even provide money so the inmates can have a basketball court," he said.

He is also working to persuade the Department of Corrections and the Registry of Motor Vehicles to end a policy of refusing to allow parolees to hold drivers' licenses until six months after they were released.

"It's pretty tough for a guy on parole to hold down a job if he can't drive, unless he lives right in the city," Atkins said.

Atkins thinks that someday the families of prisoners and parolees may form a lobbying group to support prison reform legislation on Beacon Hill.

"And someday prisoners may be able to vote from their institutions and when that happens they'll form an influential voting block-especially in a town like Concord, —that ought to be able to force some improvements on the entire corrections system," said Atkins.

60 Day Terms Set For Pair In Assault Case

Two of three men originally accused of kidnapping a woman hitchhiker have been sentenced to 60 days each in Marin County Jail.

Judge Peter Allen Smith of Marin Municipal Court gave David Hernandez, 26, and Juan H. Medina, 33, both of San Francisco, credit for time they have already spent in jail.

A third man, Abel Homer Carrasco, 22, of Chico was to be sentenced today.

The trio pleaded no contest in June to a reduced charge of attempting to commit violent injury upon a person, a misdemeanor.

They were arrested April 29 by Sausalito police after picking up a hitchhiking man and woman, ejecting the man from their car and trying to assault the woman.

Three Charges Out Due To Missing Victim

Charges of robbery, assault with a deadly weapon and car theft against Alfonso Eddington, 56, of no known address, have been dismissed in Marin Municipal Court.

Western Marin Judicial Court Justice David R. Baty, sitting in municipal court, dismissed the case when the district attorney's office reported it could not locate the alleged victim.

Eddington was arrested Aug. 3 in connection with an armed robbery in San Rafael July 29.

San Rafael police said the victim, Percy Holloway, 41, of San Francisco, was beaten and robbed of about $40 and his car by two men in San Rafael.

Nuclear Plants In Center Of State?

PORTERVILLE (UPI) — Tulare County planning commissioner Ed Olson said recently the Los Angeles Department of Water and Power plans to build not one but three nuclear power plants in central California over a 16-year period.

Olson said each plant would require an annual water supply of at least 35,000 acre feet.

Plans to build a nuclear plant in the Frazier Valley near Strathmore has drawn criticism from environmentalists throughout Tulare County.

Police Group To Seek Federal Law On Murders

PHOENIX (UPI) — Laws making the murder of a law enforcement officer a federal offense will be top priorities of the Fraternal Order of Police (FOP), according to the organization's president John J. Harrington of Philadelphia.

Harrington, a retired police sergeant, was re-elected president Thursday as the FOP ended its national convention here.

The FOP adopted a resolution which would make murder, maiming, wounding and abducting a police officer federal offenses. Harrington said he did not favor President Nixon's proposal to give $50,000 to families of law enforcement officers killed in the line of duty.

"We don't want the $50,000," said Harrington. "We want the death penalty."

THE QUILT makings are stretched on a large frame in the living room of the San Geronimo home of Judy and Joseph Raffael and each square basted and sewn onto the base. Here Joyce Gross (center) of Mill Valley finishes stretching the material so that the others can work on it together during the weekend quilting bee.

40 Women In 'Quilting Bee'

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Car pool and baby sitting arrangements behind them, some 40 women began arriving Friday morning with sleeping bags, scissors, thimbles and wine and food to share.

They were responding to the invitation of artist Judy Raffael to participate in a communal weekend of sewing — actually an old-fashioned quilting bee. And for the past three days the big old house in San Geronimo where Judy and her husband Joseph, a painter, live has been the scene of stitching together the squares each woman had made into some very special quilts.

The result of their work — four quilts — had to be ready for display at the University Art Museum in Berkeley, to be held Sept. 1 to Oct. 5.

QUILTING IS a hobby with Judy, who is an artist specializing in the making of stained glass windows, and she conceived the idea of putting together quilts from patches made by many different women. She began to send to friends and relatives of all ages the 13-inch squares of muslin, with instructions to decorate the squares however they wished.

The time having come to put them all together, some 40 of the total of 70 women arrived to do the work, the others sending in their squares.

Judy managed to house most of her weekend quilters at home, and friendly neighbors joined the cooperative effort and offered space in their big homes. The guests were invited to bring along music, food or whatever they thought would make the venture a happy time.

To insure child-free working sessions, where they could be plenty of talk and laughing, some fathers took children off on weekend trips.

Participants were welcome to come for all or just part of the time, but all had to work hard to complete the project in time for the showing of the quilts, titled "For Judy Raffael — Four Quilts by 70 Women."

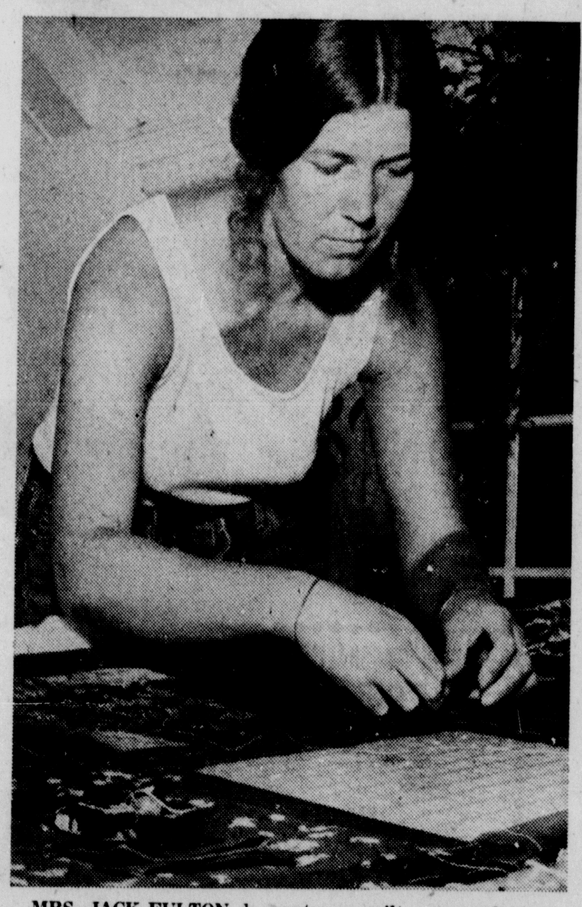

Made of beaded, embroidered, painted, tie-dyed, be-ribboned and appliqued squares, the quilts make for rare and wonderful art — lively, varied and full of imagination, says Judy.

EACH SQUARE is as unique as the woman who made it. One square is a country scene assembled with model train accessories, featuring horses and cows, picket fences, railroad tracks and a pond of blue velvet. Anther square is a handwritten traditional poem about quilts.

On a third square a duck made with swirls of lace and surrounded by blue stars represents for its creator "a duck about to dance 'Swan Lake' who suddenly realizes that she has never had a ballet lesson." A purple square provides a large red vinyl pocket for "taking a lemon pie to bed with you," according to the artist.

The quilts show work primarily by non-artists, who have nevertheless created pieces of fine, inventive art, Judy believes.

They constitute a major conceptual work by Judy herself, who inspired 70 women to use their creative powers and to find pride in accomplishment.

Breakfast Habit

Breakfast should supply about one-fourth to one-third of your daily requirements for calories, protein and other nutrients. To develop the breakfast habit, start with a glass of juice or a dish of fruit and a milk drink for a few weeks. Gradually add a piece of toast or roll, and then add an egg or cereal.

Careful Calories

Choose your calories, stress Dairy Council of California nutrition consultants, by the company they keep. It is extravagant to spend a large share of your calorie allowance without getting needed nutrients. A glass of milk not only refreshes but supplies protein, calcium and vitamins, while a soft drink only gives you sugar.

Refrigeration Vital

Purchase eggs that are stored in a refrigerated case in grocery or supermart. Refrigerate the eggs promptly at home, large end up, to help maintain quality. The U.S. Department of Agriculture says that shell eggs kept at temperatures between 70 and 80 degrees Fahrenheit will lose more quality in one day than in one week under refrigeration.

Nursery School Fills School Chief's Time

MRS. ASTYANAX CASSIMATIS
Heads Nursery School

Her family and the Mill Valley Nursery School are her full-time jobs says Mrs. Astyanax Cassimatis, new president of the board of directors of Parent Participation School, who is starting her third year as a member.

"The school is for children from two years, nine months old to kindergarten age", she explained, "and it is one in which mothers are required to work three hours one morning a week and attend a weekly two-hour evening meeting.

"We have been doing a lot of work on the playground and will continue this project. Last year we had a pavilion built in back of the school and a play house in front. This year we hope to improve the children's library and the parents' education library and provide more school equipment.

"Our puppet show was such an enormous success last year that we may extend it to two days this year."

Born in San Rafael, Karen Cassimatis has lived in Marin all of her life, except for the time she spent in Germany as an exchange student under the Experiment in International Living and the year she lived in Greece with her husband's parents.

She was graduated from the Sir Francis Drake High School and the College of Marin and attended the University of California, where she was an Ecology major long before that field became so popular.

Karen and her husband, who is president of the Sealift Management Corporation in Benecia, have three daughters, Thalia, 5;; Alexia, 4, and Marina, 10 months.

The new president says she enjoys reading and outdoor activities and sewing. She makes her own and the children's clothes.

Other new members of the board of directors of the Mill Valley nursery school are: Mmes. Floyd Heckman, vice president; Eleanor Fairchild, secretary; Ron Stewart, treasurer; Bruce Krefting, day program; John Goncalves, maintenance; Walter Klink, playground; Ron Gras, membership; John Begley, fund raising; Norman Stiegelmeyer, purchasing; and James Bryan and Joel Goodman, council.

She is the daughter of Mrs. Elba C. Simmons of Cathage, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Byron Davis Box Jr. of Corte Madera.

Nita Simmons of Carthage was her sister's attendant and Daniel Box of Corte Madera was best man for his brother.

Ushers were the bride's brothers Ralph Simmons of Sarcoxie, Mo.. and E.C. Simmons Jr. of Carthage, and Roger Harris of North Kansas City, Mo.

Cousins Return From Europe

By MOLLY MARIN

Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Cousins are home in Sausalito from a six weeks' trip to Sicily and France. The Cousinses and their daughter Phila, accompanied by Mrs. Cousins's former classmate at the Katharine Branson School in Ross, Mme. Norbert Mathey of Paris (Barbara Charnley) first spent two weeks in Sicily.

In Provence in the southern part of France they were joined by the Cousinses' son Sam and Mrs. Noel Martin of Mill Valley for a visit at the home of Mrs. Cousins's famous sister, gourmet cook Julia Child.

The group spent some time in Paris before returning home.

A SURPRISE party to honor their parents' silver anniversary was given by Joe and Susie Morena of Terra Linda yesterday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Motrena, who were married in San Francisco Aug. 11, 1946, greeted 40 guests. The young hosts had planned a cocktail and buffet supper party. Included in the guest list were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Woods, visiting from Belfast, Ireland.

THE LONG LAZY days aboard a Norwegian freighter were the highlight of her South Seas cruise for Mrs. Earl Thompson of Sausalito. Some of the places they visited in Tahiti and Fiji were Papeete, Moorea, Samoa, Apia, Suva and New Caledonia.

The best show in the South Seas is the one at the Aggie Grey Hotel in Apia, Mrs. Thompson says, and another unforgettable experience was hearing the singing of entire church audiences at Moorea. She flew home from Pago Pago because of the dock strike in San Francisco.

Since she returned to Sausalito Mrs. Thompson has had as guests Mr. and Mrs. Norman Lanquist and their baby daughter Linnea of Safford, Ariz. Sausalitans will remember Mrs. Lanquist as the former Gisela Contreras who lived at Mrs. Thompson's home while she was attending school in San Francisco.

TIBURON FRIENDS, in touch with Mr. and Mrs. Ted McMillan by ham radio as they travel across the United States visiting friends after two years in Thailand, expect them in Tiburon about Wednesday. "Mr. Mac" is a former Del Mar School teacher, scout master of Troop No. 48 and ham-radio club advisor.

Millie and Ted McMillan have been teaching at Bangkok's international school where their two sons studied. They visited former Reed School District superintendent and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Gaw, now in charge of Malaysia's international schools.

A homecoming party will be planned when their arrival date is definite, according to Mrs. Harry Winblad of Tiburon

To Enter Scripps

Two Marin girls are planning to enter Scripps College at Claremont as freshmen this fall. They are Elizabeth Anne Clark, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Clark of San Rafael and Maria Solak, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerzy Solak of Ross.

Wife Added Check Stubs Wrong, Worried About How To Cover Up

DEAR HELEN:

I goofed up our checking account after my husband finally said I could have a joint checkbook, and take care of the bookkeeping. He was so proud of me because I came out way in the black the first two months. So we bought a nice desk with the leftover money.

Then the bank called and said there was an overdraft. How could I tell Dave I added wrong? So I borrowed $100 to put in our account, thinking I could pay it back from what I saved with smart shopping. But, as you know, groceries are getting more expensive all the time, and I haven't been able to make payments on my loan, and they're getting tough.

The only valuable thing I've got is my diamond engagement ring, but if I hock it, I'd have to tell Dave I lost it, and then he'd still think I was untrustworthy.

How can I get out of this mess? — DUNNED AND DUMB BRIDE

DEAR D AND DB:

Better to lose face with your husband than lose your shirt (or your ring) to high-interest money-lenders. Tell him; and work out the payments together. You may even share a good laugh over this — on your 10th wedding anniversary. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

My husband takes better care of our pets than of me. At least he buys dog bones. He won't give me even a dollar. Says I must earn it myself. I'm on maternity leave now, and I need to buy things for the baby. He says I should have saved it from my salary. He expects me to go back to work right away, so I will not only be wife, mother, maid, cleaning woman, cook and home repair expert, but also pay my exact half of the bills, plus buy all the clothes and incidentals for all of us. How does he spend HIS money? Who knows?

I've left him twice, partly because of his stinginess, but also because of his indifference. He never asks how I feel. He's only interested in how much I make.

Don't suggest a counselor, or a budget. I've showered him with affection, done everything for him, even to washing his hair. I praise him and pamper him. And he only gets worse. Suddenly I discover I no longer love him. Should I pack my bags and leave? — DESPERATE

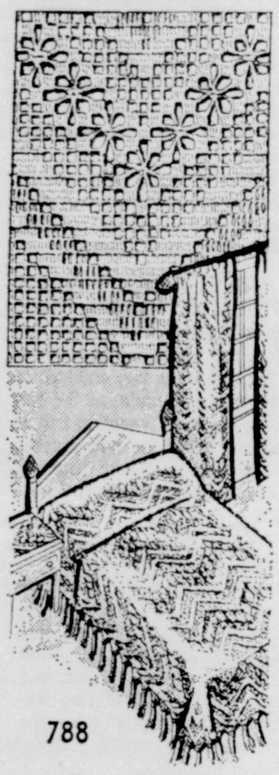

DEAR DES:

First things first.

Have your baby. Then have it out with your husband. If he continues hopelessly indifferent, stingy and impossible — well, I still can't make the decision for you, but it shouldn't be a hard one for YOU to make. — H.

Wrap Robe Seen Making Comeback

The long wrap around robe is having a big revival, according to Women's Wear Daily.

The wrap robe, associated with such movie stars of the '40s as Carole Lombard and Clark Gable is shaping up as one of the biggest fall sellers in a variety of interpretations ranging from the narrow piping to the wide lapels. They all have in common a side-closing easy fit.

Useful Cheese

Germans use cottage cheese in their strudels, cheese cake and noodle dishes. It adds a new and different taste to many familiar dishes. Try it as a topping for baked potatoes, or blend it in a meat loaf mixture. It's another way of adding more protein to the diet, say nutrition consultants for the Dairy Council of California.

SMART SHOPPER

Not The Answers To Pollution

By ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — People who are seeking some simple home remedies to protect themselves from potentially harmful drinking water have some disappointments in store for them, recent events indicate.

As the quantity and variety of impurities grow in water supplies, consumers are desperately looking for some way to do what public treatment plants are unable to do: screen out everything that detracts from good taste and complete purity.

At the same time, enterprising firms have been rushing to capitalize on the increased demand by offering a wide variety of devices designed to produce sales if not always to solve the problem for consumers.

The most widely advertised device is the activated carbon filter. It comes in various styles, some to fit over faucets, others to be placed in pitchers before water is poured into them.

Charcoal is highly absorptive; one gram offers the equivalent of 140 yards of surface. But it rapidly loses its effectiveness and must be replaced frequently.

As a filter, the charcoal atracts organic material, such as pieces of dirt and protein, to its surface. As soon as the surface is filled up, the filter effect is virtually ended.

In fact, a reverse process may very soon begin to increase the amount of bacteria going through. Bacteria feed on the organic material that plugs the filter, resulting in more bacteria rather than less.

CHLORINE IS another problem. It tends to eat away the carbon each time it is used, reducing the filter's effectiveness at a steady pace.

In answer to increasing requests for information about such filters, the Division of Water Hygiene of the Environmental Protection Agency issued the following advice in May:

"Any device that may increase the bacteria content of drinking water should be carefully considered by the user. The size (capacity) of the filter should also be considered. Small units can be exhausted in a few days, or even hours, depending upon the quality of the water being filtered."

Although far from the "miracle" that some ads proclaim, the carbon filter can remove chlorine, sulphur, pesticides, some organic tastes and some odors. But they do not eliminate bacteria and viruses, which may be the biggest problem.

In fact, by removing the chlorine and its germ-killing qualities, such a filter exposes the filtered water to rapid increases in bacteria unless it is used immediately.

THE GENERAL consensus among public health officials is that carbon filters are useless because they wear out so fast. In contrast to the "months" advertised, the time period of actual effectiveness may not extend beyond a few uses.

Other types of filters are no better, according to the experts. Sand filters remove sediment and cloudiness and can be backwashed for repeated use, but they are otherwise not as effective as charcoal. Iron filters are for water with high concentrations of iron and manganese, but they disintegrate unless frequently recharged.

Neutralizing filters to eliminate acidity through chemical reactions also tend to disintegrate unless recharged frequently. Like the iron and sand filters, these work only on specific problems and do little about purity.

Bottled water is also not the answer, although it has gained much in popularity in recent years. Some brands will provide what they advertise, mountain spring water without offensive tastes or odors. But quality varies between brands and may even vary within the same brand from time to time.

The bacteria count per liter was 500,000 for Deer Park, 50,000 to 500,000 for Poland Water, 140,000 for Great Bear and zero for Mountain Valley. In comparison, the city of Washington's water showed 115 bacteria per liter. The highest count among five suburban samples was 7,000.

The zero count for Mountain Valley meant that scientists could find no bacteria colonies on six culture plates after 24 hours, 48 hours or one week. The presence of bacteria, however, is not necessarily bad. Tests did not show how much harmful bacteria were present.

But Dr. Rita Colwell, who conducted the tests, said the high count among the other three bottled waters presented "a potential hazard." She added that, as a microbiologist, she would not drink bottled water.

AFTER THE story appeared, the justices of the Supreme Court also decided to stop drinking bottled water. Tests in nearby Montgomery County showed greatly varying counts, with one ranging into the millions of bacteria.

The most promising device for home purifiers is quite expensive. It uses the reverse osmosis process familiar to anyone who has studied biology. Among water filters, it is the only one capable of removing bacteria and viruses in an effective way.

But one unit produces only about three gallons a day and costs close to $200. Cartridges last about four months and cost $45 to replace.

The most effective use of this method, of course, is by large municipal treatment plants, but only a few have adopted it yet.

For a really bad sunburn, one of the safest things to use is half milk, half water compresses, chilled, according to the American Dairy Association.

Wide-Lapel Teddy Bear Coats Big In Fall-Winter Fashions

By BRENDA ROTZOLL

The big coat news is Teddy bear coats, cuddly textured wools with wide lapels and sashes that tie like those on a bathrobe. They appeared recently at the opening of the Italian fall-winter collections in smooth, brushed and nubby wools, all with wide lapels.

Suits were strictly classic at four houses out of five and featured wider shoulders. The fifth designer, Mimmo Siviglia, showed the only 70s look with his "jeans line" of all black pants and slim jackets slinky enough to look like shirts.

The casual jeans line suits featured red saddle stitching on collars, pockets and seams and along the zipfront closings. They came in denim, wool and satin.

Elsewhere the clock was turned back to a conservative look, just as women's fashions will be going classic with a return to dressmaker suits.

Coccoli favored all tints of brown for his knee length bathrobe overcoats, in mohair or with the look of chenille, the name given fabrics with a protruding pile. The coats had raglan instead of set-in sleeves. Some were sashed, others had high self-belts with large flat metal buckles. Brushed wool coats had hidden snap fastenings.

Nativo liked brocaded with raised patterns and figured fabrics and put a fluffy camel coat over a black brocade evening suit. He used lots of herringbone weaves and welt seams for accent.

Rosati's wide-shouldered suits in gray teamed with broad brimmed gray felt hats. He liked zigzag weaves.

Cranberry (bright red) cream and brown were favorite colors at Bazzarini. He put slot seams down jacket backs, and sewed circular patch pockets on coats. As he always does, he showed a number of jackets that had no lapels.

Pendants Are Big

It looks like a big year ahead for pendants in the costume jewelry field. Chain necklaces end with medallions, breastplates, and abstract designs. Some have a hammered gold or handwrought look. Others are in finishes that imitate ethnic cultures like the Egyptian, the Aztec, the Spanish and Greek medieval periods.

FABRIC SECRETS

JOAN CROSSLEY

Ever hear of a fabric called olefin? Olefin is made from petroleum or more specifically from the gases which are part of petroleum production. Perhaps you will recognize the name polypropylene. If you do, you recognize it as the fiber favored for general textile production. Olefin is very light in weight and very comfortable to wear. The fibers are unique in that they can actually draw body moisture away from the body and present it to the drying effects of the air — imperceptibly! Modern cloth production is really a miracle!

Modern fabrics for modern living. Every conceivable type of fabric for clothing, drapery and upholstery needs can be found at FABRIC LAND, 836 4th Street. We have a complete drapery department and if you desire an At Home Decorating Service. Stop by Mon-Tues-Thurs-Sat from 9:30 AM-5:30 PM Wed and Fri 9:30 AM-9 PM, Sun Noon-5 PM.

HELPFUL HINT:
Do not iron articles containing 100% olefin.

Flying High

Hijacked Yacht Skipper Tells Story

YOKOHAMA, Japan (UPI)— The skipper of the hijacked yacht "Kamalii" said today that captors ordered him and his two-man crew to jump overboard on the high seas without rafts or life jackets.

"We protested and then they gave us the life raft and the life jackets," said Robert Waschkeit, 49, captain of the 75-foot ketch owned by oil millionaire Larry Doheny of Los Angeles. "We had to ask for those things. We talked for about 10 minutes, and it was pretty tense."

Waschkeit and two other members of the "Kamalii's" crew arrived in Yokohama today aboard the Italian freighter Benadir which rescued them from their liferaft.

Besides Waschkeit, of Huntington Beach, Calif., the Kamalii's crew consisted of Frank Power, 47, of Newport Beach, Calif., and John Freitas, 52, also of Huntington Beach.

The yacht, valued at $150,000, was boarded at dockside in Honolulu the night of Aug. 6 by three men, who set sail for the South Pacific after casting Waschkeit and his companions adrift.

The "Kamalii" later was captured by a U.S. Coast Guard vessel and returned to Honolulu.

The three men were given permission to land in Japan after IRA Wolf, American vice consul at Yokohama, supplied them with temporary travel documents. Waschkeit said they hoped to return to Honlulu Tuesday "and go back to work."

3 YOUNG MEN

Waschkeit said three young men boarded the Kamalii the night of Aug. 6 with revolvers in their hands, and told him: "This is a stickup. Do as we tell you or we'll shoot you."

"I never saw them before in my life," Waschkeit said. "We thought they were either escaping from something or were just taking the boat to go for a ride. They talked to us very little."

FEET, HANDS BOUND

Waschkeit said he, Power and Freitas were placed in cabins in the yacht with their feet and hands bound.

"Our feet were tied with rope," he said. "Two of us were handcuffed. They brought handcuffs aboard with them. They left Freitas get up once and fix us some sandwiches and once they fed us a meal themselves.

"We had firearms on the yacht but we couldn't get at them. There were two rifles and a .22 caliber pistol."

LIFE RAFT

Waschkeit said the three were put into the life raft wearing only their trousers late in the afternoon of Aug. 7. They were rescued about 8:40 p.m. local time by the Benadir, a 3,272 ton Italian freighter.

Three youths are under arrest in Honolulu, in connection with the hijacking. The U.S. Coast Guard identified them as Kerry D. Bryant, Michael R. Melton, and Mark E. Maynard.

DRAMA REVIEW

'Sister George' Is Deft, Well Done

By KAY KSANDA

The current production by the San Geronimo Valley Players of "The Killing of Sister George" by Frank Marcus is a dual experience of a good play and a great story.

Those who missed it last weekend can catch this well done show next Friday and Saturday at 8:30 p.m. at the San Geronimo Valley Art Center on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard in Forest Knolls.

In this three-act tragi-comedy, the central personality is actress June Buckridge, a BBC soap opera heroine. On the air, Miss Buckridge is Sister George, a district nurse in a small village in England. Sister George cycles through rural villages singing hymns, doing good deeds and spreading cheer and advice to all. After many years on the air, her ratings have dropped, her reputation has been questioned and her job is in jeopardy.

In truth, Miss Buckridge is a cursing, tyrannical, middle-aged lesbian. In her London flat she smokes cigars, drinks gin, and storms about lashing her roommate with vicious remarks and physical punishment.

Into this turbulent household comes BBC's Miss Mercy on an official mission. She has been given power over the future of Sister George in the radio program. Miss Mercy is an English version of Laugh-In's "Ernestine." She is the broadcasting system's infuriating and saccharine investigator. The proper Miss Mercy proceeds to take great pleasure in presiding over the radio death of Sister George, and the emotional destruction of Miss Buckridge.

All this is done with deft characterization, rapier wit and building suspense. The plot is chilling, yet funny.

"The Killing of Sister George," a three-act tragi-comedy by Frank Marcus, and a San Geronimo Valley production, directed and produced by Paul Robert. Set, Marge Von Staden; lighting and sound effects, Regan O'Brien; props, Patricia Barnes; furniture and bric-a-brac, "Discovery" of San Anselmo; organ music, Barbara Scott. Cast: June Buckridge (Sister George), Diane Smith; Alice McNaught, Helen Stone; Miss Mercy Croft, Barbara Jeppesen; Madame Xenia, Eva Wilson.

"Ah, Miss Buckridge and Miss McNaught, this is like a dormitory feast with all this girlish banter."

"Poor Miss McNaught," pontificates Miss Mercy.

Diane Smith as June Buckridge (Sister George) is uneven, but strong in her portrayal of the middle-aged lesbian. In her calmer moments she brings through pathos with a true believability. As Alice McNaught, Helen Stone shows a pair of pretty legs and blacnk face — perfect for the part. Barbara Jeppesen as Mrs. Mercy Croft is marvelous. Her pursed lips, gestures, body language and tone of voice are a fabulous female foil to the masculine Sister George. Eva Wilson, as Madame Xenia, was miscast by age but valiant and funky as the fortune teller.

The set, lighting, and sound are all well done. The play will be presented at the San Geronimo Valley Art Center on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Forest Knolls, next Friday and Saturday nights at 8:30 p.m.

Old Adobe Fiesta Ends On Monument Dedication

Petaluma's tenth annual Old Adobe Fiesta closed yesterday with the awarding of prizes and dedication of the adobe as a national historic monument.

Attendance was estimated at nearly 9,000, a drop from last year's attendance of nearly 13,000. Fiesta association members said they felt competing events in Santa Rosa and Benecia caused the drop.

More than 2,000 persons attended the barbecue sponsored by the Nicasio Parlor of Native Sons of the Golden West and consumed 1,200 pounds of beef.

Winners in the whiskerino contest were Gene Koll of Petaluma, grand champion; Joel Yagoda, full beard; Frank Nickson, mustache; James Miller, sideburns; and Teun Rietmeyer, goatee.

Costume contest winners were Mary Dee Mannion, Donald Simonini and Virginia Cockrell, all of Petaluma.

Finds Buried Treasure, Gives It To Charity

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) —Someone found a buried treasure worth $1,000 and didn't want it.

As part of an annual summer festival, the City of Long Beach buried a box painted to look like a pirate treasure chest somewhere in the beach area. The box contains a certificate good for $1,000.

Clues are printed in the local newspaper and treasure hunters prowl the beach with spades and the latest edition.

"We got an anonymous call from a man who said he found the box," said Merv Harris of the city's news bureau Saturday.

"He said he didn't want the money ... and asked us to send the $1,000 to the American Cancer Society.

"To prove he really found the box, he said we'd find it in a trash can at the Long Beach marina. Sure enough, it was there, so we're sending the check to the Cancer Society."

In the meantime, the final clues were published, pretty well giving the exact location of the already-discovered chest and a horde of hunters descended on the spot.

"That area looks like the Anzio Beachhead now," Harris said. "There are holes all over the place for 400 yards."

Skydiver Fails To Pull Ripcord, Falls To Death

HONOLULU (UPI) —Veteran skydiver Merry Nakamura Black, 21, plunged to her death Sunday before the horrified eyes of her husband and three-year-old son when she failed to open her parachute.

Mrs. Black, who had made 49 previous jumps, had planned to leap from 5500 feet over windward Oahu, fall 20 seconds and then pull the ripcord.

Her husband told police she seemed to go into a backward spin after leaving the highflying sport plane, and for some unknown reason she apparently never pulled the rip cord of her chute.

Mrs. Black's body hit the earth in a cane field near the coastal town of Waialua, 18 miles northwest of Honolulu.

Police said an examination showed the chute was in perfect condition, but that there was apparently no attempt made to open it.

Mrs. Black was sky diving with another group of parachutists at the time of the tragedy.

'Booster' Heart Patient Visits With Family

DETROIT (UPI) — Haskell Shanks, the first man ever to have a partial mechanical heart device sewn permanently into his body, visited with his wife and other members of his family and ate solid foods for the first time Sunday, doctors at Sinai hospital said.

"The mechanical heart is functioning well and is being turned off every third hour to check the progress of the patient's own heart," the most recent condition report said.

"He is still under intensive care in the heart surgery study area and is still being administered antibiotics intermittently," it said.

The six-inch-long, cigar-shaped, silicone and dacron "patch booster" was attached to Shanks' aorta in a five-hour operation last Wednesday. The "path booster" is powered by an eight-pound silver cadium battery. The primary reason for turning it off every three hours was to strengthen the natural heart in the hope the 63-year-old suburban Warren plant guard eventually would have to rely less on the mechanical device, the hospital said.

Shanks had been eating three meals a day but until Sunday they were limited to soft food.

The hospital said the patient has been resting comfortably and was permitted to get out of bed twice Sunday.

THAT'S SHOW BZZZZZZZZZZ

Some 80,000 bees, squatters in a Black Point barn to be used next month in the Renaissance Pleasure Faire, buzz furiously as William Moran of Piedmont prepares them for removal to proper bee houses. Moran, a beekeeper for 40 years, said it was the largest exposed colony he ever had seen, measuring about four by five feet. It was discovered when hay stacked against the wall was removed from the barn on the Tobin property. Moran, bravely wearing a short-sleeved shirt, called in his daughter, who will have a honey booth at the fair.

SAILOR RETURNS

Sea Battles Not Thing Of Past

By JEFF GREER

Novato resident Kenneth F. Allen can testify that blazing sea battles are not just something to read about in history books or Horatio Hornblower novels.

Allen, 30, was a participant in two gun duels on the high seas off Vietnam, while serving on the Coast Guard cutter Rush. His ship, an ultramodern 378-foot vessel bearing five-inch guns, helped sink two North Vietnamese ships slipping through the darkness to supply communist troops in South Vietnam.

Allen, a second class petty officer in the ship's galley and a veteran of 12 years in the Coast Guard, said Saturday he's just as soon not see any more sea battles. His ship returned to San Francisco Bay last week after 10 months of duty off the coast of Vietnam.

The Rush was part of a nautcial force known as "Operation Market Time." Its duty was to prevent the communists from ferrying men and supplies on the South China Sea.

Allen and his 151 shipmates had been on station only 11 days when they received their baptism of fire.

The enemy was a 60-foot trawler armed with "some sort of rockets," Allen recalled. His battle station was on the cutter's bridge. With the scene lighted by flares from U.S. Air Force "Black Cat" patrol aircraft and the task force's ships, Allen could see the fleeing enemy vessel firing the rockets — and see the splashes in the waves as they missed.

The Rush fired two rounds at one-mile range. The second five-inch shell "blew the fantail off" the enemy trawler, but the vessel's crew "kept firing until it sank."

South Vietnamese small craft accompanying the Rush picked up four or five survivors, Allen recalled.

Five months later, the quarry

KENNETH F. ALLEN
Back from the war

was bigger, a 100-footer. This time the Rush came so close the Coast Guard men could even use their $50 caliber machine guns before the enemy fled into shallow water where the destroyer-sized Rush could not pursue.

A smaller warship armed only with 3-inch guns ventured in and helped finish off the crippled enemy ship, Allen said. His own ship fired 126 big shells in the engagement.

No survivor was found after the big trawler went down.

The Coast Guard man said it was obvious that both ships were carrying munitions. "Their cargos exploded like Fourth of July fireworks," Allen said.

During the rest of the 11 months in the Southeast Asia waters, there was no other battle, but plenty of "rushing off to somewhere else" to check out unidentified vessels that might be supplying the enemy.

Allen explained that all boats legitimately sailing the South China Sea carried registration numbers and could identify themselves when the Rush steamed alongside.

Between such missions, the Rush was ordered to pound coastal villages suspected of being Viet Cong hideouts — "our guns had a range of eight miles" — and to send medical parties ashore to aid natives in friendly villages.

Allen himself found the South Vietnamese allies not too friendly — "sort of indifferent to us" — in their few meetings at sea, he said. And he deliberately never went ashore when the ship anchored in South Vietnamese ports, because of what he'd heard about the way the Vietnamese treated Americans. Of his shipmates who did go ashore, none had trouble, he reported.

"I feel sorry for the kids growing up in Vietnam," Allen said. But the adults "are used to the war — they've been fighting for years" and seem to ignore U.S. help, he said.

The Novatan's ship was "the best there is," only three years old, fully air conditioned for the 100-degree Southeast Asia heat and comfortably fitted for the crew. To fight boredom during the months at sea, the crew watched movies run through the ship's numerous color television receivers, read, played cards, and tried to fish. "That didn't work when we were rushing off someplace," Allen recalled.

He said a prime topic of conversation at meetings with U.S. Navy ships at sea was that Navy crews got to go home after only six months.

When his ship's turn finally came, Allen's mother, wife, other kin and their 16 sons, daughters, nieces and nephews ages 16 months to 7 years were waiting for him on the dock at the Naval Supply Center in Alameda. "It was a great show," Allen declared. "I had the biggest family there."

He and his wife have three daughters and a son at home at 639 Peach Street, Novato. They have lived there three years, since the days when he was on duty at the now defunct Point Reyes lifeboat station. Before that, Allen was stationed aboard an 82-foot cutter off Fort Bragg.

Next duty for his ship, after the crew returns from leave, will be long vigils at sea for weather observation to aid aircraft and ships in distress on the broad reaches of the Pacific between San Francisco and Hawaii or Hawaii and Japan.

But "no more gun battles. I hope I never have to go back to Vietnam," the coast guardsman firmly declared.

Speakers Lash Bolinas Sewage Treatment Plan

By PAT ANGLE

About 300 Bolinas residents turned out last night to hear six speakers denounce an $8.1 million sewage treatment system proposed for their community and Stinson Beach.

The six, who spoke at a town meeting sponsored by the Bolinas Future Studies Center, said the project would have disastrous ecological, financial and social consequences for the small West Marin community.

Marin County supervisors are in the process of establishing two assessment districts to finance the project, being planned by the Bolinas Community Public Utility District and Stinson Beach County Water District. Engineering plans for the complex system, which includes individual collection systems for both communities, a treatment plant and ocean outfall, are scheduled for review by supervisors next week.

Those attending the meeting also heard one resident, Hugh W. Evans, warn that "killing off" the planned facility may necessitate a more expensive disposal and treatment facility at a later date.

Jose A. Silva, chairman of the utility district board said he believed the system envisioned by the two districts was to expensive.

Peter Warshall, an ecologist for the Future Studies Center, began the discussion by telling residents that studies have shown the proposed project will bring some treated sewage back onto Agate Beach and Duxbury Reef, endangering marine life in that area. Warshall also criticized a plan for a force main to carry wastes from Stinson across the Bolinas Lagoon to the Bolinas treatment plant. He said the main and three planned pumping stations would create a hazard because all lie "in the area of the San Andreas fault zone."

Greg Hewlett of the studies center warned the high cost of the project may force owners of larger parcels of land to subdivide and sell their property, creating "the kind of development most of us don't want in this area."

Hewlett said that septic tank failure in Bolinas has been "over-stated by health authorities" and that the only real problem to be solved is elimination of wastes from 180 toilets in downtown Bolinas which dump raw sewage into the lagoon. The public utility district has been under various cease and desist orders to stop dumping the sewage into the lagoon since 1963.

He added he believes that a relatively inexpensive system could handle the downtown waste problem and properly functioning septic tanks could take care of sewage in other areas of Bolinas, particularly the mesa.

Saying his group had surveyed "most homes in Bolinas," Hewlett said that the surveyors found only "small incidence of septic tank failure. There are some areas where septic tanks don't work and these tanks should be fixed," Hewlett said. "I believe the public utility district should assume responsibility for every septic tank in our town and see that each is in working order."

He also said the Future Studies survey had revealed that opposition to the proposed sewage disposal system is running "about 10 to 1."

James D. McCamant of Bolinas, vice president of the San Francisco Investment Corporation, also criticized the high cost of the proposed project, saying that spending $8.1 million for sewage disposal was ridiculous, considering that total assessed valuation in both communities was "approximately $12 million."

Mark Maser of the studies center said his group is investigating a system to dispose of wastes from the downtown area by detaining the effluent on an incoming tide and releasing it on outgoing tides. The center hopes to have more details of the alternate system, which would cost about $230,000, later this week, he said.

Silva too said he was opposed to the project's high price and indicated he did not favor an ocean outfall system which he called "too expensive."

The utility board chairman told the Independent-Journal he would instead like to see a treatment plant which would turn sewage into water "so pure you could drink it. Such a plant would cost the district about $70,000 more than the treatment facility now proposed and would make the ocean outfall unnecessary, Silva said. He emphasized, however, that he was speaking as an individual and not for the district board.

Silva told the group that the board, in planning the proposed system, had worked for years and "explored many avenues and channels to correct the situation in this town.

"I was opposed to a big system myself and we investigated many kinds of plants, but none we saw would meet the requirements set by the Regional Water Quality Control Board," he said.

Silva gently chastised those protesting the planned project, saying that in all the years the district board had been seeking answers to Bolinas's sewage problem "at no time did anyone show up at our meetings or protest or suggest alternative routes."

Hearing Slated On Hamilton Base Use

The Marin Aviation Inc. air service based at Gnoss Field has asked the board of supervisors to decide tomorrow whether the local firm, Golden Pacific Airlines of San Francisco, or both should provide scheduled commuter flights from Hamilton Air Force Base.

WEBSTER OTIS
To Washington job

The supervisors will hold a hearing at 4 p.m. on proposals for civilian use of the runway at Hamilton Air Force Base, stemming from Pentagon approval of the county's preliminary joint use ideas.

Richard T. Duste, Marin Aviation's president, said his firm's "budding air taxi business" would be "at a great disadvantage" if only Golden Pacific is allowed to provide commuter service.

The supervisors' weekly meeting will begin at 9:15 a.m. in the board chamber, following a meeting of the Marin Transit District board.

Also on the agenda for tomorrow's session will be:

JOBS PROGRAM — Personnel Director Maren Rinne and Asst. County Administrator Thomas F. Campanella will ask approval of extra staff to set up a $252,100, federally funded program to employ jobless persons in public service, under the Emergency Employment Act signed Monday by President Richard M. Nixon.

CORTE MADERA — The board will hear an apartment rezoning request for the Parmalee-Allensby property after delaying it since June at the request of Corte Madera officials.

BOLINAS LAGOON — Parks and Recreation Director Pierre W. Joske will ask a two-week extension on the services of Thomas E. Cordill to complete writing part of the Bolinas Lagoon master plan. During budget sessions, the board decided to end Cordill's job Aug. 15; Joske wants a continuation to Aug. 31.

DATA — Joseph B. Leach, data processing director, will ask approval of changing over from paper tape and punchcard record systems in several departments to magnetic tape to feed the county's computer. The estimated savings for this year is $2,639.

Ross Man To Post In Interior

Webster Otis of Ross has been appointed special assistant to John W. Larson, assistant secretary of the interior, a fellow Ross resident.

Otis, 36-year-old executive vice president of Land Investors Research of Larkspur, is scheduled to leave for Washington tomorrow.

Otis, named to the job by Larson, said he expected to work in interdepartmental coordination of bureaus and services, assisting Larson, who is in charge of program policy in the department.

Since program policy was just established in the department this year, Larson has a lot of work ahead on "basic concepts of policy to be developed and carried out," Otis said.

Otis's post will pay $30,715 a year.

Otis, a native of Chicago, was graduated from Colorado College with a degree in finance. He has worked in the field of business administration and personnel motivation and had his own firm before joining Land Investors Research.

He has been a resident of Ross for 10 years and lives at 51 Glenwood Avenue with his wife, Dorothy, and three daughters.

Five Hurt In 3 Weekend Accidents

Five persons were injured in three separate accidents during the weekend, California Highway Patrol reported.

Alfred J. Rushton, 91, of San Francisco was to see his own doctor for minor injuries. A passenger, Eleanor Evans of Burlingame, was also to see her own doctor for minor injuries, patrolmen reported.

Harvey L. Hurlburt, 50, of Newport Beach, was to see his own doctor for minor injuries, patrolmen reported.

The Rushton and Hurlburt cars collieded at 1:40 p.m. Saturday on Highway 101 just north of the Golden Gate Bridge. Both cars were southbound according to patrolmen.

Joseph Van Merta, 16 of San Francisco was to see his won doctor for minor injuries, patrolmen reported.

He was a passenger in a car driven by June L. Fleeic, 53, of San Francisco, which collided at 6 p.m. Saturday on the Golden Gate Bridge with a car driven by Kelley H. Lipius, 24, of San Jose, according to patrolmen. Both cars were southbound.

Joe J. Romani, 25, of 6 Buckeye Circle, Woodacre, was injured at 12:05 a.m. yesterday when his car hit a utility pole on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard just west of Fairfax, according to patrolmen. Extent of Romani's injuries was not known.

Innocent Pleas To Burning Charge

Bruce Douglas Cunningham, 24, of Fairfax, and Anthony Joseph Centanni, 24, of Corte Madera have pleaded innocent in Maric Municipal Court to felony charges of burning and attempting to burn personal property.

Preliminary hearing was set for Sept. 9.

They were arrested July 28 in front of Gene Hiller Exclusive Men's Wear, 690 Bridgeway, Sausalito. Police said they noticed the pair attempting to ignite materials in a cardboard box on the sidewalk.

Yoga Lecture

The Ananda Marga Yoga Society will sponsor a lecture by Archarya Dadajii in Tantric Yoga Philosophy today at 7 p.m. at the Sausalito Art Center, 630 Nevada Street. Admission is free.

Population Boom In Marin Held Declining

The population boom in Marin is on the wane, according to the Bay Area Council.

During the 1960s the rate of growth was down from the 1950s, the council reported.

In the past decade the natural population increase (births over deaths) was 20,400, a 13.9 per cent increase as compared to 18,500 in the 1950s, a 21.6 per cent increase.

The migration into Marin during the 1960s was 38,900, a 26.5 per cent increase, as compared to 42,700, a 49.8 per cent hike in the 1950s.

An analysis of population data assembled by the council showed a decline in the rate of growth throughout the nine-county Bay Area, reported Stanley E. McCaffrey, council president.

Marin's growth during the 1960s fluctuated from a high of 5.3 per cent in fiscal 1962-63 to a low of nine-tenths of 1 per cent in 1968-69. The growth figure for 1969-70 was 1.1 per cent, the council reported.

Sonoma County recorded significant numerical gains, but moderate percentage declines. The natural increase there was 16,200, and migration 41,300 during the 1960s.

Growth predictions that suggest a rise from the current 4.6 million population in the Bay area to between seven and nine million residents by 1990 "should probably be scrapped, or at least recycled," McCaffrey said.

The Bay Area region grew during the 1960s by 989,000 as compared to 958,000 in the 1950s.

"However, there were nearly a million more residents in 1960 than in 1950, thus the rate of growth had declined notably to 27 per cent for the 1960s as contrasted with 36 per cent during the previous 10-year period," the council reported.

Ross Sanitary Unit To Move Office

The Ross Valley Sanitary District on Aug. 24 will move its business office and maintenance yard to the treatment plant at 103 East Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Greenbrae.

The location is just beyond the Hutchinson Quarry on the San Quentin road. The office is now situated on Library Place, San Anselmo.

Reed Meeting Off

Tomorrow's regular meeting of the Reed Union School District board has been cancelled because of a lack of a quorum, Supt. Ralph D. Giovanniello reported. The meeting will be rescheduled at a later date, he said.

Auto Missing

Someone took his 1967 model car between 10 and 11:30 p.m. Saturday from the parking lot at the Country Club Bowl at Belvedere and Vivian Streets, San Rafael, Robert T. Gerrish III of 819 East Blithedale Avenue, Mill Valley, reported to police.

D-DAY SALE
17 HOURS ONLY
Tuesday 9-5:30
Wednesday 9-5:30

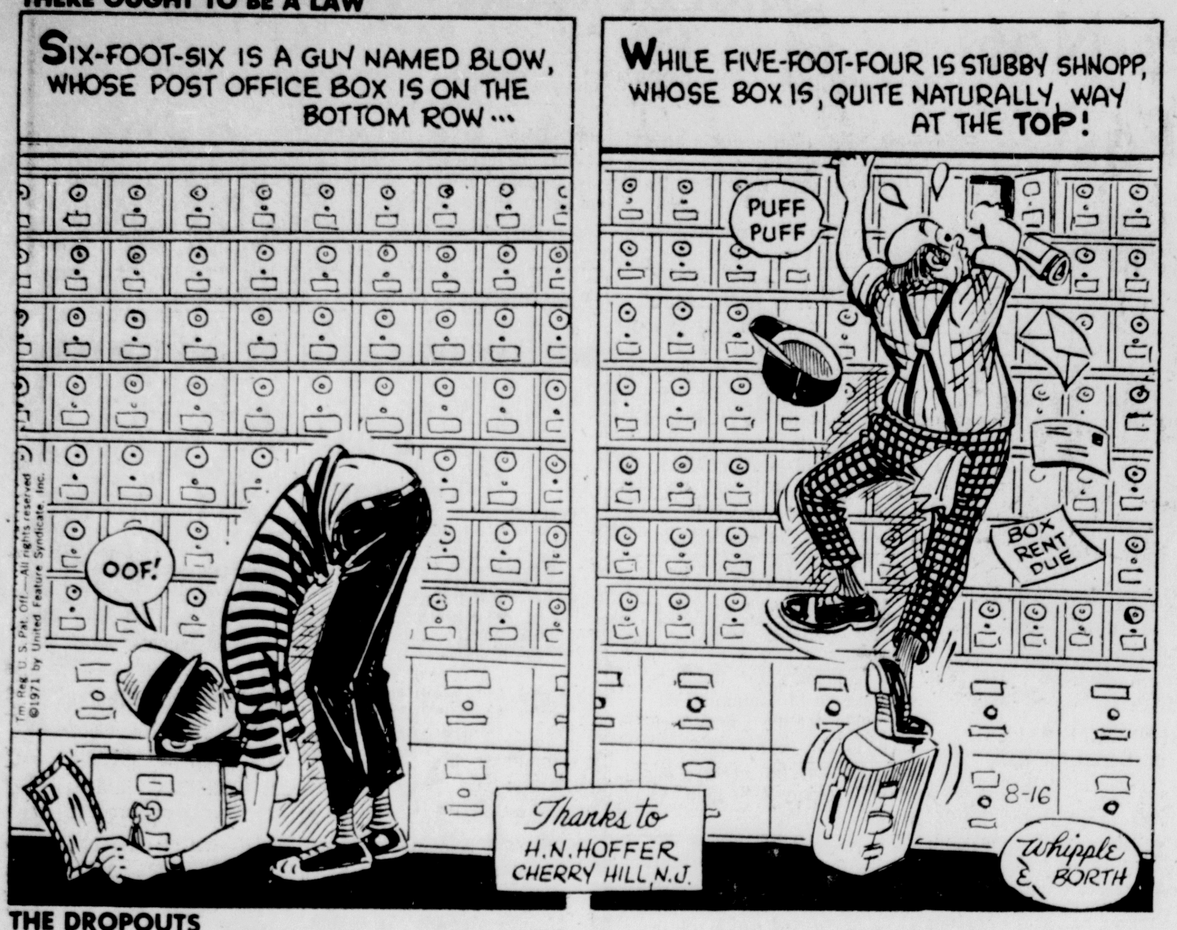

D-DAY . . . DUST AND DESTRUCTION DAY, that's Thursday, the day the dirty drop cloths and the wood shavings, and the paint cans descend on our serene old store. Our sales crew . . . a real professional bunch of designers who were hired to sell the sensational new Manor House furniture that's coming in . . . are beginning to worry about those remaining Lachman samples that are still kicking around. "They just can't be here when the new displays go in", says Elizabeth Ludington. "Can't you drop the prices again?", asks Allen Wilkins? Well, O.K., kids, the 'Lachman-look' isn't everybody's cup of tea, but it must be somebody's, or they wouldn't be in business for 77 years, right? Anyway, we did drop the prices again. Especially on some of these - shall we say - UNUSUAL pieces. Like the $649 Mediterranean SOFA/LOVESEAT GROUP with a green cut velvet cover that looks like it was retrieved from the Alhambra. If you dig Castles in Spain, it's yours for $399, (dollars that is, not Pesetas). George Lawrence says he's got some good buys on "loveseats that convert for a quick nap anywhere in the house". I don't know what that means, George, but if they're reduced from $149 to $79 like you say, they're sure worth taking a look at! I liked your note about the pair of ruby red velvet living room chairs you've reduced from $300 to $159. Sounds like they'd set a sexy scene in some swinging bachelor's pad. And how about the gilt CUPID LAMP . . . right out of a Viennese Operetta, and perfectly ludicrous in our Spanish living room department, but if you've got a frilly, feminine bedroom it might just make it, at $69. — down from $119. Like everybody else, Lachman's caught the BEAN BAG fever about 6 months ago and bought a load of these puzzlingly popular "non-chairs" in kids' sizes. They were made to sell for $29.99, but apparently kids have more sense than grownups because we've got practically the whole lot left. At $5. each. you can buy them as toys and let the kids have pillow fights with them. There are about a half-dozen sofas on the floor in STRANGE COLORS that were special-ordered for people's homes. "So, if they were special-ordered, how come they're still here", you ask? Well, two of them turned out to be too big to get in the door, so they made a round trip and we took the loss. No way of making it up, either, as we're going to get these out of here if we have to sell them for $100. each. (Somebody out there must like Spinach Green, or Overripe Peach). There's a big BLACK TUFTED VINYL SOFA that looked real sharp, no doubt, in the salesman's pictures, but is pretty dull on the floor . . . unless you're furnishing a dentist's office, or a lobby . . . or a family room, come to think of it, where you want solid comfort and child/dog-indestructability. It's yours for $100 - original price $350. Sometimes our buyers get carried away, but once in a while, I confess, so do I. I saw a real sharp, green Bamboo framed, striped chenille, POLYNESIAN SOFA & CHAIR go on display a while back that I thought was the nuts! Would have bought it myself, but I guess I'm the nut because none of our customers seem to agree with me and the boss has just slashed the sofa from $784 to $479 — the chair from $299 to $169. I still want it but boss says "NO EMPLOYEE PURCHASES ON D-DAY". RUG SAMPLES — 18"x27" bits of broadloom that we use to sell $1,000 installations from . . . dozens of them in discontinued colors, weaves, patterns. Useless to us, but dogs & cats don't mind the discontinued styles, they love to sleep on 'em, or you can use them as doormats or kitchen "foot-savers" for those hours you spend at the stove, or as extra carpeting protection in high traffic areas . . . and speaking of traffic . . . they make great car mats. $1. each. Limited quantities. Hurry. If delusions of grandeur are your bag, check out our THRONE CHAIRS, but make sure you bring your room size with you. One of these maxi-scaled numbers goes a long way, even if you're tempted, at half of the original $199 to buy two! We're having more darn trouble selling lamps. NO PAIRS! Well, maybe an odd lamp is just what you want for that foyer console or the nightstand between the twin beds, etc. Check 'em out. They're give-away values. There's more GIVE-AWAY STUFF in our "Clutter Corner." Starting at 50c we've got ashtrays, vanity sets, bedspreads, throw pillows, fire tools, dinette sets and SEVEN UPHOLSTERED TWIN SIZE HEADBOARDS. There's more of the above type of stuff in the sale, but I'm getting tired of writing. Come in early tomorrow, park your car in our free lot and see for yourself.

Ginsberg Protest On Brazil Arrests

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A group of protesters led by bearded poet Allen Ginsberg demonstrated outside a Brazilian airline office Friday against the jailing of Living Theater members in the South American country.

The demonstration in front of the Varig Airlines' office was one of several held recently in the United States, England and Holland to protest the arrests.

ALMANAC

Today is Monday, Aug 16, the 228th day of 1971.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase.

The morning stars are Venus and Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury, Mars and Jupiter. Those born on this day are under the sign of Leo.

Robert Ringling, originator of the major circus world, was born Aug. 16, 1897.

On this day in hisotry:

In 1896 gold was discovered in the Klondike region of Canada's Yukon Territory.

In 1948 home run king Babe Ruth died in New York City of cancer.

In 1958 former President Dwight D. Eisenhower suffered his seventh heart attack.

A thought for today: Naturalist John Burroughs said, "Time does not become sacred until we have lived it."

EOC Registering For September Vote

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Economic Opportunity Council has begun registering voters for a war on poverty election Sept. 18—the first such election since the anti-poverty program began six years ago here.

Registration ends Sept. 4 and includes signing up poor people 18 and over. Electors qualifying cannot earn more than $1,900 for a family of one, up to $5,600 for a seven-member family.

Lesson On Developing Right Suit At Three No-Trump Level

What this country needs is a good $5 crystal ball. During the daytime you'd use it on the stock market and the horse races. At night, the crystal ball would tell you which suit to develop at a no-trump contract.

LOW SPADE

West opened a low spade, and declarer very properly put up dummy's jack. East played low, of course, and dummy's jack held the first trick.

With only seven tricks in top cards South had to develop a long suit of some kind. Which suit?

Since he didn't own a crystal ball, South went after the clubs on the theory that the longest suit in the combined hands was the "right" suit to develop.

CASHES ACE

South cashed the ace of clubs and tried a finesse with the jack of clubs, losing to the queen. Back came a spade, and a finesse lost to the king. A spade return forced out South's ace.

Declarer now had eight tricks, since the clubs broke normally, but he tried the heart finesse for his ninth trick, and the rest of the spades did him in.

BETTER SUIT

South should have tried the diamonds at the second trick instead of the clubs. The jack of diamonds loses to the queen, but what can West return?

If West returns a spade, a heart or a diamond, declarer gets a free finesse. The only safe return is a club, but this doesn't really hurt since South must eventually tackle the clubs anyway.

South should take dummy's king of clubs (there is no need to hurry about the club finesse) and repeats the diamond finesse. This gives him his eighth trick. Now South leads the ace of clubs and gives up a club trick, developing his ninth trick in perfect safety.

DAILY QUESTION

You hold:
♠ - J 5
♥ - K 3 2
♦ - 9 7 6 2

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two hearts.

You have adequate trump support, and you prefer the raise to a no-trump response because of the short spade holding.

Goldwater Says Red Threat Is Growing

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The United States is fast on its way toward becoming a second-rate power in the world, Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., says.

In a speech at a revent banquet of the American Fighter Aces Association in San Diego, Calif., Goldwater said, "We are wide open for real and lasting trouble almost any time the Soviet Union decides to make a move." The text was distributed here.

Goldwater, a retired Air Force major general and 1964 GOP presidential candidate, said the United States does not have military superiority any longer over the Soviet Union and, in fact, "is no longer in a position of parity with the Soviets."

"In other words, gentelmen, while we listen to the carping criticism of left wing spokesmen, and while we listen to loud demands for cutting defense spending to the bone so that the money can be channeled into domestic welfare projects, and while we hear repeated claims that a detente with the Soviet Union and the possibility of an agreement at the SALT (Strategic Arms Limitation Talks) in Helsinki and Vienna lessen the need for more and better defense systems, while we listen to all this eloquent rationalization, the Soviet threat is growing."

At a time of rrowing isolationism in the United States, the Russians "have been embarked on a calculated policy of world domination," Goldwater said. "Every move the United States makes to turn back within its borders and to withdraw from world affairs ... is helping the Soviet Union."

When the disparity in power reaches an extreme, he said, the Russians could well try "international blackmail" — with demands that could weaken the United States.

Goldwater said one thing that puts him "on the gloomy side" is the series of developments in aviation.

"Almost every facet of American aviation is now under some kind of left wing attack," Goldwater said. "All you have to do is read the headlines in your daily papers about the defeat of the supersonic transport, the attacks on the B1 bomber, the criticism of the C5A cargo airship, and the high disdain which is accorded all kinds of manned aircraft in the military field."

NEW DELHI — He owned 750 suits, 200 pairs of shoes, a wardrobe full of neckties, custom-built Cadillacs and Rolls-Royces, 40 racehorses, and 42 concubines — plus three legal wives. That was the old Nizam of Hyderabad.

But today the princely India of maharajas and rajas, nizams and nawabs, dewans, state elephants and enormous harems is disappearing fast. The Indian Government plans to frame laws to take away the privy purses the princes were promised when India became independent 24 years ago. They will also lose the numerous privileges.

Last year, legal and constitutional hurdles blocked Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's bid to make commoners cut of the princes. This was one of the reasons why she dissolved Parliament and held a general election in March.

Returned with a unshakable majority, she now proposes to change the national constitution to fulfil her election pledge to end princely privilege. Most of the princes accept the coming changes; a few are determined to fight back with all the legal skill they can muster. That's the Rajput tradition.

Many princes are Rajputs, a warrior tribe who ruled large areas of northern India from far-off times. The 500-odd princes and their families and retainers cost the Indian taxpayer hundreds of thousands of dollars every year. When the princes lose their purses they will definitely not have to queue up in the breadline.

A fair number have private inherited fortunes in money and jewelry; others have big farm holdings which they cultivate scientifically. A few, like the present Nizam of Hyderabad and the Maharajas of Baroda and Gwalior, have big industrial and building investments in India.

Some have bought ranches in South America, country houses in Britain, or villas on the Riviera. Half a dozen or so are said to have stashed away fortunes in the vaults of Swiss Banks.

Some have turned their palaces into hotels like the Maharni of Jaipur and the Maharawal of Udaipur.

The Maharani is also an active politician. A leading member of the right-wing Swatantra (Freedom) Party, she is a bitter critic of Mrs. Gandhi's "socialistic" policies. Her hotel, Rambaugh Palace, is the most luxurious and spacious in Jaipur city, once the capital of the state her late husband, a world-famous polo player, ruled.

Another aristocrat-turned-politician is Mrs. Gandhi's Minister for Civil Aviation and Tourism. Once heir to the throne of Kashmir, he prefers to be known as plain Dr. Karan Singh.

A poet in English and his mother tongue, Dogri, he studied philosophy for a university degree and has written several books on the subject.

"I could have frittered away my youth (he is 40) at the feet of Bacchus, but times have changed," he told an interviewer recently. "Not for me the princely pursuits of shikar, polo and high society."

Dr. Karni Singh, former Maharaja of Bikaner, in the northwestern desert state of Rajasthan, has been an opposition member of Parliament for two decades. He has represented India as a marksman at the Olympic Games over the same period. He, too, is in the hotel business.

Among the younger princes who are adapting themselves to the unaccustomed task of earning their own living is Maharaza Kumar Ravinder of Jind, in the northern state of Punjab. He has done away with the traditional beard and long hair of the Sikhs. He designs clothes and operates the "With It Boutique," the most unconventional garment shop in New Delhi.

Foster Mother Held In Murder Of Young Boy

NEW YORK (UPI)—A Brooklyn foster mother accused of beating a 2 1-2-year-old boy to death because he wet his pants was charged with murder Sunday and held without bail.

Police said Mrs. Flores' husband, Felix Flores, called detectives to the apartment and they found the boy, Anthony Rodriguez, dead in a playpen with "really bad bruises around the head and arms," Flores said his wife had beaten the child with her hands and a bedroom slipper because he had wet his pants, police said. Mrs. Flores told her husband on Saturday the child was dead, police quoted Flores as saying.

The other foster children, Anthony's 16-month-old brother, Louis, and Elizabeth Ros, 5, were taken to a hospital and were in fair condition.

All three children had been placed in the Flores' home about a year ago by the city.

Airing Set For Development Negotiations

The Marin County Redevelopment Agency and Housing Authority will present a preliminary report of negotiations with California Development Co. at a special meeting at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the Manzanita Center, Marin City.

The California Development Corp. holds the development rights for the flatlands portion of Marin City and owns choice ridgeland property above Marin City, and the agencies are seeking to change developers.

Both agencies have come under fire recently for having secret meetings on negotiations and holding meetings outside Marin City.

ROYAL HOBOES

The Hobo Queen smiles and the Hobo King beams in his coffee can crown as they begin their reign. This year's king — The Pennsylvania Kid — won the applause of those attending the National Hobo Convention held Saturday in Britt, Iowa, with his promise that he can "do the most" for his followers. In actuality, the queen is Margaret Denfield of Burlington.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Gallbladder Inflammation Brings Severe Symptoms To The Victim

BETWEEN 5 and 10 per cent of our adult population has gallbladder disease. Stones and infection, the most common abnormalities, are considered together because one seldom develops without the other. The ensuing distress varies considerably and many people live to a ripe old age without knowing that their gallbladder was filled with stones.

AN ACUTE infection of the organ is perhaps the most painful. This is true especially when the opening is also blocked by a small stone trying to escape. When the gallbladder is inflamed and distended, distress usually is located in the right upper quadrant of the abdomen. Now and then the pain radiates to the midback area of the chest.

During the acute inflammatory state, fever, chills, nausea, vomiting, belching, gas and heartburn ensue. The distress may be described as a sensation of fullness. At the opposite extreme is the excruciating, breathtaking colic that develops when the gallbladder or biliary tract contracts to push away an obstructing rock.

SURGERY IS curative but opinions differ regarding the best time to operate. Each case must be judged on its merit. The procedure may be delayed when the victim is obese, elderly, pregnant or has uncontrolled diabetes or a heart disorder. Medical treatment is advised even though surgery is postponed. Drugs that control infection, relieve pain and relax the bile ducts are given as needed. A low-residue, fat-free bland diet also is helpful. Fried, greasy, oily, spicy foods are taboo.

Immediate surgery may be recommended for the first attack provided symptoms have not lasted more than 72 hours. In these circumstances, there are no adhesions from previous attacks and the area is not congested.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

DEEP SIGHS

M.M. writes: Our 3 year old sighs so deeply she raises her shoulders and even squints her face. She sighs so often it has upset us. When we ask her why she does it, she says she doesn't know. Our pediatrician is not concerned about this. How can we go about correcting this bad habit?

REPLY

She's too young to know why she sighs but whatever the cause, sighing is an "attention getter". So long as your physician is not concerned, why make an issue of this young ladylike mannerism?

LABOR CAUTIOUS

Congressional Approval For New Nixon Policies

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., influential chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, gave general approval today to President Nixon's sweeping new economic course.

From his home in Kennett, Ark., the chief Democratic congressional spokesman on tax and economic issues, said: "It looks like he has been following somebody's advice. I think the game plan is excellent."

The committee headed by Mills exercises control over all tax legislation originating on Capitol Hill and would have to approve of Nixon's tax-cut proposals.

The approving view voiced by Mills was shared by other congressional critics of Nixon's previous handling of the economy.

The business world was generally favorable but key labor leaders reserved judgment on his order of a 90-day freeze on wages, prices and rents.

David Rockefeller, chairman of Chase Manhattan Bank, commented: "We can only hope that what he has recommended will be effective and temporary. I don't think anyone should be very happy that this ... was necessary, but anyone who has followed these matters shouldn't be surprised at it."

New York mayor John V. Lindsay said the freeze was "very late but necessary." The city faces negotiations with the transport workers and the possibility of a 50 cent subway fare if wages should rise substantially.

From Moscow, the reaction was taunting. Tass, the official news agency, said the action was "only a reflection of the cruel crisis of American capitalism."

House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford called the President's decision "strong medicine but the right action for these times."

Except for Milton Friedman, who called Nixon's announcement "pure window dressing," university and industrial economists generally welcomed the move.

"I'm delighted that his patience has finally run out," said Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield. "I'm pleased he is facing up to the realities of the situation."

Sen. George S. McGovern of South Dakota, the only declared Democratic candidate for president, said Nixon's new economic strategy was "a combination of sheer bunk, irrelevancy and mystery" that would not work.

The only major action announced by Nixon that McGovern did not condemn was the 90-day freeze, which he called "about four years overdue."

General Motors chairman James M. Roche said Nixon "has taken the initiative in identifying some of these problems and coming to grips with them." Roche greeted removal of the 7 per cent excise tax on automobiles and the 10 per cent increase in tariffs that will "help make our cars more competitive with foreign imports."

But A. W. Clausen, president of the world's biggest bank, cautioned from Bank of America headquarters in San Francisco that the Nixon program "clearly is short term and tactical. A strategy still would seem to be needed."

AFL-CIO President George Meany and other big labor leaders declined to comment immediately.

An AFL-CIO spokesman said, however, the executive council has agreed to support a freeze only if it exacts equal controls on all wages, salaries, bonuses, dividends, profits and other forms of income, as well as interest rates. The spokesman said the Nixon plan did not cover profits and interest rates.

Harvard economist John Kenneth Galbraith said "there's no doubt this will benefit the consumer," but he predicted that the combination of the investment tax and the budget cut "will probably involve a net reduction of jobs."

ANALYSIS

Nixon Reelection Tied To Bold Economy Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon has thrown out the economic game plan he followed throughout his administration in favor of a bold new attempt to check inflation and restore prosperity before next year's election.

The program Nixon announced Sunday night represents almost a complete reversal of his previous policy. It was a tacit admission of failure for the game plan and it also indicated the President has become convinced that without drastic changes, 1972 will not be the "very good year" he had promised.

If the new program is effective in combating the twin problems of high unemployment and persistent inflation, it will eliminate the Democrats' most potent campaign issue and will enhance Nixon's chances of reelection.

The actions to freeze wages, prices and rents, cut taxes, raise import tariffs, and in effect devalue the dollar, had all been rejected by Nixon at various times during the past year and one-half.

The decision was a bitter defeat for management and Budget Director George P. Shultz, previously Nixon's most influential economic strategist. Shultz had urged Nixon to avoid almost all of the steps he has now taken.

The big winner in the behind-the-scenes battling was Treasury Secretary John B. Connally. Connally, the only Democrat in the cabinet, had been urging dramatic action in private although in public he stoutly defended the administration's policy.

There is some evidence Nixon has become sour on the science of economics and on academic economists. The President followed the advice of economists and the results were disappointing to him. Connally, like Nixon a politician, may benefit from the President's disillusionment with economists.

Nixon's action vindicates the stand of Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur F. Burns who has been urging a more active fight against inflation for more than a year. But Burns angered Nixon by discussing in public his policy differences with the administration.

The de facto devaluation of the dollar, coupled with a 10 per cent across the board tariff increase, will sharply boost the cost of imports on the American market. It probably also will invite retaliation by other governments against American exports. As a result, American firms facing competition from foreign concerns will be helped but American exporters will be hurt.

The big gainers probably will be the automobile and steel industries. Steel in particular faces increasingly tough competition from Japan and the European Common Market.

By accelerating a personal income tax cut and by advocating a new investment credit, the President hoped to stimulate economic activity and combat the worst inflation in 10 years.

However, he softened the economic impact of the proposed tax cuts by ordering a $4.7 billion slash in federal spending, including a 5 per cent cut in government employment. It will be impossible to tell immediately the impact of the 90-day freeze on wages and prices which the President ordered on the basis of authority voted by Congress more than a year ago. Much will depend on the way the freeze is enforced.

How Plan Affects John Doe

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

President Nixon's imposition of wage-price control will cost Paul Boerminger $700 more for the foreign car he plans to buy his wife. The move will not affect Jim K. Jarvis. He's unemployed.

People across the nation expressed opinions ranging from "I'm glad" to "he's fighting for survival" to the president's move to strengthen the economy.

"It's not going to affect us too much personally," said Boerminger, 28, of Philadelphia. "My wife said she wanted to buy a foreign car and will now have to pay about $700 more for it."

Jarvis, 42, Bloomington, Minn. is an unemployed chemist and photographer. "I think its a great idea," he said. "It doesn't affect me because I'm unemployed. My wages are frozen at zero anyway."

"I think he (Nixon) is just beating the Democrats to the punch," said Verne Carlson, 38, Northglenn, Colo., a co-pilot for Frontier Airlines. "That's what he's just fighting for — survival. I think it's a pretty smart move . . . It's pretty drastic, Iadmit. But I don't think it will be too effective."

Carl A. Fontana, 36, Avonmore, Pa., said the move was long overdue. "I'm only disappointed Nixon didn't say anything about cutting back on defense spending," he said. "People in this state are going to be grumbling because they'll need large wage increases to offset the income tax bill now in the state legislature.

"I felt it was time to do something," said Reginald Bessmer, 28, a government worker from Jackson, Miss. "I'm most apprehensive about the import tax because it could backfire. By that I mean other nations could start raising their import tax on us."

An army draftee from Kansas City was not too happy. "Immediately, I am not pleased because apparently the military pay raises aren't going to come through," said Richard Lorenzo, 26. "But speaking in the long run, because I expect to be a civilian soon, in the civilian case it could be helpful since prices won't be skyrocketing."

T. Williams Booth, 34, a Seattle architect said the plan was a little "late. But if he wants to get reelected he has got to do it for a year."

Booth said he thought Nixon's plan was in the right direction —"haltingly" but 90 days is "too short a time" to do what is necessary.

Mrs. Carol Chesire, 26, a Dallas housewife, was happy she bought her car in time. "I'm glad we bought our Volkswagen when we did," she said. "I don't think this is going to insure his (Nixon's) re-election. It is going to have to work first."

Jim King, 23, a butcher in Venice, Calif., said, "I'm sort of pleased with the action. I had a raise coming up in a couple of months but I feel that it's better to find a new means to fix up the economy other than with a war."

Mrs. Barbara Contry, 56, the wife of a Brooklyn, N.Y., transit authority supervisor, praised the President's action. "I think it's terrific," she said. "This should have been done a long time ago."

Mrs. Contry said her daughter was due for a raise in a couple of months and if the wage price is extended her husband will be affected, "But we'll eat," she said.

"I feel it's a positive step to curb inflation and to give the boost that is needed to the economy," said Carl G. East, 45, vice president of Bay Side, Wis., speaker sortation system. "Personally, it will have a 'belt-tightening' effect on me. From a business standpoint it will be an incentive for capital equipment improvement."

Mill Valley To Eye New Lease For Bus Depot

Mill Valley City Council will meet at 7:45 p.m. today to discuss new lease arrangements for the Greyhound bus depot.

The lease has been pending for several months because Jan Aranoff, depot operator, has refused to sign it under present conditions.

The lease now holds her responsible for cleaning up the depot area. In the past, several persons have attempted to lease the bus depot for use as a restaurant.

Councilmen, meanwhile, held a closed session Friday night to instruct City Mgr. William H. Cunningham on police and fire salary negotiations. Mayor George E. Wickham said he expected at least one more closed meeting would be held on the issue.

The council approved a wage agreement with striking city employees Aug. 2, but it didn't cover the nonstriking safety officers.

Farm Workers Hold Rally After 3-Day March

ASTI (UPI)—Some 230 farm workers union members rallied peacefully in Asti on Sunday at the end of a three-day march dramatizing their boycott of products from Heublein, Inc.

A counter rally by opponents of the AFL-CIO United Farm Workers Organizing Committee failed to materialize and the Sonoma County Sheriff's Department reported no trouble.

The march started in St. Helena and Santa Rosa on Friday.

At issue is a labor contract the union seeks for vineyard workers hired by a Heublein subsidiary. The union seeks the $2.40 hourly wages paid by Christian Brothers.

Highlights Of Nixon Talk

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Highlights of President Nixon's remarks on his new economic policies:

The time has come for a new economic policy for the United States. Its targets are unemployment, inflation and international speculation. And this is how we are going to attack those targets:

First, on the subject of jobs. We all know why we have an unemployment problem. Two million workers have been released from the Armed Forces in defense plants because of our success in winding down the war in Vietnam. Putting those people back to work is one of the challenges of peace and we have begun to make progress.

To give that system a powerful new stimulus, I shall ask the Congress when it reconvenes after its summer recess to consider as its first priority the enactment of the job development act of 1971. I will propose to provide the strongest short-term incentive in our history to invest in new machinery and equipment that will create new jobs for America —a 10 per cent job development credit for one year effective as of today with a 5 per cent credit after Aug. 15, 1972.

Second, I will propose to repeal the 7 per cent excise tax on automobiles effective today. This will mean a reduction in price of about $200 per car. I shall insist that the American auto industry pass this tax reduction on to the nearly 8 million customers who are buying automobiles this year. Lower prices mean that more people will be able to afford new cars. And every additional 100,000 cars sold means 25,000 new jobs.

I propose to speed up the personal income tax exemptions scheduled for Jan. 1, 1973, to Jan. 1, 1972 —so that taxpayers can deduct an extra $50 for each exemption one year earlier than planned. This increase in consumer spending power will provide a strong boost to the economy in general and to employment in particular.

To offset the loss of revenue from these tax cuts which directly stimulate new jobs, I have ordered a $4.7 billion cut in federal spending.

Tax cuts to stimulate employment must be matched by spending cuts to restrain inflation. To check the rise in the cost of government, I have ordered postponement of pay raises and a 5 per cent cut in government employment.

I have ordered a 10 per cent cut in foreign economic aid.

In addition, since the Congress has already delayed action on two of the great initiatives of this administration, I will ask Congress to amend my proposals to postpone the implementation of revenue sharing for three months and welfare reform for one year.

I am today ordering a freeze on all prices and wages throughout the United States, for a period of 90 days. In addition, I call upon corporations to extend that wage-price freeze to all dividends.

I have today appointed a cost of living council within the government. I have directed this council to work with leaders of labor and business to set up the proper mechanism for achieving continued price and wage stability after the 90 day freeze is over.

Let me emphasize two characteristics to this action: one, it is temporary. To put the strong, vigorous American economy into a permanent strait-jacket would lock in unfairness and stifle the expansion of our free enterprise system. Two, while the wage-price freeze will be backed by government sanctions if necessary, it will not be accompanied by the establishment of a huge price-control bureaucracy. I am relying on the voluntary cooperation of all Americans — workers, employers, consumers —to make this freeze work.

I have directed Secretary (John) Connally to suspend temporarily the convertibility of the dollar into gold or other reserve assets, except in amounts and conditions determined to be in the interest of monetary stability and in the best interests of the United States.

Let me lay to rest the bugaboo of devaluation. What does this action mean for you?

If you want to buy a foreign car, or take a trip abroad, market conditions may cause your dollar to buy slightly less. But if you are among the overwhelming majority who buy American-made products in America your dollar will be worth just as much tomorrow as it is today.

This action will not win us any friends among the international money traders. But our primary concern is with the American workers, and with fair competition around the world.

As a temporary measure, I am today imposing an additional tax of 10 per cent on goods imported into the United States. This is a better solution for international trade than direct controls on the amount of imports.

This import tax is a temporary action —not directed against any other country, but an action to make certain that American products will not be at a disadvantage because of unfair exchange rates. When the unfair treatment is ended, the import tax will end as well.

The purposes of the government actions I have announced tonight are to lay the basis for renewed confidence, to make it possible for us to compete fairly, with the rest of the world, to open the door to a new prosperity.

But government, with all its powers, does not hold the key to the success of a people. That key, my fellow Americans, is in your hands.

Pay Hikes For Clerical Work On Agenda

The Marin County Board of Education will consider pay raises for clerical workers and administrators at 8 p.m. today at the county schools office, 201 Tamal Vista Boulevard, Corte Madera.

The personnel commission of the board has recommended raises for clerical workers that will average 2.5 per cent or 2.28 per cent, depending on the effective date.

Under the proposal some employees would get as high as a 10 per cent pay hike and some none, reported Board President James A. Carroll.

In June the board granted teachers a 2.28 per cent pay hike.

Board members will have a closed session on salary negotiations before considering the items in open session.

Marin City Brothers Sentenced

Two brothers arrested after a scuffle with sheriff's deputies in Marin City July 23 have been sentenced in Marin Municipal Court.

Wilbur Smith, 21, of Marin City, was sentenced to six months in Marin County Jail by Western Marin Judicial Court Justice David R. Baty, sitting in municipal court.

Judge Baty placed Anthony Smith, 19, on probation for two years and ordered him to jail for five days, with credit for three days he already spent in jail.

The brothers were originally charged with a felony count of interfering with officers, but Judge Baty held there was not enough evidence to hold them for trial on that charge. They then pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor charge of resisting arrest.

In handing out the different sentences, Baty noted that Wilbur Smith had a long record of arrests on similar charges.

The pair were among a crowd which gathered in Marin City when deputies attempted to arrest Frederick Washington, 25, after a report he had struck three women at a Marin City restaurant.

One deputy was injured when struck in the head by a bottle thrown from the crowed.

Pentagon Pressure Is Charged

DETROIT (UPI)—Two Pentagon officers tried to influence the Disabled American Veterans (DAV) to adopt 11 resolutions backing Army policy and one of them became abusive when questioned about the resolutions, a Detroit judge and official of the DAV said Saturday.

Judge Benjamin C. Stanczyk of the Wayne County Common Pleas Court said the incidents occured during the recently concluded 50th anniversary convention of the veteran's group. Stanczyk also is a member of the DAV's Committee on National Security.

"I've never run into this kind of pressure before," said Stanczyk. He said the officers simply wanted the DAV national convention to "rubberstamp" Army programs and policies.

Stanczyk identified the two officers as Maj. George H. Chase, who was identified by the Pentagon as a member of the Community Relations Division in the Army's Information Office, and Col. Daniel Ruskin.

The judge, who served in the Army's Criminal Intelligence Division in World War II, said Chase threatened him after a short, but heated discussion. But later he apologized, said Stanczyk.

Human Rights Panel To Meet

The Marin County Human Rights Commission will hold a special meeting at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the planning commission chambers at the Civic Center to consider the request of a commissioner that the county's housing authority and redevelopment agency be investigated by the grand jury.

Commissioner Thelma McKinney said she had requested the meeting because of unannounced meetings of the housing authority board held outside Marin City.

Slated to speak at the meeting, in addition to Mrs. McKinney, are James Montgomery, consultant for the Marin Urban Development Association, and C. J. Williams, member of the Marin City Council.

Hearing Set On Burglary Count

Denny Joe Hall, 20, of Santa Clara, has been bound over to Marin Superior Court on a charge of burglary.

He was to be arrainged in superior court today.

Hall was arrested July 31 by a security guard who found him outside a broken door to the office of Dr. Zane R. Gard at 77 Marsh Drive, San Rafael.

Major Crimes Up In San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Bureau of Criminal Information reports major crime in San Francisco increased 7 per cent in the first seven months of 1971 despite drops in rape, murder, burglary and auto thefts.

A total of 34,598 major crimes were committed in the first seven months this year as compared with 32,301 in the same period a year ago, according to the report.

Wondrous Willie Dazzles Mets, Leads Giants

SAN FRANCISCO UPI) — Juan Marichal and Gaylord Perry won three games between them in the last five played by the San Francisco Giants, but the big man in the team's sudden rejuvenation is 40-year-old Willie Mays.

Mays claims he doesn't play harder against one team or another but he was the difference between victory and defeat in three weekend triumphs over the New York Mets, climaxed by Marichal's five-hit, 6-1 decision Sunday which put the Giants six games ahead of the Dodgers in the National League West.

"One series is as big as another," Mays said after Sunday's victory, which he sealed with a three-run homer in the seventh. "I don't think I try any harder against any one team. Every game is important but I guess they seem more important when you get near the end of the season."

Be that as it may, Mays played super baseball in the Mets series, which was televised back to New York. He generally plays his best, it seems, against the Mets, which has to be something more than a coincidence.

In Friday's 7-3 victory, Mays singled, doubled and tripled, scored two runs, drove in one and stole his 14th base of the season.

In Saturday's 10 inning 6-5 victory, Mays walked three times and stole his 15th base and Sunday, his homer picked up a tiring Marichal and carried him home free.

Marichal stopped New York on five hits but admitted later he probably would have asked manager Charlie Fox to take him out in the ninth because he didn't have much left.

"I pitched as good as I can," Marichal said, "but by the ninth I didn't have much left. If we didn't get those four runs in the seventh I would have told Charlie to warm someone up."

Even so, Marichal retired the last nine men he faced in order but in the ninth he had to do it with an assortment of slow pitches.

"My fastball was my best pitch early in the game," Marichal said, "but I was really tired by the ninth."

Marichal struck out seven batters and didn't walk one as he went the distance — successfully — for the second straight time to post his 12th victory in 20 decisions.

Mays' homer was his first since July 18, 16th of the year and 644th of his career.

While Willie's homer stood out as the key blow, Bobby Bonds and Tito Fuentes also struck key hits.

Mays walked after two out in the first and Bonds followed with his 22nd homer of the year — a long blow ehich cleared the fence at the 410-foot sign in center by 10 feet.

Marichal carried that 2-0 edge into the third when the Mets scored their only run — on a double by Jerry Grote and a single by Bud Harrelson.

Cleon Jones tripled after two out in the sixth but Marichal struck out Donn Clendenon. The Mets got their last chance against Juan in the top of the seventh when Ken Boswell opened the inning with a double. Again, Juan reached back to retire the next three batters and preserve his 2-1 edge.

In the bottom of the seventh Al Gallagher singled after one out and raced to third on a single by Ken Henderson. That finished New York starter and loser Jim McAndrews (0-4) and brought on reliever Ron Taylor. Fuentes greeted him with a single up the middle for a 3-1 edge and then Mays hit the first pitch to him far over the left field fence for three more runs and the ballgame.

The Giants are idle today and then open a two-game series with the Phillies Tuesday night. John Cumberland will pitch that game and Perry will follow on Wednesday. The Giants will be idle again on Thursday before starting a nine-game road trip which includes stops in Montreal, New York and Philadelphia.

Novato 3rd In Ruth Tournament

Marin Team Finally Bows To Brawley, 5-2

Novato's spunky Babe Ruth Baseball League's 13-year-old aggregation brought home a Western Regional Championship third place finish from Imperial County over the weekend.

The once-beaten local nine nearly forced extra tilt Sunday but bowed 5-2 in 10 innings to host Brawley. "We simply ran out of gas," Novato skipper Bob Simi explained afterwards.

Before they did, Novato upended Glendale Saturday 2-1 and put a scare into Brawley Sunday. Twice the underdogs rallied from behind, but the Novato heroics fell short. In the climactic 10th, Brawley put two men on, thanks to a walk and an error, against Mike Moreno. Simi then pulled Moreno after the lad went nine-plus innings. Reliever Dave Lucchesi entered the battle and was promptly greeted by a run-scoring single to center. Apparently shaken, Lucchesi then surrendered a booming 340-foot ground rule double, plating two more.

This sudden turn of events nullified Novato's earlier come-from-behind exploits. Brawley tallied in the top of the first as Novato hitting hero Larry Caples dropped a flyball in right-field. Pitcher Moreno, trying to pick off the runner at first, threw one past first baseman Walt Kaurin, enabling the runner to take second. In his haste to catch the runner at second, the first baseman fired the ball into center field.

The move allowed the runner to steam toward third. John Weston's subsequent throw to the base from the outfield skipped past third sacker Glen Dunbar as the gleeful runner romped home. The unearned run was quickly matched in the next inning as Weston singled and stole second.

The 1-1 score stood until the seventh when Brawley pushed one over by fashioning a double and a single. However, in the bottom half, Caples made amends for his earlier miscue with a clutch single and a pilfer of second. A Weston safety between third and short plated Caples, a .600 hitter during the 13-game post-season series. This proved to be Novato's last gasp, but it did muster a pair of baserunners in the last half of the 10th as Tom Ligon singled and Lucchesi walked. Weston's followed with a bounder back to the pitcher, ending the Novato 1971 Babe Ruth title aspirations.

After the final out, a philosophical Simi mused, "It's tough to keep it up after three extra inning games, but the kids kept coming through."

The latter contention was evident Saturday as his 13-year-olds edged past Glendale in an eight inning affair, 2-1. Purdy pitched a four hitter, using a fastball and good control to strike out eight.

Purdy's pinpoint accuracy proved essential, because his colleagues were unable to bat safely during the first six frames. Down 1-0 going into the seventh, Caples punchedthrough a hit with one out. He stole second and scored on a Glen Dunbar single to left.

During the following inning, Weston repeated Caples' singling and stealing act. He took third when the throw to second flew into centerfield and came across on a passed ball.

A joyous Simi threw accolades at Purdy and his cohorts following the victorious effort. "It's great when you get such come through performances like Purdy moving from catcher to pitcher and Caples coming off the bench to hit so effectively."

After the Brawley game, Simi controlled his disappointment, preferring to continue lauding "a real team effort throughout. I'm proud of them. We just kept coming under pressure. No one player carried us, it was always someone new," like second sacker Mike Foster. "Foster came down with a temperature and couldn't play for us against Brawley." Before he became ill, Foster contributed his first two series runs batted in on Friday night. "That's the type of play we got throughout," Simi concluded.

There's No Consolation In Novato

Down in the dumps after the previous night's heartbreaking loss, the Novato National Little League All-Star team flicked in the towel and lost the Consolation game too, 3-0, to the Lincoln Glen All-Stars of San Jose Saturday afternoon in Campbell, near San Jose.

Manager Sheridan Moats went with Ernie Galliani on the mound for the route, but substituted liberally everywhere else, as the Novato team could collect only four scattered base hits without producing a run.

A two-out, last inning, throwing error the night before had cost the Novatans a berth in the final, and a shot at a trip to San Bernardino for yet another elimination tourney, climaxing in a trip to Williamsport, Pa. for the Little League World Series.

The Lincoln Glen team also got only four hits, according to Moats, but bunched them effectively enough to get the three earned runs across.

According to Moats, Galliani pitched well and did not walk many, but a big inning where Lincoln Glen placed a double and two singles together brought in the deciding runs.

Marin Swim Team Romps To Title

The Marin Aquatic Club, led by five individual high point winners, rolled up 916 points over the weekend to defeat its nearest competitor, the Petaluma Swim Club, by more than 300 points in the finals of the Redwood Empire Swimming League in Petaluma.

The Marin A.C., a product of the merger of the San Rafael and Marin Swim Clubs last summer, and co-sponsored by the San Rafael Park and Recreation Department, won 33 events out of a possible 68, and set 16 new league records en route to the overwhelming victory.

Individual high-point trophy winners from Marin include: Nancy Placak (Girls' 9-10); Kim Hughes (Girls 13-14); Spencer

Li'l Girl Helps Stockton To $33,000 Golf Victory

SUTTON, Mass (UPI)—You can buy one heck of a lot of disposable diapers with $33,000.

That's the first thing that crossed Dave Stockton's mind after he ended a personal year-long drought Sunday in first place in the Massachusetts Classic golf tournament.

Dave and his wife had brought along their 11-month-old son, Ronald, and the family experienced its biggest payday since Dave won the 1970 PGA title.

The next thing Stockton thought about was the unidentified 10-year-old girl who inadvertently gave him his biggest break of the tournament.

"It was a real good break. I had made probably the only mistake I had made during the day when my shot took a big bounce on the fringe at the seventh. The wind had changed around on me and the ball was taking off when it hit a little girl.

"If it hadn't hit her," Stockton said, "it would have gone into the hazard. She wasn't hurt and I gave her the ball. And she even walked with me the rest of the way. I saw her.

"That's the good thing about a big gallery," Stockton added after a moment of thought. "If you yell "fore" soft enough, they can't get out of the way. Just don't tell my insurance man I said that" he added."

Dave had six birdies, three on each side, and finished the tournament with 18 birds and only five bogeys for a 13-under score and a one-stroke edge on runnerup Ray Floyd, whose final round 68 just couldn't match Stockton's strong 66.

Even so, Floyd narrowly missed an eagle putt on the 18th, recovering for a bird that slashed the final margin to a single stroke. That narrow miss cost Floyd, who hasn't won a tourney this season, a cool $14,290, the difference between Stockton's fat purse and Floyd's runnerup award of $18,810.

Four players were four strokes apart when a gallery of 35,200 finally dispersed. Rod Funseth finished third, three strokes off the lead and 10 under for the 72 holes, while Bruce Crampton was alone in fourth, four strokes back of Stockton to pick up a $7,755 check.

Lou Graham, who had led after three rounds by virtue of a 68 on Saturday, soared over par for the first time in the tournament to a 75, three over, and it dropped him into a 10th place tie.

Stockton, 29, of Westlake, Calif., noted that it was the first time he had ever staged a late drive to win a PGA event. His five earlier victories all came after he built an early lead.

"I've been playing good and getting nothing out of it" he said of the $44,064 he had collected prior to the tournament

TOO MUCH PRESSURE

Vida Blue 'About Ready To Crack'

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The mental strain is getting to be too much for Oakland's sensational fireballer, Vida Blue. Although he hasn't started losing his hair he admits being "about ready to break up."

With 50,507 fans watching his every move and the New York press scrutinizing him carefully, the Oakland A's lefthander hung on Sunday for his 22nd victory, a rocky 6-4 triumph over the Yankees, and helped extend the Western Division leaders' winning streak to seven straight.

The Athletics raked four Yankee hurlers for 18 hits with Bert Campaneris' two-run tiebreaking single in the eighth leading the way. Vida aided the eighth inning rally as he scored the tie-breaking run on a wild pitch by reliever Lindy McDaniel.

Blue, with a good chance to become the American League's eighth 30-game winner and baseball's 18th, is succumbing to the pressure that overtook Roger Maris in 1961. The former Yankee slugger lost tufts of hair when he successfully assaulted the mighty Babe Ruth's home run total.

"Mentally, I'm just ready to break up. Why? The New York press. I'd like it if they'd just pass me by a couple of days. I know it's their job but no one leaves me alone," the A's ace replied.

Blue survived a shaky seventh inning Sunday when the Yanks erupted for four runs. Dick Williams, manager of the A's, never had qualms about giving Blue the hook: "as long as it looked like he could finish, I wanted to give him a chance." Successive pinch-hit two-run doubles by Johnny Ellis and Ron Hansen were the key blows off the 22-year-old lefty. However, neither Jack Aker nor McDaniel could hold the lead for New York.

Detroit edged Minnesota, 7-5, Kansas City dealt Boston its seventh straight loss, 5-1, California outlasted Washington 4-3 in 10 innings, and Chicago downed Baltimore 2-1 in other AL games.

A New Star Is Born In Oakland

SANTA ROSA (UPI) — If rookie Clarence Davis keeps up his pre-season pace, the former USC running back will not only make the Oakland Raiders squad, but also may crack into the starting lineup.

In the Raiders' first exhibition game two weeks ago, a 25-24 loss to Philadelphia, Davis caught a 42-yard scoring pass on his first play from scrimmage in professional football.

Oakland jumped out to a quick 10-0 second quarter lead against the Jets on a 32-yard field goal by George Blanda followed by a 33-yard scoring strike from Ken Stabler, making his second straight start at quarterback, to Eldridge Dickey.

But the Jets, playing without injured quarterback Joe Namath, came back before halftime to tie it at 10-10 on a 42-yard field goal by Bobby Howfield and a two-yard run by Emerson Boozer after a Raider fumble.

Veteran George Blanda started at quarterback in the third period for the Raiders, but threw a quick interception that the Jets converted to a score on a 27-yard pass from Bob Davis to Richard Caster.

Blanda got warm, though, and came back to lead a 65-yard scoring march that ended with a four-yard run by Charlie Smith for a 17-17 tie. Then the Raiders' Art Thomas recovered a blocked Jets punt in the end zone for a touchdown.

L.A. Eyes Panic Button; Pirates Also In Slump

By U.P. INHERNATIONAL

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The Dodgers haven't hit the panic button yet but their finger is edging closer.

There was a note of concern in Walter Alston's voice after Los Angeles dropped six games back of the San Francisco Giants in the National League West.

"I think Richie Allen has kind of run out of gas," said the Dodger manager.

"And I'd like to get Willie Davis started hitting again one of these days. He's swinging at bad balls, uppercutting balls like he did originally. He's back in his old habits."

Alston's club lost to the Montreal Expos and Steve Renko 6-3, its third defeat in four games. The Dodgers' second straight loss to the Expos came on a day the Giants rolled up a 6-1 victory at home against the New York Mets.

The Mets are at Dodger Stadium tonight for the opener of a three-game series. They go with their best, Tom Seaver, 128, against Dodger rookie Doyle Alexander, 4-3.

In their last four games, the Dodgers have managed only six runs on 34 hits.

"I don't think," Alston said, "we score as many runs here as on the artificial surface in some of the other parks but the same goes for the other clubs, too. And we didn't get many hits today when it counted."

Renko scattered nine hits to even his record at 12-12 while Bill Singer, who lasted five innings, was tagged with his 14th loss against seven wins.

Ex-University of Southern California athlete Gary Sutherland keyed a three-run rally by Montreal in the first inning off Singer with a two-run single. He belted his fourth homer of the season of reliever Pete Mikkelsen in the eighth inning.

Bob Bailey, an ex-Dodger, collected his 12th homer as the Expos piled up 12 hits.

Despite the Giants' lead of a half dozen games with seven weeks to go, Montreal manager Gene Mauch said he thinks the Dodgers will win the Western Division pennant.

He explained:

"It's going to boil down to how they do against each other and who plays the best the last 10 games.

"After all your starters have gone 250 innings, it gets down to the bullpen. Jerry Johnson (the Giants' top reliever) has never been confronted with pennant pressure.

"(Jim) Brewer and Mikkelsen have been there and, of course, Alston's been there 100 times."

Pittsburgh saw its National League East lead dwindle even further after losing a crucial four-game series to the St. Louis Cardinal, but Pirate manager Danny Murtaugh has called to his charges to regroup rather than retreat.

Matty Alou turned on his former teammates with a two-out, three-run homer, his fourth hit of the game, in the eighth inning Sunday to give the Cardinals a 6-4 victory over the Pirates and give St. Louis a sweep of the series.

The Cardinals, who trailed Pittsburgh by 14 games on July 20, are now within four games of the crumbling division leaders. The Pirates have scored only 21 runs while losing eight of their last 10 games.

The Pirates were humbled by Cards' ace right-hander Bob Gibson Saturday night when he pitched the first no-hitter of his career en route to an 11-0 triumph. Gibson allowed only four Pittsburgh baserunners—a wild pitch on a third strike to Milt May, and walks in the third, fourth and seventh innings.

"Naturally, when you lose the way we've lost its going to affect you," said the veteran Buc skipper. "We haven't scored more than four runs in any of our last 10 games and this isn't our game. We're a team that usually scores runs but lately we haven't been able to do that. We'll just have to regroup," added Murtaugh.

Willie Stargell continues to carry the burden of the Pirate attack, hitting two home runs, his 40th and 41st of the season, to give Pittsburgh an early lead in Sunday's contest. The Pirate slugger is optimistic about the current skid facing his ball club.

Alou, traded by Pittsburgh to St. Louis last winter, capped a five-run rally that wiped out a 4-1 Pirate lead. It was only his fourth home run of the season but his second against Pittsburgh.

In other National League action, San Francisco whipped New York 6-1, Cincinnati beat whipped New York 6-1, Cincinnati beat Chicago 5-1, Houston edged Atlanta 5-4, and San Diego downed Philadelphia 5-4 and Chicago 5-1, Houston edged Atlanta 5-4, and San Diego downed Philadelphia 5-4 and 3-2 to sweep a doubleheader.

Jim Wynn's two out single in the eighth inning drove in two runs and gave Houston its victory over Atlanta. Reliever Cecil Upshaw struck out two of the first three batters he faced, but Bob Watson beat out an infield hit and Denis Menke doubled to set the stage for Wynn's game-winning hit. Hank Aaron homered for the Braves, raising his career total to 624.

PRO FOOTBALL ROUNDUP

Staubach No. 1 Cowboy?

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Staubach, the former Naval Academy star and Heisman Trophy winner, put on a splendid passing performance Saturday night to lead the Dallas Cowboys to a 36-21 victory over the New Orleans Saints and enhance his position in the battle for the No. 1 quarter-back slot.

Staubach, who is battling Craig Morton for the starting job on the National Football Conference champions, hit 7-of-17 passes for 182 yards and three touchdowns. Four passes also were dropped.

Two of Staubach's touchdown passes were bombs of 69 yards to Bob Hayes and 81 yards to Margene Adkins and he hooked up with Adkins again for a 10 yard TD pass. Staubach's three TD passes and long range field goals of 46 and 50 yards by Austrian soccer star Toni Fritsch boosted the Cowboys to a 27-0 halftime lead.

Morton was able to hit only 4of-10 passes for 66 yards as he fell behind in the race for No. 1.

In the only Sunday pre-season game, New England marked the opening of its new Foxboro Stadium by beating the New York Giants 20-14. In other Saturday night action, Minnesota downed San Diego 34-7, Cincinnati beat Detroit 31-24, Kansas City edged Atlanta 1210, St. Louis shaded Houston 1614, Washington edged Denver 17-13, Oakland ripped the New York Jets 41-20, Pittsburgh squeezed past Green Bay 16-13 and Baltimore defeated Chicago 21-13. Buffalo and Philadelphia play tonight.

Carl Garrett ran 44 yards for one TD and Gino Cappelletti kicked field goals of 36 and 14 yards to lead the Patriots past the Giants. Jim Nance also had a nine-yard TD run for the Pats while New York's Rocky Thompson raced 90 yards with a kickoff return for a Giant score.

Norman Snead, playing his first game for Minnesota, passed for 251 yards and two touchdowns to lead the Vikings past the Chargers. Snead connected on a six-yard TD pass to John Beasley and a 12yard strike to Bill Brown. John Hadl's 30-yard pass to Gary Garrison accounted for the only San Diego score.

Rookie Ken Anderson threw two TD passes and Jess Phillips plunged for a pair of scores as Cincinnati beat Detroit. Greg Landry and Altie Taylor teamed for 20 and 29-yard scoring plays for the Lions.

Larry Wilson blocked a punt and recovered it for a TD as the Cardinals beat Houston. Wilson blocked Dan Pastorini's punt on the 15-yard line in the second period, scooped it up and raced over for the score, giving St. Louis a 10-7 lead. Jim Bakken had two field goals and George Jakowenko one for St. Louis.

Washington took advantage of three Denver fumbles and 82 yards in penalties to beat the Broncos. Curt Knight had a 47-yard field goal for the Redskins, Sonny Jurgensen passed seven yards to Roy Jefferson for another score and Bob Burnet plunged a yard for the last Washington TD.

Clarence Davis' 99-yard kickoff return and a 72-yard punt return by George Atkinson provided a pair of fourth quarter scores that enabled Oakland to beat the New York Jets. The score was tied at 17-17 in the third quarter when rookie Warren Koegel blocked a punt and Art Thoms recovered it in the end zone for an Oakland score. Davis and Atkinson put the game out of reach with their long returns.

Terry Bradshaw passed 33 yards to Dave Smith for a TD to climax a 98-yard fourth quarter drive that carried Pittsburgh past Green Bay. Bradshaw also passed 19 yards to Bob Adams for the first Steeler score.

Norm Bulaich and Tom Nowatzke plunged for scores and Earl Morrall passed 37 yards to Ray Perkins for another as the Colts beat Chicago.

Darkhorse Team Is Winner In Joe DiMag Tournament

An underdog San Francisco Bay League contingent surprised Joe DiMaggio Regional Baseball Tournament observers yesterday at Albert Field in San Rafael by downing Ukiah 3-0 in the championship finals to win a berth in the World Series at Vallejo this week.

Swinteton-Wallberg defied so-called "experts" by scoring all its runs in the last two innings to conclude the four-day tournament for high school age boys.

To gain the finals, Swinteton-Wallberg eliminated pre-tournament favorite, defending champion Valente-Marini-Perata of the San Francisco Beach League, 4-2, while Ukiah ousted South Marin representative Drake, 15-7, on Saturday.

The final game was a pitching duel between Grant Becker of San Francisco and Dane Jacobsen of Ukiah.

While the winner was pitching a one-hitter, his teammates jumped all over Jacobsen and reliever John Kulman in the sixth as Becker, himself, singled and Dave Castiglioni doubled. With men on second and third, Ukiah catcher Mike Tate dropped a third strike, enabling Becker to score. Vic Lopes followed with a single to plate a second tally.

That was all Becker needed. The sturdy pitcher struck out six and walked four, giving up only a fourth inning single to Tate during the solid performance. However, he was given more breathing room in the seventh when Mike Fauss singled and quickly stole second. Art Bridgeman then delivered a run-producing single.

In addition to the timely hitting support, Becker's colleagues also turned in clutch fielding plays when needed. In the sixth, Rene Mariluch raced deep in his centerfield position to nab a drive by Ukiah shortstop Jeff Haskell.

To augment his fine defensive output, Mariluch personally negated the defending champion S.F. Beach League's bid to retain its Regional championship. He pitched a three-hitter Saturday as his Bay League cohorts trimmed Valente-Marini-Perata, 4-2.

During the opening frame, a walk, an error and a fielder's choice pushed one run over. Larry Terry climaxed the outburst by doubling to drive home another.

The Beach boys promptly evened matters in the second as a hit batter, a walk and a fielder's choice were sandwiched between Dwayne Price's and John Lynch's run scoring doubles. This quick outburst proved to be their last gasp as S-W rallied for single tallies in the fourth and sixth to ice the contest. In the fourth, a Fauss single produced the tie-breaking run after a walk and a hit. Two frames later, Bridgeman powered a double to chase home the final run from first base.

Prior to this game, the Beach delegation received its first taste of defeat in bowing 2-0 to Ukiah, fresh from its win over Drake.

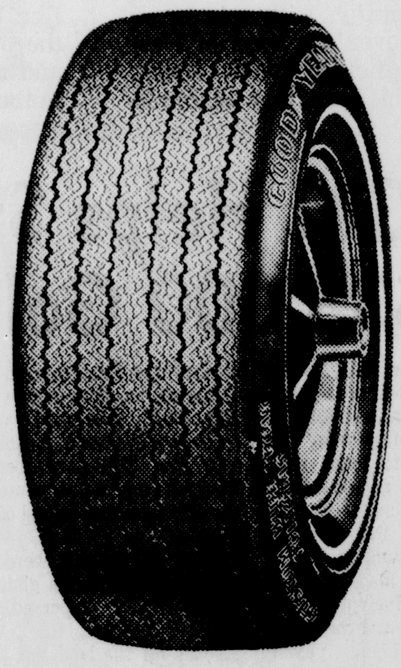

The remaining Marin County contenders were outslugged 15-7 compliments of a Dave Bickel-led Ukiah attack. Bickel hit a leadoff home run in the fourth, triggering a decisive nine run rally. He returned later in the inning to donate a run scoring single.

Don Assay, John Billings and Jim Petray, among others, bore the unhappy brunt of the Ukiah assault. They and their teammates were relegated to spectator roles as Ukiah, behind Bickle's sterling two-hitter, whitewashed Valente 2-0. Only Ron Weaver and Amos Hewitt could chink the Ukiah armor; the pair punched out two harmless singles. Ukiah acquired an unearned first inning tally, thanks to two singles and an equal number of errors. Bickle drove home the other run in the third with a single.

RACING

Stewart World Champ

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Jackie Stewart is once again the auto racing champion of the world, although clinching the championship was something less than dramatic for the 32-year-old Scotsman.

Stewart didn't even finish the Austrian Grand Prix Sunday as his Tyrell Ford lost a wheel 18 laps from the end, but he locked up his second Formula One world driving championship when Jacky Ickx of Belgium also was forced to drop out. Ickx was the only one with a chance to overtake Stewart in the remaining three Grand Prix races on the circuit.

Jo Siffert of Switzerland emerged as the winner of Sunday's Austrian Grand Prix as he drove his 12-cylinder BRM around the 199-mile Oesterreich-Ring course in one hour, 30.23.91 minutes for an average speed of 134.5 miles per hour. The 25-year-old Swiss led the field from start to finish.

Emerson Fittipaldi, in a Lotus, was second and Tim Schenken of Australia was third.

On the American scene, Mark Donohue of Media, Pa., won the Trans-Am race at Watkins Glen, N.Y., for his fifth consecutive victory in the Sports Car Club of America's series for sports sedans. Donohue took the lead on the 33rd lap of the two-hour event after George Follmer's polewinning Mustang spun on a 90-degree turn.

Donohue, driving a Javelin, raced around the bumpy 2.43 mile course 90 times at an average speed of 108.898 miles per hour. Follmer finished second and Peter Gregg was third.

Brett Lunger of Wilmington, Del., won the first professional auto race of his career when he won the L&M Grand Prix at Donnybrooke Speedway in Brainderd, Minn. Lunger, 26, soared ahead of Canadian champion Eppie Wietzes with five laps to go and held the lead to the end. Lunger piloted a Quickover Lola to his victory.

TOURNAMENT OF CHAMPIONS

Peacock Gap's Bond May Have Edge On Home Links

(Second in a series of six)

Twice in the four year history of the Marin County Tournament of Champions, the golfer playing his home course has won the title. On that basis, Robert Bond of San Rafael may have the edge when champions from Marin's six clubs meet next Sunday for the fifth T of C at Peacock Gap, San Rafael.

In this 18-hole scratch play, Bond will meet George Scherba Sr. of Indian Valley Golf Club, Chuck Freitas of San Geronimo, Don Lazzarini of the Meadow Club, defending champion Jim Brown of Mill Valley and Mat Palacio Jr. of the Marin Country Club, Novato.

Bond, a 52-year-old public relations director for Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. earned the right to represent the San Rafael course last October when he bested Elmo Petterle in match play, 5 and 4 for the club title. It was Bond's first club championship in Marin, although he won the crown at Hidden Valley in Reno, Nev. seven years ago.

A six handicapper with a wife and three sons, Bond has golfed Peacock for three years; his lowest score there was a two-under-par 69.

"It's not a terribly long course," he says, "and with the winding ditches that wander throughout the course, it's important to keep the ball in play."

Bonds will be out to unseat defending champion Jim Brown, who won the T of C last year on his home links, the Mill Valley course. Bond says he knows nothing about Brown, except that "he's a fine golfer."

One of two rookies in the tournament, Bond says, "I think it's a fine thing to bring together the champions of the Marin County courses. I'm looking forward to it."

Freitas is the other "rookie." Scherba, like Brown, was the only other champion to win on his home course.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Switch Advised In Mutual Fund

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. In hopes of increasing my income I bought Keystone Polaris Fund, Pacific Power & Light and Niagara Mohawk Power. With both the economy and the market uncertain I am worried about my holdings. What should I do? — A.W.

A. Your two utility holdings provide exactly what you are seeking from your portfolio — good income — while offering a measure of capital protection as well. The yields, both of which are above 6 per cent, were in one instance 100 per cent tax free and in the other 75 percent last year. Furthermore, although the percentages may vary, these tax shelters will continue through 1972. I see no reason to disturb these holdings.

The mutual fund, however, was not suited to your purpose when it was purchased nor is it at this time. Polaris has as its investment goal speculative capital appreciation. Keystone does offer other funds which would fit your need, and of these, I like S-2. Your Polaris may be switched to this income-growth fund for half the usual purchase fee.

Q. What is the rating for Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul 4½ per cent Convertible Bonds? Will the missed interest payments be cumulative? — A.C.

A. Directors voted in April, 1970, and again in 1971 to omit interest payments on the series B bonds as well as on several other series. This bond carries a C rating, indicative of the interest omissions. When or if these interest arrearages will be paid is difficult to determine, but they are cumulative up to 13½ per cent.

Chicago, Milwaukee incurred a $3.6 million net loss in the first six months of 1971. Losses of $10.9 million and $5.6 million were reported in 1970 and 1969, respectively. If the road wins ICC approval for inclusion in the Rock Island merger plan, the outlook for these bonds will be considerably brighter. This, however, will be a time-consuming process.

Stocks Soar In Highest Volume Yet

NEW YORK (UPI) — Volume soared to an all-time high of more than 30,000,000 shares on Wall Street today as the stock market racked up one of its biggest advances ever, paced by huge gains in glamor and selected blue chip stocks.

Standard & Poor's 500 stock index was up 3.01 at 98.70, and advances were far ahead of declines.

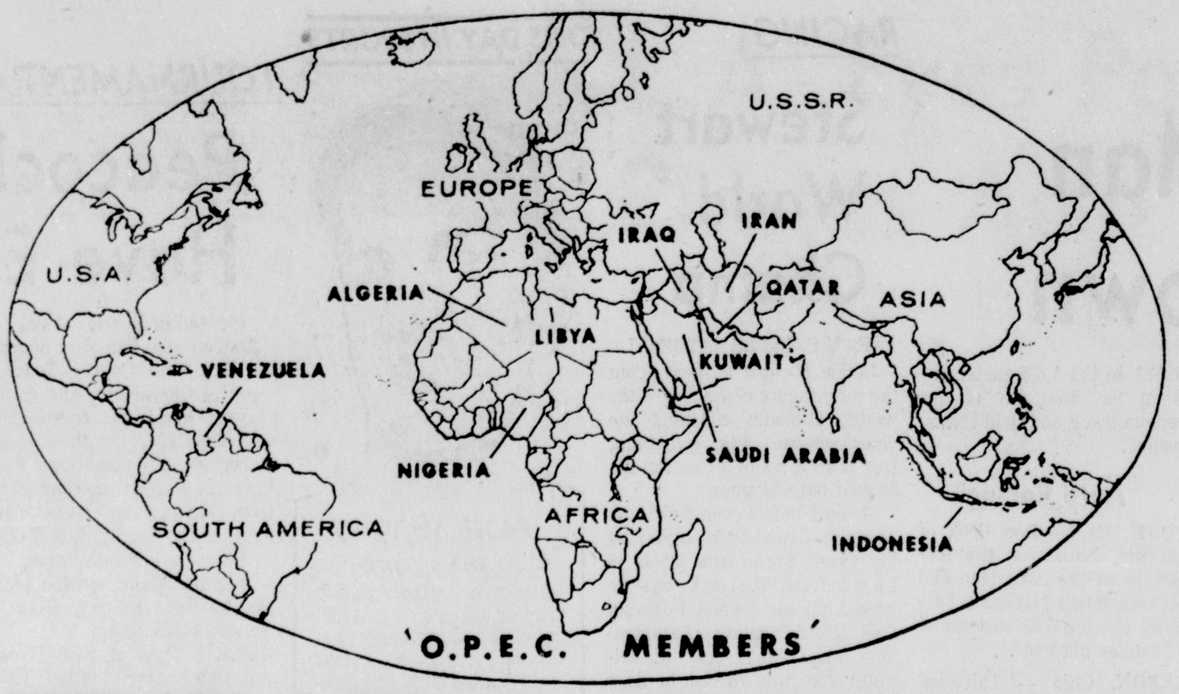

Among issues advancing several points in most cases 3 to 5 points were Mercantile Stores, U. S. Steel, Motorola, Polaroid, Xerox, Walt Disney, Wrigley, Digital Equipment, UAL Inc., and DuPont. IBM and Burroughs were even higher.

Chemicals were strong, rails and aircrafts firm.

Motors were delayed in opening by an influx of trading orders. In Nixon's address he called for repeal of the 7 per cent excise tax on new automobiles retroactive to Sunday.

Textile stocks also gained. Nixon's new program calls for a 10 per cent surcharge on most imports.

POSSIBLE WORLD OIL CRISIS — UPI newsmap spots member-nations of the Organization of Petroleum-Exporting Countries (OPEC). The OPEC announced Friday it will meet next month to set firm plans for financial and managerial "participation" in oil firms operating on their soil. Oil sources said the conference will demand the right to "acquire" about 20 per cent or more in the assets and profits of oil companies within their borders and a greater say in management. Currently, the major oil firms "rent" the oil resources and land from most OPEC members, with the countries sharing in revenues through this rent and through taxes. (UPI Telephoto)

Leading Oil-Exporting Nations To Demand Shares In Firms' Profits

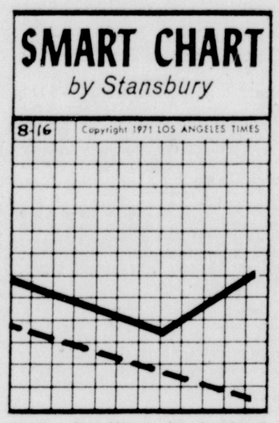

VIENNA (UPI)—The leading oil-exporting nations set the stage Friday for a new world oil crisis by announcing they will demand a share in the assets, profits and management of Western firms drilling on their territories.

The firms were expected to refuse. Oil sources predicted long, hard negotiations, with the possible threat of an oil embargo and an almost certain increase in oil prices to Western industries and consumers.

The Vienna headquarters of the Organization of Petroleum-Exporting Countries (OPEC) announced that OPEC's 11 members will meet in Beirut Sept. 22 to "take immediate steps towards the effective implementation of the principle of participation in the existing oil concessions."

OPEC officials have said that "participation" means that the OPEC member nations should be allowed to buy into the assets on their soil of the foreign oil firms operating there. They have said it also means that citizens of these countries should share in local management and make up a higher percentage of technicians and other upper-level employes.

The sources said the Beirut conference will demand at least a 20 per cent share in the companies local operations — and the right to draw at least 20 per cent of the profits.

The OPEC demand came as the oil world was just getting over the last crisis —a price battle between OPEC and the firms last February that ended in victory for OPEC only after it threatened a worldwide embargo.

The oil firms granted the OPEC members higher taxes and other benefits, after the nations promised to hold the tax level firm for five years.

The sources said a similar timetable might be worked out for "participation." But they said this first demand for "participation" is only the first step toward full local control of the oil reserves.

OPEC has 11 members — Algeria, Nigeria, Venezuela, Iran, Iraq, Qatar, Saudi Arabia, Libya, Indonesia, Abu Dhabi and Kuwait — which produce more than 90 per cent of the world's oil exports. Without this oil, the industry of Western Europe and Japan would halt.

Indonesia's oil production is nationalized and Algeria owns 51 per cent of its output. But, in the other nations, the oil firms rent the land and reserves from the countries, paying rent, taxes and other funds in exchange.

These leases will expire between 1983 and 2026. By then, OPEC members hope to be able to run their own production, and the participation plan was explained as a means of getting the necessary knowhow.

B Of A Heads Group Buying School Issue

Bank of America heads an underwriting group which has bought the $465,000 bond issue of the Petaluma City Joint Union High School District, Sonoma and Marin Counties. Net interest cost to the district was 5.7554 per cent.

The bonds are the second issue sold from an authorization of $3,600,000 voted in Oct. 14, 1969, which at the same time approved $9,100,000 in state of California school building aid loans, or a total of $12,700,000.

Proceeds of the financing is for building a new high school and two junior high schools. Initial plans are for construction of a new senior high school on a 35 acre site, with a capacity for 1,800 students. The high school would have 42 classrooms, plus laboratories, libraries, gymnasium and related facilities.

The district covers about 225 square miles in southwestern Sonoma and northern Marin Counties. About 47 per cent of assessed valuation is in the city of Petaluma.

Other members of the Bank of America syndicate were: Stone and Youngberg and Mitchum, Jones and Templeton Inc.

Firm Tells Plans To Protect Car Buyer

DETROIT (BW) — American Motors Corp. has announced an unprecedented buyer protection plan for 1972 which, executives said, "commits the corporation to give its customers every reason to place their trust in the comapny and its products."

The buyer protection plan calls for: free repair of any factory defect in its 1972 passenger cars for 12 months or 12,000 miles, including parts and labor required; free use of late model loaner cars for owners requiring overnight guaranteed repairs; certified dealer pre-delivery service, including a road test; and a toll-free, direct factory hot line open to all 50 states and Canada.

Marin July Real Estate Sales Continue Along '71 High Level

Multiple listing transactions were reported by the Marin County Board of Realtors at $12,552,000, compared to $9,773,214 in July, 1970 — an increase of 28 per cent. Especially gratifying was the fact that very little of the gain was due to increased prices. The increase in number of sales was almost as high — 26 per cent. Or, to put it another way — the average reported sale in July of last year was $38,477. In July, 1971 it was $39,226 — a difference of only $749.

Completed sales last month were also higher than a year ago — $11,206,205 against $8,471,521. And with all the preceding months of 1971 showing gains, the tally for completed sales January through July stands at $57,798,334, compared to last year's $38,860,825.

ACHERMANN AND CARRIER REAL ESTATE, opened about six months ago in the Sabella Building, 555 Redwood Highway, Mill Valley, has moved to larger quarters at the north end of the building. Plans are being made to have a staff of eight to 10 salesmen. Address and phone number remain the same.
